Fate of N.J. school system hangs on judicial hearing

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — An extraordinary hearing before New Jersey's entire federal judiciary began today to decide if New Jersey schools must shut down Thursday.

An "en banc" hearing before 11 U.S. District Court judges, including two retired but still active members of New Jersey's federal bench, began shortly after 11 a.m. with opening arguments from state Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland.

At issue is a State Supreme Court order to close the schools July 1 unless a new system for financing them is approved by the legislature. On May 13, the state court said the existing method — based on property taxes — is unfair to schools in poor neighborhoods.

The legislature has been unable to meet the court's demand, deadlocking on measures that would have imposed a state income tax and cut property taxes. Each house passed a bill unacceptable to the other.

The federal court panel hearing the case will be drawn from a pool of the 11 federal judges in the state. The chief judge of the Federal Court, Lawrence A. Whipple, on Tuesday directed all federal judges who are not occupied with other cases to take part.

In case the federal court does not grant a last-minute stay, sources say, leaders in each house have devised a set of signals designed to pass a tax bill before the deadline. Senators will vote on a property tax relief bill with the understanding that the same votes will be cast for a 2 per cent income tax bill favored by the Assembly.

State officials say the impact of the school closing will be extensive even though only summer schools are in session after July 1.

About 1.5 million students attend the state's 6,000 schools during the regular school year. Of those, 150,000 attend summer school and 61,000 attended vocational training school during the summer.

State Education Commissioner Fred Burke said that for every day the shutdown order is in effect, the schools will open one day later this fall, a claim that has been disputed by other officials.

He also announced Monday that 900 employes of the State Education Department will be laid off this summer if the schools close.

Six challenges to the state court ruling were filed with the federal court, from local schools boards, the New Jersey School Boards Association and U.S. Atty. Jonathan L. Goldstein.

They argue that school children have a constitutional right to an education.

A companion suit was filed by 31 members of the Republican minority in the Assembly, claiming that the state court exceeded its judicial role in ordering the schools closed.

The seven-member state court, after a lengthy discussion Monday, decided not to file any response to the challenges. There had been a sharp split over the original ruling, with two dissenting justices condemning the majority in strong language.

On Monday, in a letter that began "Dear Judge Larry," the Chief Justice of the state court, Richard J. Hughes, told Whipple that "with all due respect to the United States District Court, the Supreme Court and its members will not be appearing by counsel."

Florence R. Feskoe, the Supreme Court clerk, said she didn't know how many justices favored sending someone to the federal court hearing or filing a statement defending the court's position.

Heat wave finally subsiding

If the weatherman's forecast of 91 Thursday following 95 today proves accurate, the weather will seem cool to valley residents after an enervating heat wave.

They won't escape smog. A first stage alert was expected today from 2 to 7 p.m.

Tuesday's high of 95 was followed by a low of 57 early this morning.

Although sunny weather was anticipated for the valley, low clouds and ocean breezes closer to the coast brought temperatures down throughout Southern California.

They also lowered the danger of brush fires and overloaded power lines.

Firemen in Southern California were busy Tuesday, tackling a 300-acre blaze east of Riverside and a seven-acre flareup in Los Angeles' Griffith Park.

Sparks blown from the Griffith Park fire ignited a load of 23 tons of hay on a truck on the nearby Golden State Freeway.

The truck driver, Robert Gordon, 56, of Lakewood was alerted to the blazing hay by another motorist using a citizen's band radio. Gordon was treated for leg burns he suffered putting out the flames.

47 hostages released by hijackers

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Palestinian hijackers of a French jetliner today released 47 elderly women, sick persons and children among the more than 250 hostages they were holding for the third day at Entebbe Airport, the Ugandan government announced. Two Americans were among them.

The West German Embassy, which handles American affairs in Uganda, identified the Americans as Carol Taylor, 33, and her son Eric, 6. No home town was given.

The Israeli cabinet was meeting in emergency session to decide what it would do about demands to free 40 prisoners to ransom the rest of the captives and the plane. At least 70 Israelis are among the hostages.

Besides the two Americans, the 47 included 33 French, one Canadian and various other nationalities.

A tired smile on a new face for happy Ida

LA GRANDE, Ore. (AP) — Ida Hays' plane was an hour and a half late, but 200 people still were waiting when she arrived in her hometown wearing a tired smile on her new face.

The 15-year-old girl, whose badly deformed features were repaired by 10 hours of complicated surgery last month in New York, seemed to not quite believe the greeting she received in this town of some 10,400 people Tuesday.

A police car met her at the city limits and, lights flashing, escorted her to the middle of town. Families stood on the sidewalks and hollered "Hello."

One young, long-haired boy shouted, "Hi, Ida. What's happening?"

"I liked it," Ida said of her welcome, but she added, "I was kind of embarrassed."

Her grandmother, Alia Bellus, marveled at her granddaughter's lack of bitterness despite years of cruelty and taunting.

Ida had surgery May 19 at New York University Hospital. Surgeons moved her eyes more than an inch closer together, removed the deformed bone and used bone taken from her hip to mold her face into shape. Her brain had to be lifted to make room for the surgeons to work. She lost 16 pounds while in New York.

Scars left by the operation were already fading as Ida returned to the welcome attended by many who had contributed money to help pay for the young girl's surgery.

Still, Ida's exuberance exploded when she saw her grandparents there to greet her. She said over the roar of the jet engines that she was very tired.

"I haven't slept for two nights," Ida said. "I couldn't."

Mrs. Wilcox and Mrs. Bellus and grandfather Leslie Bellus were at the airport to meet her before their 52-mile car trip home.

Just before she climbed into the car, Ida grabbed her mother for one more hug.

"We did it," she cried.

First full review of prior news restraint in a criminal case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that a Nebraska judge's order restricting news coverage of a sensational mass murder case last October was an unconstitutional restraint on freedom of the press.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the court did not rule out the possibility that such orders could be issued in other circumstances to protect the right of a defendant to a fair trial.

But Burger declared that "the barriers to prior restraint remain high" and those barriers were not overcome in the Nebraska case.

Justices Byron R. White, Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist joined in Burger's opinion, which marked the first time the court has given a full-scale review to a direct prior restraint on news coverage of a criminal case.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Potter Stewart, and Thurgood Marshall filed a separate opinion concurring in the judgment. Justice John Paul Stevens also filed a separate opinion which concurred.

In his opinion, Burger warned the news media that First Amendment protections for freedom of the press carry with them a duty "to exercise the protected rights responsibly — a duty widely acknowledged but not always observed by editors and publishers.

"It is not asking too much to suggest that those who exercise First Amendment rights in newspapers or broadcasting enterprises direct some effort to protect the rights of an accused to a fair trial by unbiased jurors," Burger said.

Brennan, Stewart and Marshall held "that resort to prior restraints on the freedom of the press is a constitutionally impermissble method" of enforcing the right to a fair trial.

Stevens agreed "that the judiciary is capable of protecting the defendant's right to a fair trial without enjoining the press from publishing information in the public domain and that it may not do so."

However, Stevens added: "Whether the same absolute protection would apply no matter how shabby or illegal the means by which the information is obtained, no matter how serious an intrusion on privacy might be involved, no matter how demonstrably false the information might be, no matter how prejudicial it might be to the interests of innocent persons, no matter how perverse the motivation for publishing it, is a question I would not answer without further argument."

In addition to joining Burger's opinion, White filed a separate statement expressing "grave doubts ... whether orders with respect to the press such as were entered in this case would ever be justifiable."

Burger's opinion was confined closely to the facts in the Nebraska case. White said it was not necessary to issue a broader ruling to settle the Nebraska matter.

Sen. Goldwater endorses Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, an influential voice among conservative Republicans, has endorsed President Ford for the GOP nomination for the White House.

Red Bluff fire still out of control

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP) — A forest fire, described as the worst in five years, swept into a largely inaccessible wilderness area today and fire officials said hopes for controlling the blaze were slim.

"We cannot project containment at this time," said Bernie Bane, spokesman for the California Division of Forestry.

The fire has charrred more than 90 square miles of foothill brush, rangeland and forests.

The fire, 25 miles west of here and 150 miles north of San Francisco, devoured scenic wilderness and rangeland despite the efforts of more than 2,000 state and federal fire fighters and an armada of equipment on land and in the air.

It roared over both manmade and natural fire breaks Tuesday, jumping a fire line carved by bulldozers in its northwest corner and climbing a mountain which was expected to halt it in the southwest. The spokesman said it was started Sunday by a spark from a lawnmower.

"The fire is hard to visualize because it is so large," state Assemblyman William Campbell said after flying over the blaze. "It is 10 to 12 miles deep. It is in terrain that runs from the low foothills up into heavy timber. If the fire gets into the wilderness area up there, it will burn for two weeks because the area is very inaccessible."

The blaze was licking into the Yolla Bolly Wilderness area Tuesday. With no access roads for bulldozers or fire trucks, firemen were forced to try to hack out a fireline with picks and shovels in their attempt to save the vast region of scenic timberland.

Smaller fires shot up in nearly all sections of the state, meanwhile. Officials estimated that 50 to 75 fires were fought on Tuesday alone, including ones in Yosemite National Park, Kings Canyon National Park and the Plumas National Forest.

"Separate fires keep starting everywhere," said CDF Information Officer Dale Wierman, "and we have to fight them all. We keep having to rob crews from the big ones to keep the small ones from getting big."

"We have reached a crisis state in California where we are two months ahead of the usual fire season," said Campbell.

Some shakes over snakes

An Upland tow truck operator stored a drunk driving suspect's car Tuesday night after an arrest made in Claremont, not knowing that inside the auto was a bucket containing four live rattlesnakes.

"I didn't like that at all," said Paul Amers of A & M Towing after learning the snakes were inside the car in a covered bucket. "I was in that car, taking it out of gear. What if the bucket had fallen over?"

Claremont police didn't learn of the snakes until quite a while after they had arrested Kenneth Chapman, 20, of Pasadena. He was stopped at Indian Hill Boulevard south of Arrow Highway by officers who had followed him from First Street.

"What about my animals?" he asked an officer making a check of the jail. When asked what animals he was talking about he said he had four rattlesnakes in a bucket inside his car. Police quickly telephoned Amers with the information, but that was early this morning.

Amers said that Chapman arrived at 8:30 to get the car and there was a bucket containing snakes inside the car.

Police said Chapman, who is scheduled for arraignment in Pomona Municipal Court July 20, had been visiting friends in the area when he was stopped.

Bitter struggle on teacher lottery

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An attempt to prevent the Los Angeles Unified School District from using a lottery to fully integrate its teachers has become bogged down in a bitter struggle in the Senate.

With an unexpectedly strong show of opposition, the upper house refused Tuesday to send the measure by Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

But Robbins said he would ask for another vote this afternoon.

A sidelight in the struggle is the fact that Brown's sister, Kathleen Brown Rice, sits on the Los Angeles school board, which drew up the lottery system.

Some lawmakers have said that the bill is running into trouble because Brown doesn't want to become involved in the dispute. But the governor's top aide, Gray Davis, said Brown has not lobbied against the measure.

Tuesday's 11-14 roll call was 10 votes short of 21 needed to approve Assembly amendments to the bill. Several senators were absent, however.

The action came after a sometimes-bitter debate in which critics said the bill would fuel discord in Los Angeles schools. At one point, a black senator accused Robbins of sounding like George Wallace.

"I have heard George Wallace saying that," Sen. Nate Holden said after reading a section of a commentary on the lottery system that Robbins had read on a Los Angeles television station.

"I am a little bit disgusted about the whole thing," added Holden, D-Culver City. "I think it (the bill) is absolutely wrong. I would never introduce any legislation that would divide us."

In the commentary, Robbins urged Los Angeles parents to "get mad, protect your son or daughter, write to your assemblyman."

Other bill critics said a lottery was the most impartial way to transfer teachers. They also said the bill would be a blow against "local control" and would take away a useful integration tool.

Robbins, regarded as a possible candidate in next year's Los Angeles mayor's race, said the bill would not prevent the district from integrating teachers but would stop it from using a system based on "random chance."

With a lottery, teachers would be transferred "without regard to years of service, educational qualifications or place of residence," he said.

The bill would prevent any California school district, after Jan. 1, from using a lottery to choose teachers to be transferred.

The first part of the integration program is scheduled to go into effect this fall, and the district was required to submit a teacher integration plan to federal officials by today.

If his bill becomes law, the district would have to drop the lottery plan next year, Robbins said. Or school officials could decide to drop the lottery program this year and follow another course, he added.

He said the district would not lose any federal aid if it submitted an alternate plan after first filing the lottery program.

The bill originally would have taken effect immediately — on an emergency clause — if signed by the governor, but it was amended in the Assembly to remove that provision after it ran into opposition.

Removing the urgency clause cut the votes needed to pass the bill from two-thirds to a simple majority.

The bill orginally cleared the Senate on a 28-3 vote. Some assemblymen have claimed that the bill is now in trouble because Brown doesn't want to deal with it because of his sister's involvement, Robbins said.

"It was the governor's sister who helped devise the plan," he added. "Everybody knows that."

But he added that he "honestly didn't know" the reason for the Senate's opposition to the measure.

Davis, Brown's top aide, said Brown has taken no public position on the bill and did not lobby for or against it in the legislature.

"If it passes, I am confident he will consult most of the interested parties before making a decision to sign or veto the bill," he said.

Laser research comes long way to make energy

LIVERMORE (AP) — On a former cattle ranch 50 miles east of San Francisco, researchers are attempting to harness fusion — the energy source of the sun and stars — for generating clean, inexhaustible energy on earth.

"We've got a long way to go, but we've already come a long way," laser fusion research chief John L. Emmett told reporters Tuesday during a tour of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

A key tool for the research, being conducted for the Energy Research and Development Administration, is the newly completed $3.5 million Argus laser generator.

Emmett said the Argus, a third generation laser generator covering space about the size of a football field, is capable of producing twice as much energy as all the power plants in the United States combined. Argus experiments began June 1.

A fourth-generation laser, called Shiva and 10 times as powerful as Argus, is under construction now at Livermore.

Dr. Roger E. Batzel, head of the laboratory which has a $202 million budget and 6,000 employes, said Lawrence scientists are studying both lasers and magnetic confinement as methods to create fusion.

The concept is that heat from the fusion — a continuing series of tiny thermonuclear explosions — would heat a fluid, creating steam to drive electrical generators. Batzel said it appears possible that an experimental laser fusion power generating system will be operating by the late 1980s.

"My opinion is that the solution to our long-range energy problems may well depend on the success of either or both of these methods."

"We've got to pursue both options now to be sure we have one that works around the turn of the century. It's beginning to look like both will work — although we can't be certain. If both work, each may have novel complementary applications."

Emmett said advantages over present-day nuclear power plants include that fusion burns cleanly with no radioactive waste, core cooling hazards are not a problem, and the fuel is heavy hydrogen — almost inexhaustible on earth.

CHIP OFF THE OLD DOCK

A ship is docked at Port of Sacramento Tuesday as several mountains of wood chips burn. Cause of the fire is under investigation. The wood chips sit in huge piles awaiting shipment to Japan where they are processed for wrapping paper, officials said.

Indicted in baby deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A doctor, his wife and his son have been charged with multiple murder in the deaths of babies delivered at the doctor's cut-rate medical clinics.

A Los Angeles County grand jury returned an indictment Tuesday charging Dr. Joseph Emory, 55, with 17 counts of murder. He was convicted of second-degree murder 16 years ago.

The indictment also named six other persons, including Emory's wife, Harriet, 51, who is accused of 16 murders, and their son, Alan, accused of nine.

Others charged were Joseph Vargas, William Leonard, Irene Barcenas, Anna Whitacre, Aurora Silva and Maria Banda, all associated with Emory's clinics.

Emory lost his osteopath's license after a 1960 second-degree murder conviction in the death of a woman who had undergone an abortion. The license later was reinstated.

In the latest indictment, authorities said the babies died during delivery or within a few days after birth at Emory-operated clinics, which they said were not licensed for that purpose. They also said that, except for Emory, none of the clinics' employes was licensed.

Besides the murder charges, the indictment charges conspiracy to commit acts harmful to the public welfare and child endangerment.

Everything thrown into fire battles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An army of weary firefighters and an odd assortment of equipment — including spyplanes, helicopters and antifirebombers — are being thrown into the battle against an epidemic of timber and grassland fires around California.

Everything, from U2 reconnaissance planes with infrared film for locating hot spots to plain old picks and shovels, is being used to battle the estimated 50 to 75 blazes which were reported burning throughout the state Tuesday.

Fire engines were flown from Southern California to Red Bluff by California National Guard aircraft to help fight the huge blaze there which has consumed 60,000 acres and is still uncontained.

U2s, helicopters, C130 cargo planes, air tankers, troop carriers and countless fire engines and bulldozers have been thrown into the battle to stop the fire which broke out Sunday afternoon.

Firefighters were ferried to the front lines by boat at another fire in Tuolumne County. That fire, which burned 5,600 acres, was contained Tuesday evening, officials said.

Much of the equipment — especially bulldozers — has been rented from private firms, according to officials. The National Guard and local fire departments also have contributed to the huge armada of firefighting equipment.

But the most hard-sought commodity has been the crews. According to a spokesman of the California Division of Forestry, firefighters from several states are on the lines.

Crews are constantly being shuffled from fire to fire. Fresh men are becoming as scarce as fires are plentiful.

When two hand crews were sent to take on a fire in Northern California Tuesday, CDF spokesman said: "They may need more up there, but that's all they are going to get. We're short-handed everywhere.

"We keep having to rob crews from the big ones (fires) to keep the small ones from getting big."

The strain of the war firefighters have been waging against various blazes for the past month has started to tell, according to another CDF spokesman.

Information officer Harry Harp said even though the fire crews are getting regular rest periods, they are being "run ragged."

"We can't expect as much out of them anymore," he said. "We saw some federal firefighters taking a break Tuesday, and anytime you see hotshots like that — real go-getters — sitting along the road resting, you know they've had it."

Two summer camps for boys offered

Two mountain summer camps for boys 8 to 12 will be offered in July through a special program sponsored by the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department and the Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts.

The camps will be held July 19-21, and July 21-23 at the Holcolm Valley Scout Ranch near Big Bear Lake.

For a cost of only $9.50 per boy, each youth will be able to attend the three days of camp including transportation, meals, lodging, insurance, scout membership, and a year's subscription to "Boy's Life" magazine.

A maximum of 150 boys can attend each session of the camp. Registration will begin Thursday at Palomares, Washington, Westmont, and Kennedy Parks, the Parks and Recreation Office at Pomona City Hall, Lorberr Junior High School in Diamond Bar and Old Baldy Council office in Claremont.

For additional information, persons may call 626-3551 or 620-2321.

California Supreme Court ruling

Can't back out of marriage pact

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court has ruled that a woman could not back out of a "marriage contract" she signed before the wedding.

Former schoolteacher Betty Johnson had asked the court to strike down the property agreement she signed June 11, 1964, with engineer James Dawley, two days before their wedding.

According to the court, the woman discovered she was pregnant late in May of 1964, wanted to avoid possibly losing her job because of having an illegitimate child, and reached agreement with her boyfriend on a temporary marriage.

A baby girl was born in January of 1965 and Mrs. Dawley later resumed work. The couple continued to live together until July of 1972. In April of 1973 he filed for divorce.

Relying on the premarital agreement, the Santa Clara County Superior Court found there was no community property subject to division and awarded Dawley all property purchased with his separate income.

The woman appealed, claiming the premarital agreement was invalid because it violated public policy to foster and protect marriage.

The court reaffirmed the state rule that validity of such an agreement "does not depend upon whether parties contemplated a lifelong marriage."

The decision said the pact providing the parties will hold their earnings as separate property "does not offend public policy."

"Betty can succeed in overturning the trial court's order enforcing the agreement only if she can show that the terms of the agreements promote or encourage the dissolution of their marriage," said the court. "An examination ... however, reveals no provision which on its face might promote or encourage dissolution."

The court noted that in the past, wealthy persons often used such agreements when they feared they were being married for their money.

But it said in recent years, an increasing number of couples have made such premarital agreements "in order to structure their legal relationship in a manner more suited to their needs and values.

"Neither the reordering of property rights to fit the needs and desires of the couple, nor realistic planning that takes account of the possiblity of dissolution, offends the public policy favoring and protecting marriage," said the court. "It is only when the terms of an agreement go further — when they promote and encourage dissolution, and thereby threaten the induce the destruction of a marriage that might otherwise endure — that such terms offend public policy."

Officer to answer charge in shooting of private detective

A Los Angeles policeman has been ordered into Pomona Superior Court to answer the charge of assault with a deadly weapon in the wounding May 10 of a private detective.

He is Victor Lee Denham, 30, of Walnut, a veteran of eight years on the Los Angeles Police Department.

Denham was arrested shortly after Robert Lee Petrasich, 26, a Monterey Park private detective, was shot at 19381 Springport St., Rowland Heights, the residence of Sandra Broussard, 26-year-old girlfriend of the policeman. Petrasich was wounded in his lower chest and for a time was confined at County-USC Medical Center. The woman was not injured.

Denham fled to his apartment after the shooting and was arrested there by sheriff's deputies accompanied by his supervisor from LAPD, investigators said.

The suspect was bound over at his preliminary hearing in Citrus Municipal court in West Covina. Commissioner David Baxley scheduled his arraignment in the Pomona court for July 12. He is free on $3,000 bail.

She shoots self in foot

A Pomona woman told police Monday that she wounded herself in one foot when a pistol belonging to her boy friend discharged as she was attempting to unload it.

The victim, Bobbie Lee Demison, 24, went to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment but left, Pomona police said. She later appeared at Doctors Hospital in Montclair where she was referred to a foot specialist, they reported.

The shooting occurred at Ralph Welch Park, the victim said. Police said she refused to identify the gun's owner.

Pomona oldtimers sought for book on Centennial history

The Pomona Bicentennial Committee is looking for stories about longtime residents of the city for inclusion in its book "Pomona: A Centennial History," which is to be published in August.

The committee would like to contact families that have had three or more generations attend Pomona high schools; prominent persons born in Pomona; and people who went to high school here more than 20 years ago and are still active in local businesses.

Persons are asked to contact Marsha Warren at 622-3634 or Nancy McCracken at 622-3112 as soon as possible.

The book is scheduled for release on Aug. 8. Prepublication price is $10 through members of the Bicentennial Committee or by contacting Tony Navarro at 620-2385.

91 years' service, 5 school district workers to retire

Five Claremont Unified School District employes with a combined 91 years in service will retire today.

The five were honored by the Claremont school board and each received a certificate of appreciation.

Miss Ingrid Peterson, with the district since 1954, has taught at Sycamore, El Roble, and Claremont High.

Since 1963 she has taught art, and expects to continue her creative art work professionally. She will teach part-time at Citrus College.

Mrs. Madge Kamm is a 20-year veteran, and has taught grade three at Vista, grades three through six at Sycamore, and since 1965 instructed reading and music at Chaparral.

Planning to travel extensively after putting in 17 years with the school district is Mrs. Hazel Hinman who taught at Condit from 1959 to 1963, was district psychometrist from 1963-1966, and became district psychologist in 1966.

A teacher who has spent all her district time at El Roble Intermediate School is Mrs. Lois Collins, who taught reading from 1957 to 1964, business since that time, and was department chairman from 1967-1969.

Mrs. Collins said she and her husband Milton have bought a mobile home at Irvine.

A teacher who has spent all of her 15 years with the district at Mountain View School is Mrs. Evelyn Mauer. She has taught grades one, two, and three, and learning assistance since 1967.

She said that she and her husband Robert plan moving to the beach.

61 Americans physically abused in Mexican jails, U.S. claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixty-one Americans arrested in Mexico this year have been physically abused, some with cattle prods, the State Department says.

Deputy Assistant Secretary William H. Luers said Tuesday that the State Department has been unable to obtain an end to the mistreatment of the American prisoners.

He said the situation was a "serious problem" complicated by Mexico's sensitivity about U.S. criticisms of Mexican jails.

"Mexico's very proximity and involvement with the United States makes her government officials particularly sensitive to indications of U.S. encroachment on Mexican sovereignty and independence."

As of June 1, 603 Americans were confined in Mexican jails, including 490 arrested on drug related charges, according to Leonard Walentynowicz, administrator of the State Department's bureau of security and consular affairs.

The number has risen since the start of the year. Between Jan. 1 and June 27, 334 Americans were arrested in Mexico and 249 were released from Mexican jails, Walentynowicz said.

The 334 include the 61 who were physically abused, he said.

Luers and Walentynowicz testified before the House International Relations subcommittee on international political and military affairs, which has been pressuring the State Department to use its influence with Mexico to improve conditions in the prisons and the treatment of the Americans held there.

"Neither Mexican concern for human rights nor our vigorous protests have put an end to physical abuse of arrestees during interrogation," said Luers, who directs the department's bureau of inter-American affairs. "We also remain dissatisfied with the fact that many of our citizens imprisoned in Mexico continue to exist in deplorable conditions."

Congressional investigators have reported that U.S. citizens in the Mexican jails have been beaten and subjected to other forms of torture, and have been exploited by their Mexican lawyers. Many of these reports eventually were confirmed by the State Department.

When Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger visited Mexico in early June, he spoke with Mexican leaders about the jail problems. Discussions focused on the possibility of reaching an agreement to allow U.S. citizens arrested and convicted in Mexico to serve their sentences in the United States, and Mexicans arrested and convicted here to serve their sentences in Mexico.

Luers said State Department staff members are engaged in preliminary work on such an agreement but that no negotiations are underway.

President's signature needed for tax measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's signature on legislation rushed through Congress would prevent payroll tax witholding rates from increasing at midnight tonight.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford will decide today whether to sign the bill, but there was no indication the President would allow withholding rates to increase.

Ford's signature would protect workers from a $3-$6 increase in weekly withholding from their paychecks. The freeze would remain in effect through Sept. 1, giving Congress more time to complete action on a long-range, catch-all tax revision measure.

Without Ford's signature, withholding rates would increase when tax cuts enacted last year expire at midnight tonight. The Senate passed the stopgap freeze on withholding rates Monday, and the House followed suit with unanimous approval on Tuesday.

The Senate, meanwhile, continues debate on the over-all tax revision bill. On the agenda today was an amendment expected to pass easily that would impose tax withholding on income from interest and dividend in the same way that taxes are deducted weekly from employes' pay checks.

Such a system would catch millions of dollars worth of taxes that are lost when recipients of interest and dividends fail to report such income, experts say.

If the tax cuts enacted last year were allowed to expire, it would mean a $445-per-year tax increase for a four-member family earning $6,000 a year. The yearly tax hike for a typical four-member family earning $15,000 or a single person making $25,000 would be $180. A couple with no children and earning $10,000 would face a $204 tax increase.

The multibillion-dollar tax-revision bill being debated in the Senate would extend the tax cuts, at least until July 1, 1977, with strong indications they may be made permanent. The complexity of the bill made it impossible for Congress to pass it by tonight, thus necessitating the two month extension of existing withholding rates.

The big bill includes more than 200 different tax provisions, ranging from a crackdown on tax shelters used by wealthy investors to a liberalized tax credit for child-care expenses of working parents.

Most of the two weeks the full Senate has spent on the bill has been used by liberals in mainly unsuccessful efforts to reduce or eliminate tax benefits for wealthy investors or business.

These efforts, which the liberals call tax reform, have been resisted by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, and a majority of the Senate.

Typical of the liberal efforts were a series of votes Tuesday night in which the Senate refused to reduce a tax advantage for owners of oil and gas wells and to repeal special tax treatment accorded corporations that do business abroad.

Sen. William Hathaway, D-Maine, was defeated 57 to 33 in his bid to deny owners of oil and gas wells a lower tax rate when they sell the wells if they had previously taken advantage of a quick tax writeoff when the wells were developed.

This amendment, which would have saved the government $5 million a year, was attacked by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., as a heavy burden that could destroy some independent petroleum producers, who find most of the nation's new oil and gas deposits.

Also defeated, 47 to 43, was an amendment by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., that would have repealed the right of U.S. firms to defer paying taxes on income earned by their foreign subsidiaries until the money is returned to the United States as dividends.

The tax-deferral provision, long under attack by labor unions, was described by Hartke as "a strong incentive for U.S. companies to locate plants abroad," causing a loss of American jobs capital and tax revenues.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., called those claims "poppycock" and denied that U.S. firms set up operations in foreign countries to find lower taxes and lower wages.

County mayor plan on ballot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County voters will be able to turn thumbs up or down on whether they want a county mayor and nine supervisors instead of the present five.

The county Board of Supervisors took final action Tuesday on ordinances which will put the two charter amendments on the November ballot.

Supervisor James Hayes was absent from the votes on both ordinances.

The four remaining supervisors voted unanimously to put the possible creation of a county mayor position into voters' hands. Under the plan, the elected chief exective would take over the supervisors' administrative duties.

With only Supervisor Peter Schabarum dissenting, Supervisors Ed Edelman, Kenneth Hahn and Baxter Ward voted to iet county residents decide if they want four more supervisors on the five-member board.

Viking scientists study Mars surface

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Like students cramming for a final exam, Viking scientists are studying 18 to 20 hours a day in an effort to understand the strange ups and downs of Mars' surface.

They will know their grade when the Viking unmanned laboratory touches down safely — or else is dashed against an unforeseen cliff — on one of three sites being studied.

With the original landing place currently considered too hazardous, the space craft took pictures Tuesday of an area referred to as the Northwest site that is just beginning to be explored.

Depending on what they see, the scientists will decide on Thursday whether that site looks like the best bet or whether they should focus on an alternative site halfway around the planet.

Dr. Harold Masursky said the northwest site — so-called because of its direction from the original landing point — appeared in the latest pictures to be an ancient basin where water had once gathered. Masursky believes that at one time in the past, massive flood waters, perhaps from the melting of ice beneath the surface, cut large channels that flowed down from the original landing site into the basin.

He said the area was not as dramatically etched by ancient torrents that seemed to have made the higher plateau of the original site too rough for a safe landing. The northwest site is, in effect, downstream of the first site, so the entire surface is now dry.

"The water must have been much lower and much sparser here" at the Northwest site or Chryse Phoenicia, said Masursky. "We're moving in this direction because we think we're getting farther downstream (from the original site), and we think this is a very strong indication that we are moving out of the area that has been heavily flooded and heavily modified."

The planned July 4 landing of the Viking 1 automated laboratory was postponed last weekend because of the suprisingly rough terrain in the proposed touchdown area. But no one was prepared to say Tuesday that the northwest site was definitely an improvement, although Masursky said some of the features in the new area may have been softened by deposits of wind-blown sand.

It may be that neither Chryse Phoenicia nor the distant alternate site, designated A2, will be used in the end. The original landing site, called A1, may be chosen if neither of the other sites appears clearly safer.

The landing-site scientists, mainly geologists, are using every clue they can find to guess what the surface will look like when the lander arrives. Viking officials said their minds were still open on where to put the 7-by-10-foot lander down.

"At this point, I am considering anything I can find that looks like a landing site," said project manager Jim Martin.

For the northwest site, Viking would release its lander unit for a touchdown attempt July 22. The landing would come on July 21 if a decision is made to try the A2 site, also called Tritonis Lacus.

Officials at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the Viking continued to work well. Its sister ship, Viking II, is to arrive near the planet in August and to land Sept. 4.

Brown again heads Joint Chiefs of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. George S. Brown has won approval of the Senate Armed Services Committee for a second term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff after reiterating his belief that American Jews assert undue influence on Congress.

The vote Tuesday was 13 to 2.

Opposing reconfirmation of the Air Force general are two senators who called for his resignation in November 1974 for saying that Jews own the banks and newspapers and exert too much influence on Congress on behalf of Israel.

Brown acknowledged under committee questioning Monday that "in all candor" he still believed the Jewish community in the United States constitutes a powerful lobby, but said he "never implied anything sinister, wrong or illegal."

Recalling that Brown was rebuked by President Ford for his 1974 remarks at Duke University, Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., said Brown's responses Monday "clearly indicate no substantive change in his attitudes."

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said Brown's remarks about the Jewish lobby "was not a big factor" in the committee's deliberation after questioning Brown for another two hours Tuesday.

"He has served two years," Stennis said. "We don't have to guess what type of officer he will be. We pretty well know."

Taft said Brown's remarks about the Jewish lobby "jeopardizes his ability to participate in national decisions relating to the Middle East."

Motorcyclist hits dog; he's hurt, dog dies

An Ontario man suffered cuts and bruises Tuesday when his motorcycle struck a dog near Chino.

Andrew Scott Rynsburger, 18, 1785 Edison Ave., was riding north on Cypress Avenue when a sheep dog suddenly bolted across the roadway, said highway patrolmen. The accident occurred near Edison Avenue.

The motorcycle ran directly over the animal, causing the driver to fall onto the roadway. The dog was killed.

Rynsburger was treated at Chino General Hospital for cuts and bruises to his arm, back, side and leg. He was later released.

Truck blaze may be arson

Fire of suspicious nature Tuesday heavily damaged a van truck parked at the curb by owner Bill Marino of 1324 Singingwood Ave., Pomona.

Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said loss estimates were $2,000 to the vehicle and $1,000 to contents. Carpet sample cases and clothing inside the van were destroyed, Fowlkes said.

Marino told firemen he had parked the van at his home at 10 p.m. with the windows down. He said he heard no noise outside.

Fowlkes said the fire had been set on the driver's seat and flames gutted the interior. An arson investigation is underway.

Offshore oil drilling starts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first exploration for oil and natural gas in federal offshore areas leased last December was to begin today in a site six miles off Los Angeles Harbor, a Shell Oil Co. spokesman says.

Federal officials said the company moved a 344-foot floating drilling rig, the Ocean Prospector, operated by Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. of New Orleans, to the site late Tuesday night.

The rig will be submerged 70 feet when drilling begins at the site, which is 650 feet below the surface.

The Shell spokesman said about six wells would be drilled in the new lease area.

Greasy-handed man robs Ontario bank of $1,869

A greasy-handed man with a bad comlexion is being sought by Ontario police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation in connection with a $1,869 robbery of the First National Bank branch at 1322 E. Fourth St. Tuesday afternoon.

The robber, according to Ontario police, entered the bank about 1:30 p.m. and stood in line in front of teller Janet Sevilla. When he approached the teller's cage he handed the woman a note saying he had a gun in his waistband and would use it unless she filled a dark shaving kit he handed her.

The teller hesitated for a moment and the robber verbally threatened her with harm unless she did as he said. Mrs. Sevilla complied, filling the robber's shaving kit with small and large denomination bills, police said.

He told her, "You better give me a minute," and walked out of the bank.

The robber, wearing a floppy green fatigue hat and a long curly black wig, ran across Grove Avenue, entered the Tender Trap Lounge with the wig in his hand and asked the bartender if there was a back door.

The bartender and customers at the bar said the man walked out the back door and disappeared.

Another young witness told police that the robber was joined by another man described as a white, about 40, 190 pounds wearing an orange and white shirt and blue Levis in an alcove towards the rear of the Tender Trap.

Police made a store to store search of the area, assisted by the San Bernardino County sheriff's helicopter but were unable to locate the suspects.

Police said in their search of the area they recovered the green hat believed worn by the robber and found a door to several upstairs offices above the Tender Trap pried open. Fresh footprints were found in the upstairs offices but no suspects.

One officer canvassing the area said that the robbery "was extremely well-planned." The robber or robbers managed to elude police units that arrived within two minutes of the alarm.

The robbery was the third at the First National Bank branch in the past five years. All four of the previous robbers have been apprehended by police and FBI agents and are now in prison.

The bank robbery investigation was turned over to the FBI as bank robbery is a federal offense.

Drug robbery

A POMONA pharmacist was tied up by two men who robbed Pomona Center Drug, 3294 N. Garey Ave., of a small amount of cash and all the store's drugs, police reported.

The victim, Justin J. Venetucci, 51, said he was working in the pharmacy department Monday night when he was confronted by one man at the counter and another who entered the enclosure through the door and crouched on the floor so he would not be seen by other employes. The latter man showed a pistol.

The men demanded all the drugs and forced Venetucci to place them in a paper sack. Then they took money from the cash register and ordered the victim to lie on the floor while they tied him up with a piece of electrical cord.

Among the drugs taken was Dexedrine and Demerol.

The gunman was white, 20 to 25, 5 feet 9 weighing 150 pounds. He wore a blue, cloth cap, blue shirt and denim trousers.

The pair fled without four other store employees being aware that a robbery had occurred.

Couple robbed

UPLAND police this morning are searching for two youths armed with nickle plated pistols who forced their way into an elderly couple's home at 430 Central Ave., held them at gunpoint for a moment and fled, taking nothing.

Mrs. Ila Foote called police about 12:30 p.m. to report the incident. Mrs. Foote said the two youths confronted them with guns and ordered her husband G. C. Foote, 94, to lie on the floor. The youths apparently became frightened and fled out the back door taking nothing of the Footes, police said.

The Footes could only describe the youths as being in their late teens. One about 6 feet tall with shoulder length hair and a blue shirt and the other of medium build and shorter than the other.

Store robbery

A man entered Lou's Liquor Store at 9666 Central Ave., in MONTCLAIR Tuesday night, pushed a gun in the clerk's stomach, and demanded he hand over the cash from the register and safe.

The gunman, according to police took a "large amount" of money from the safe and register pushed the clerk into a back room and fled on foot.

The clerk, unidentified by police, described the gunman as a white, 25 to 27, 5 feet 10, 175 pounds with reddish brown shoulder length hair and a bushy mustache. He held a small caliber snub-nosed revolver and wore a brown shirt and dark pants.

Christians gaining in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Christians appeared to be gaining today in the fierce battle for two Palestinian refugee camps on the eastern side of Beirut.

The right-wing Christians claimed Tuesday night that their militiamen had captured the administrative headquarters of the Jisr el-Basha camp after eight days of bitter fighting and were closing in on the neighboring Tal Zaatar camp.

The Palestinians admitted that the Christians had taken "a small part" of Jisr el-Basha. They said they had launched an attack on Ein Rummanneh, a densely populated Christian area two miles north of Tal Zaatar, and would "storm the whole of it unless rightist attacks on Jisr el-Basha and Tal Zaatar stop."

Tall ships honored

Newport society throws a bash

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — In the imitation palace where "The Great Gatsby" was filmed, Newport society threw a black tie bash to honor the tall sailing ships in its harbor. It was one splashy anachronism saluting another.

And with 1,200 attending — political figures and sailing officers as well as bluebloods — it ranked as one of the biggest parties here in years.

Barclay Warburton III, principal organizer of the tall ships events here, showed up in formal dress, his lapels bearing the crest of the Philadelphia Corinthian Yacht Club.

Capt. Hans von Stackelberg, master of the West German bark Gorch Fock, did an energetic Charleston beneath the ballroom's cyrstal chandeliers.

Crown Prince Harald of Norway and his Princess Sonja were there, as was the British ambassador, Sir Peter Ramsbotham, and Lady Ramsbotham, John Nicholas Brown of the family that founded Brown University, and Mrs. Brown. But Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis, who was on the organizing committee, was in England for the funeral of her sister's former husband, Stanislas Radziwill.

Men from the 230-year-old Artillary Company of Newport, resplendent in plumed cocked hats and 18th Century uniforms, served as ushers.

The setting Tuesday night was Rosecliffe, an ornate 75-year-old, 40-room, terra cotta mansion, modeled after the Petit Trianon, one of the buildings at Versailles. It is said to be the place where Cole Porter was inspired to write "Night and Day."

It is also one of 20 such ornate mansions which served as the heart of the summer colony here in the days when the superwealthy could keep up with each other. Today, however, rising taxes and inflation have put virtually all of the houses into the hands of institutions. Rosecliffe and five others are owned by the Newport Preservation Society and most of the time are opened to tourists.

The ball, with tickets priced at $80 each, was to benefit the tall ships organization, which this week has turned Newport into a spectacle of tall masts and spars, sailors and tourists, as a fleet of classic sailing ships prepares to sail for New York Thursday and a Bicentennial parade of sail there July 4.

Throughout the city, there were parties of every degree Tuesday, from formal receptions on the decks of square riggers to the more simple celebration of an Argentine sailor walking down the waterfront with a girl on one arm and a bottle in his free hand, joyfully intoning, "U.S.A., U.S.A."

At Rosecliffe, it was different. Great sprigs of flowers adorned the veranda. Pink striped tents surrounded the fountain, guarded by statutes of cherubs, where a famous Gatsby party scene was filmed. The fountain was circled with the flags of the nations taking part in the tall ships event.

At one point, Capt. von Stackelberg pronounced the bash, "a typical warm party — and wealthy."

Owners get license bite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county Board of Supervisors is putting the bite on dog owners again.

On Tuesday, the board voted to raise license fees for unaltered dogs from $7 to $10.

The fee for spayed or neutered dogs will, however, remain $3.50.

Supervisor chairman Baxter Ward said the increase was necessary because of the current fiscal crunch.

Six awards won on Youth Safety Run

Valley competitors won six awards in the recent Youth Safety Run to Yosemite National Park, the sponsoring Police Advisory Council for Car Clubs has announced.

The winners, including one all-girl crew from Ontario, accounted for three observer awards and three class titles — a pair in the compact division and one in the intermediate.

Approximately 150 young men and women competed in the three-day, 800-mile round trip. There were 30 valley residents among them.

The purpose of this year's 23rd annual edition was to instill safe driving habits in young people, to promote a better relationship between them and law enforcement officers and to determine the economy of today's new cars, the sponsoring PACCC said.

Those who won observer awards were Timothy Romero, 17, of the Pomona Police Department Explorer Scout program, and Craig Walters and Stephen Spurlock both La Verne Explorer Scouts.

The all-girl crew won the six-cylinder compact D class and consisted of driver Lorie Cole, 16, and co-driver Sherry Sullivan, 16. They drove a Starfire provided by Graydon Murphy Oldsmobile of Ontario which recorded 22.872 miles per gallon.

Another Ontario crew, driving a Cutlass also supplied by Graydon Murphy Oldsmobile of Ontario, won the intermediate G class for eight-cylinder cars with 18.187 miles per gallon. Jim Deaton, 17, was the driver and David Lee, 17, the co-driver. Both crews of the Ontario entries were members of the Ontario Police Department Explorer Scout program.

The third class won by valley residents was the compact Class F for eight-cylinder cars. The winning car was a Nova supplied by Chadbourne Chevrolet of Upland which got 19.994 miles per gallon. The driver was Anthony Byrnes and the co-driver was Dennis Hanon, both Upland Explorer Scouts.

The overall winner was a Chevrolet Chevelle driven by Reno, Nev., Explorer Scouts Ken Rederford and Mark Osloond. The vehicle recorded 40.658 miles per gallon per ton in a formula based on the car's weight.

DR. THOMAS MOORE of Upland recently completed a 150-hour block of post-graduate courses required for maintaining membership in the American Osteopathic Association.

The association, representing some 15,000 physicians nation-wide, requires its members to stay abreast of medical developments by acquiring 150 hours of continuing medical education over a three-year period.

The 1961 class of CLAREMONT HIGH SCHOOL will hold a 15-year reunion on July 24 at Griswold's Innin Claremont.

Persons with information about the whereabouts of class members are asked to write the reunion committee at P.O. Box 941, Claremont 91711.

Betty Howard of DIAMOND BAR is 1976-77 president of the Hope Country Chapter for the City of Hope succeeding Phil Schaarsmith.

The free, nonsectarian City of Hope in Duarte combats catastrophic diseases. Since no patient pays, support is derived through activities sponsored by auxiliary chapters.

Truckers who enjoy talking with young people and are enthusiastic about their careers are needed to serve as EXPLORER POST advisers, according to Gordon Brown, Exploring executive with Old Baldy Council, Claremont.

They should be adults who know about trucks and trucking, preferrably drivers, Brown said. They should expect to help organize a post and assist students in running its programs.

Anyone interested in serving as an adviser may contact Brown at 626-3551.

The AZUSA HIGH SCHOOL CLASS of 1966 will hold its 10-year reunion Aug. 28 at Griswold's in Claremont.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Karen Bullock Agronovitz at 213 331-2571, Sue Graham Rogers at 213 332-6497 or Pat Peterson Hawley at 213 334-2683.

The CALIFORNIA CHRISTMAS TREE GROWERS will hold a tree farm equipment fair in San Dimas Sept. 24-25 in conjunction with their convention in Anaheim.

Robert Sturrock of San Dimas is a member of the association's board of directors.

THE UPLAND RECREATION DEPARTMENT has discount coupons to Sea World available to the public.

The coupon, which is good for the entire family, is valid July 1 to 31. It offers savings of more than 25 per cent.

Coupons are available at the department office, 404 N. Second Ave., Upland.

DR. DAVID A. YOUNG has returned to Pomona and opened a new dental office.

The dentist's new office is at 1524 N. Orange Grove Ave. His previous address was 586 N. Main St. He moved his practice from the valley four years ago.

The first convention of the DESTROYER-ESCORT SAILORS ASSOCIATION, formed in 1975, will be held Aug. 26-28 in Orlando, Fla.

Purpose of the association is to preserve the remembrance of the ships and their crews, said chairman Frank R. Crawford of El Cajon.

More than 400 destroyer-escorts were built during World War II. They also were used in Korean and Vietnam wars. Their primary mission was anti-submarine warfare.

Former officers and crewmen interested in joining the association may contact Crawford by writing him at P.O. Box 1280, El Cajon 92022.

An 850-mile PACIFIC COAST BICENTENNIAL BICYCLE TRIP will be made in August by 22 students from the Don Bosco Technical Institute in Rosemead.

Teacher Jerry Wertz will be in charge.

The students will leave Los Angeles July 31 for Brookings, Ore., and begin peddling south on U.S. Highway 101 Aug. 2.

Stops are scheduled at Russian Gulch, Manchester State Beach, Sunset State Beach, Big Sur, San Simeon and Morrow Bay.

The students expect to return home Aug. 22.

THE CLASS OF 1966 from Pomona's Garey High School is planning a 10-year reunion Sept. 11 at Henri's Restaurant in Montclair.

Deadline for reservations is July 10. Price is $10 per person. Further information may be obtained by calling Alice Rodriguez Gomez at 626-3841, Connie Karns Martinez, 629-4672 or Terry Ortiz Ayala, 623-3994.

A Sunday afternoon feature of the show will be the parade of stallions. Susan Clark of La Habra will sponsor the trophies for each of the stallion owners.

The California Champion American Saddlebred Three-gaited Pleasure Horse will be selected.

Minerals

Arkansas, the leading state in the country in the production of bauxite, bromine and vanadium, had a mineral output in 1975 valued at $414.4 million, a record high, according to the Bureau of Mines.

Candidates' campaign costs aired

Forty-four candidates for City Council offices throughout the valley spent more than $40,000 on their campaigns last spring, figures compiled today indicated.

Candidates in seven cities spent an average of $909 in their bids for election. Of the 44 aspirants to offices, a total of 16 succeeded.

Three candidates in Claremont had no opposition, and spent less than $100 each.

All candidates for public offices must file statements of income and expenditures, according to provisions of the 1974 state Political Reform Act.

A compilation of those records show that the largest amount of money, $7,135, was spent in Chino, where nine aspirants sought two positions.

Walnut with its six candidates vying for three posts, spend the least, $1,398.

Under the law candidates who spend less than $200 do not have to give details and there were a total of nine candidates — three in La Verne, two in Chino and four in Walnut — using such short forms.

The records also showed that those who spent the most were not always the successful candidates. In 11 cases the biggest spenders failed at the polls.

In fact, Clyde E. Bartman who at $3,096 spent more money than any other candidate in the valley, failed to gain a seat on the San Dimas City Council.

In a bitter contest there, voters also unseated incumbents Keith Brogan, who spent $400, and Ray Miracle, who spent $323, and elected Terry Dipple who spent $1,748, and Phil Wax, who listed his expenses at $1,118.

In Upland, Councilman George Gibson, the second largest spender at $2,413, apparently managed his money well in unseating Mayor Abner Haldeman, who declared his expenditures at $1,847.

But Isabelle Contreras who spent $907, the most in the race for the council seat vacated by Gibson, did not fare that well. She lost her bid to William Bottin who spent $745.

Bottin also beat out Jerry L. Morris whose expenses ran $338, and Howard McGarry whose costs amounted to $243.

In Chino, Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilman Pete Garcia both spent more money than their opponents in retaining their positions.

McLeod reported spending $1,987 in turning back Robert Bertschinger who spent $732, Nick Medina, whose expenditures came to $322, and Henry Van Dyke, who reported $480 in expenses.

Garcia spent $1,904 in beating Russell Folds, $206, Louis Monsiavais, $370, and Richard Marlo and Kenneth Main each of whom reported spending less than $200.

In Ontario, one of the lowest amounts was spent by the top vote getter. But the biggest spender also made it to the City Council.

The most popular candidate, Homer Briggs, a retired school superinten-

BIDENTENNIAL MONUMENTS — Upland city workers raise one of four flagpoles being placed with a fountain and time capsule in the City Hall plaza as a Bicentennial project. Larry Dilley, kneeling, and Councilman John McCarthy, right, are members of the Bicentennial Committee planning dedication ceremonies Saturday at 4 p.m.

Four flags will be raised on newly installed 30-foot poles in the courtyard of Upland's City Hall during Saturday afternoon dedication ceremonies observing the nation's Bicentennial.

Representatives from Upland's sister cities in Mexico and Australia will join with state and federal officials in 4 p.m. ceremonies which include the dedication of a new fountain and the sealing of a time capsule.

The rites are being coordinated by the Upland Bicentennial Committee and are open to the public, according to Councilman John McCarthy and Larry Dilley, committee members.

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., will present a U.S. flag to city officials and State Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., will present the California flag.

Assemblyman William McVittie, R-62nd Dist., will place a resolution in the time capsule.

Sen. John Tunney has been invited to present the Bicentennial flag although his appearance has not yet been confirmed.

Representing Upland's sister city, Caborca, Mexico, will be Professor and Mrs. Herberto Hinojosa, who will give their nation's flag to city officials.

The Australian flag will be presented by Miss Enid Borchmann, representing the City Council of Mildura, Australia.

Refreshments will be served.

dent, spent $300 on his campaign. In contrast, Beecher Medlin said he spent $1,969 to get elected to the council. The third successful candidate, incumbent Faye M. Dastrup, listed $529.

Other candidates listed the following expenses: Joe Espinoza, $925; L. Harlan Lee, $1,184; Allen Kinnaman, $539; Gustavo Ramos, $699; Anthony Rizzo, $293, and Marie Sharp, $203.

Comparatively quiet campaigns in La Verne, Walnut and Montclair were reflected in the low expenses incurred by candidates there.

In Montclair, challenger Javier Lopez failed to unseat two incumbents even though his expenditure of $776 was higher than theirs. Councilman Paul Jones spent $750 and Councilman Tom McClure $256 to win re-election.

In La Verne, there was a somewhat more spirited contest but the results turned out the same. With no incumbents running for a council seats, Robert Neher, who spent $425, and Melvin Belcher whose costs came to $417, polled more votes than James Hayslip who spent $589. A fourth candidate, Robert Garcia, said he spent less than $200.

For the mayoral race, in which Mayor Mike M. Morales was opposed by write-in candidate Craig Walters, both candidates said they spent less than $200.

And in Walnut, Paul Williams, a newly elected councilman reported that most of the $529 he spent on the election came out of his own pocket. Charles Richardson, an unsuccessful contender, said he spent $473 of his own money in search of a post.

Four other candidates, including two winners, William Cotten and Joe Hahn, as well as challengers Paul Sackin and Joe Dyer, declared expenditures amounting to less than $200 in Walnut.

ROBERT ZUNDE

D.B. boy gains high scout honor

Robert Zunde, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Zunde of Diamond Bar, has attained scouting's highest rank, that of Eagle Scout.

It was conferred upon him recently during Court of Honor ceremonies held at the St. Denis Catholic Church in Diamond Bar by Boy Scout Troop 734.

Zunde is a senior at Ganesha High School in Pomona. He is studying architectural drafting and recently represented his school in drafting competition for VICA at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut.

Zunde began his scouting career as a Cub Scout in Illinois. He earned the Webelos Arrow of Light award and advanced into Boy Scouts. After moving to California he joined Troop 734. He has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, assistant senior patrol leader and scribe.

In 1973 he earned the Buckskin award.

Zunde worked with the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association circulating petitions to obtain bus transportation as his Eagle project.

Designed to promote downtown area

Businessmen want tax dropped

Downtown Pomona businessmen petitioned the Pomona City Council Monday night to eliminate a 13-year-old special business tax designed to promote the downtown sector.

The tax, which generates about $30,000 per year, is used to partially maintain the downtown parking lots and promote the area — generally under the direction of the Central Business District.

L. A. Shelton, a local attorney representing many of the downtown businessmen, told the council that the tax is no longer fair since fewer and fewer merchants are left to pay the needed assessment.

"The people are asking that the tax be withdrawn," said Shelton.

He added that the downtown merchants would be willing to leave the tax on the books if it could be suspended until such time it is again needed.

The problem that will confront the council in considering elimination of the tax will be finding alternative revenues for maintaining the parking lots in the downtown area.

Jack Booth, chairman of one of the Vehicle Parking Districts downtown, told the council he would not support the repeal of the tax until some guarantee is given the parking lots would be maintained.

"The parking lots are one of the best assets we have," said Booth.

On the advice of City Attorney Patrick Sampson, the council set a public hearing for July 26 to officially consider the request to repeal the tax.

Dance, costume contest planned in Diamond Bar

Diamond Bar Sertoma Club and Bicentennial Committee will sponsor a dance Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Costumes will be optional, said dance committee chairman Bob Wallor, but a contest, with judging in three categories, is planned for intermission to encourage costuming.

The dance will be built around a Bicentennial theme, with costume judging in California Heritage, American Revolution and Historical Personages categoriesallor said.

Music will be provided by "Atlantis," a group from the Claremont area.

Tickets are $3.50 each and are on sale at businesses in Diamond Bar, with club and committee members and may be purchased at the door.

Proceeds will benefit community youth activities, Wallor said, and underwrite cost of a Diamond Bar history to be published by the Bicentennial Committee.

Wallor is president of the Diamond Bar Sertoma Club. Serving with him on the dance committee are John McDonough and Fred Litle. Vicki Nelsen is in charge of planning and decorations.

House bill lifts lid on highway spending; veto threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defying threats of a presidential veto, the House has passed a $5.3-billion transportation appropriations bill that would lift the lid on spending from the highway trust fund.

The final vote was 376 to 21 on Monday. The amendment to lift the spending lid was approved 251 to 146.

The House defeated three other amendments aimed at preventing the British-French supersonic jet Concorde from landing at U.S. airports.

The removal of the ceiling on the highway trust fund might make possible the spending of $1 billion to $5 billion more from the fund than congressional planners originally contemplated, Budget Committee Chairman Brock Adams said.

But Adams, a Washington Democrat, said he expects efforts in the Senate to restore the ceiling.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, warned Congress in advance that he and Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. would recommend a veto if the bill reaches President Ford's desk without the ceiling.

The highway trust fund receives the revenues raised by the federal 4-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline sales. States receive allotments automatically if they meet federal matching fund requirements for road projects. These allotments are separate from the regular transportation appropriations.

The Appropriations Committee, with the backing of the Budget Committee, wrote into the bill ceilings on disbursements from the trust fund. An amendment by Rep. James J. Howard Jr., D-N.J., deleted them.

Adams said that without the limitations, it would be impossible to determine exactly how much will be spent from the trust funds in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Bicentennial celebration

Chino queen contest a highlight

Dedication of Chino's long-awaited Civic Center, a queen contest and a huge fireworks show will highlight the city's Bicentennial Celebration Saturday.

A memorial pancake breakfast for the families of two slain Chino church leaders, Ignacio Padilla and Manuela Cortez, will be the first of the day-long series of events. Breakfast is scheduled for first servings at 7 a.m. in the Community Building.

Local entertainment, including a new Mexican cowboy group called "Asociacion De Charros Aguas Calientes," will get underway at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center site, west of Central Avenue between D street and Chino Avenue.

The dedication of the 11-acre site will begin at 10 a.m. Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., State Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., Assemblyman William McVittie, D-65th Dist., Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino and Chino Mayor Bob McLeod are expected to participate.

The two-story county building housing the Municipal Court will be opened after the dedication. The new city hall and police station also will be dedicated.

Others expected to join in the dedication are Chino City Council members, San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, and the city-county Civic Center Authority.

Five finalists will vie for the title of Miss Chino starting at 11 a.m.

The finalists, chosen Monday from 11 original contestants, are Marie Berterretche, 20, a bank clerk; Lori Collins, 17, a Chino High student; Teresa Escobar, 19, a Chaffey College student; Lynette Lubak, 19, also a Chaffey student; and Laura Ormonde, 19, an Ontario High School June graduate.

The Miss Chino contest is being sponsored by the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Bicentennial festivities will shift to the Chino High School on Saturday afternoon, with the school grounds being available for picnics from 2 to 6 p.m.

The evening program starting at 7 p.m. will featurea large fireworks show at Chino High's football stadium. A performance by the 50-voice Pomona Valley Carousel Group will precede the fireworks display.

Prepaid tickets for the show will be $1 for children 12 and under and $1.50 for adults. Tickets at the gate will cost 50 cents more.

A traditional Independence Day parade around the football stadium will kick off the evening's events. Miss Chino will ride in the parade, sponsored by the chamber. It will also feature ROTC units from the high school, drill teams, Boy Scouts and other local organizations.

Claremont okays 5% pay hike for employes

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night approved five per cent salary increases for most of the city's 114 employes, with police receiving four per cent pay hikes, effective July 1.

The pay increases will total about $96,000 and are the result of negotiations between city representatives and employe groups.

The council also approved a tentative budget of $4,610,000 which City Manager Norman King said could be implemented without a tax increase.

"Tonight the council approved a balanced budget for 1976-77," King said, "with the tax rate staying at $2.54 (per $100 assessed valuation)."

In May the council was given a proposed budget which was $85,000 out of balance.

Increased assessed valuation will help bring it into balance, King said. He noted that the city's estimated projected balance for 1976-77 is only $9,550.

As to salary increases, Local 122 of Association of Federal, State, County and Municipal Employes settled for an across-the-board increase of five per cent for 44 employes who work in the Public Works, Parks and Sanitation divisions.

The city also agreed to a change in the grievance procedure to require that an immediate supervisor receiving an informal grievance shall respond within five days.

The Claremont Police Officers Association agreed to the following package:

—An across-the-board salary increase of four per cent for sworn police personnel and two per cent for communications officers.

—The pay range for the new police agent position (an intermediate level class with two years of experience as a police officer) will start at $1,171 per month with $1,428 tops. Agents working in the detective division will receive overtime if authorized.

—An additional $5.36 and $6.29 per month for single and family health insurance, respectively.

—Employes placed on call during regularly scheduled time off will be eligible for $8 per day if not called to report to court.

—An additional $5 per month will be paid in uniform allowance to agents working in the investigation section.

—A job-related physical fitness program that will be voluntary and covered by workers compensation will be developed by the city.

—The tuition reimbursement plan now in effect will not be changed during the next year.

Supervisory, confidential and other employes were given across-the-board five per cent salary hikes, effective July 1.

Effective Oct. 1 building custodian leadman, maintenance foreman, sanitation foreman, park leadman, maintenance craftsman leadman, and senior recreation leader will get an additional one per cent hike.

Management employes were granted five per cent increases, and increase in city-paid health insurance, and a $15 per month fringe benefit compensation, which an individual may apply either to a portion of city-paid health insurance or to deferred compensation.

Besides the basic raise, the City Council approved top-of-the-range increases of one per cent, effective Oct. 1 to the following positions: deputy city manager, director of public works, director of parks and recreation, director of community development and police chief. The top salary range of the human resources coordinator was increased two per cent.

The maximum salary for the assistant to the city manager was changed to $1,595 a month, which includes his present maximum plus the five per cent hike plus $50 a month. The job also now includes being supervisor over the civil defense coordinator.

The city manager's salary was hiked nine per cent from $27,775 to $30,500; the city treasurer from $2,772 to $2,920; and the city attorney from $10,000 to $11,000.

In addition to the $96,000 in salary hikes, the city must pay additional costs for retirement and workers compensation.

Such additional costs will total nearly $60,000.

In other actions the council approved an agreement to pay the Claremont Chamber and Convention Bureau $38,500 over the next fiscal year.

Drought hiking cost of water

California's two-year drought is forcing an increase in basic water costs in the San Gabriel Basin.

Water agencies in the Upper San Gabriel Valley Water Association, which includes the cities of La Verne and San Dimas, will have to begin purchasing considerably more imported water soon, according to Walker Hannon, president of the association.

The association represents some 70 members, including municipal water companies, mutual water companies, public utilities and other producers in the area which also takes in such cities as Alhambra, Azusa, Duarte, El Monte, Glendora, La Puente, South Pasadena, West Covina, Temple City and Whittier.

Increased expenses for the Upper San Gabriel Valley Water Association involve imported water and pumping costs.

"It is impossible to forecast at this time what the increase will mean to the average consumer in the San Gabriel Valley," Hannon said. "Communities in the area are serviced by many different agencies. Each agency calculates its water charges by different formulas. In some localities the increase may not be passed on to the consumer right away. In others, there may be a small percentage increase."

Most municipal water companies will have to have their rate increases approved by their local city councils, as would be the case in La Verne and San Dimas. Whether other cities in the valley will face such rate hikes isn't certain.

James Lundie, assistant manager of the City of Pomona's Water Department, reported that Pomona uses very little imported water at the present time. During the last year only one to two per cent of the water supply was imported. The majority of the local supply comes from local ground water in the Chino,Claremont Heights, Pomona and Spadra basins.

Lundie said the basins are presently in an overdraft status, but studies and adjudication have not yet been settled to determine solution to the problem. If the settlement required additional importing of water from outside sources, it could mean an increase to consumers here.

The adjudication is in the latest stages of negotiation, said Lundie, and hopefully will be settled within the near future.

Pomona post office offers special July 4 collectors' postmark

The Pomona main post office, 580 W. Monterey Ave., will offer a special service Sunday for those collectors who wish to obtain a July 4, 1976, postmark.

According to Postmaster Warren Lynch, the post office will be open from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Lynch said that commemorative stamps as well as stamped envelopes will be available.

No other services will be available except the sale of stamps and the hand cancellation.

A survey of other area post offices indicated that they will not be offering such a service July 4.

Board pays tribute to late school chief

The Ontario-Montclair school board paid tribute to Allan G. Smith, superintendent of the Chaffey Union High School District, who died of a heart attack Sunday.

"Mr. Smith was a man among men, loved by all in the community," said board President Richard Pearson. "He did a tremendous job for the community and touched everyone's life. He was tremendously influential." Board members observed a moment of silence in Mr. Smith's memory.

The principal action at the meeting was the second reading and adoption of revisions of 29 district policies covering such issues as employes holding elective office, age limits of certificated personnel, assignments and transfers, sabbatical, health and accidental leaves, substitute teaching and other items. None of the revisions offered major changes in district policy.

Supt. Jack Jones said, "We made these changes to sharpen the policies, to remove redundancies and to clarify them for the advent of collective bargaining."

The trustees also approved on second reading the deletion of 10 other policies touching on vacations, holidays, personal leave and other matters.

The board voted to recognize the California School Employes Association and its chapter 108 as the exclusive representative of the classified employes in relationships with the district, and named the Ontario-Montclair Teachers Association to similar status.

The board awarded a contract of $50,000 to M. R. Bracey Construction Co. of Ontario to seal the windows of Euclid School, Ontario and install air-conditioning and increased lighting. The move was made because the wooden-sash windows of the old school are deteriorating and the school lies in the traffic pattern of Ontario International Airport which makes soundproofing imperative.

The work will be done first on the south side of the school and continued in other areas as building fund budget permits.

Receives honor

Pomona resident Boyd Brake has been honored for his 30 years with Southern California Gas Co.

He currently is district distribution supervisor in Covina.

Brake was one of more than 400 honored recently for 30 or more years service with the utility.

Faces Chino city, schools

Heavy influx a problem

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Can the Chino Unified School District survive the influx of more housing tracts in the city without facing an overloading of students?

Increasing concern was voiced over that question at a joint meeting of the Chino City Council and Planning Commission Tuesday night.

One planning commissioner, Emil Torkar, claimed that he has received no information that there are problems with overloaded classrooms. "There has not been one single idea advanced that there is any problem in the schools," he said.

The vision of commissioners continually approving new subdivisions in the city with no thought to impact on the schools was indicated by Torkar.

"Schools apparently have reached capacity, and yet we approve tentative tract maps that are before us," Torkar declared. "They (city officials (have been telling us the schools could take care of it."

City and school district information on the schools' situation contradict each other, he noted. "I'm completely confused. The city and school district apparently have different statistics."

Torkar's comments followed a report by Schools Supt. Royce Lapp indicating the district may be facing a classroom shortage in the future.

Lapp said that generally the district has been "getting by" on enrollments, but in the past six to eight weeks "we've been having trouble."

He warned that in future unspecified periods, the district may have to put students in multipurpose rooms or go on double sessions.

If new elementary schools are completed, this would alleviate the problem, he said. There are some being planned, but they may not be built in time to counteract the growing influx of pupils from housing tracts.

Community Development Director Gale Carr said "We have not received any information from the schools saying there is a shortage of classrooms."

Torkar said the city should take some action to insure there would be no worsening impact on the schools, from the new tracts.

A tax on developers to provide money for schools was also discussed at the meeting, but no decision was reached by the two panels.

Three methods were advanced by Carr to pick up money from developers. One would provide $30,000 to the schools, another $100,000 and a third $200,000.

Councilmen and planners indicated that they could not move on the fee unless cooperation was achieved with the county and city of Ontario. Much of the school district lies in the county and some in Ontario.

The staff was directed to continue discussions with the schools and county on the tax proposal first advanced about a year ago.

Finalists for queen of fair

Five Southland coeds today were named as candidates for the title of queen of the Los Angeles County Fair.

With the preliminary judging completed, one of the coeds will be chosen queen the latter part of August, but her name will hot be announced until opening night of the Bicentennial edition of the fair Friday, Sept. 17.

She will be crowned by the reigning queen, Beth Redinius of Azusa Pacific College.

Selection from their respective colleges are the following:

— Teri Pepping, 21, a green-eyed, chestnut-haired beauty from Azusa Pacific College. The Whittier coed is majoring in education and student development.

— Pati Lynn Osborne of Covina, 19, a Cal Poly Pomona sophomore. An avid horseman, Pati's major is agriculture business management.

Band is city's finest asset

For many years one of Pomona's greatest cultural assets has been the Pomona Concert Band.

Organized in 1947 the band has maintained a high standard of excellence year after year, providing the community with a musical organization of which it can be most proud. Over the years the band has performed throughout the Southland, spreading goodwill not only for itself but for Pomona as well.

The band has always been blessed with topnotch instrumentalists, serious-minded musicians who take pride in making good music.

The man who has made the band what it is today is Stanton Selby, who started with the band 29 years ago as its first conductor and has been with it ever since. Selby is a superb bandmaster, a stickler for perfection, and authoritative in the selection of concert music.

When Pomona's Mr. Music Man raises his baton Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Ganesha Park Band Shell the band will be starting its 29th summer season of concerts under the stars.

We have seen the printed program for the 10-week series and it contains one of the finest collection of martial and light classical music ever arranged. We would expect no less from one of the finest bandmasters anywhere.

We salute the Pomona Concert Band and its conductor, and urge all residents of Pomona to avail themselves of a musical bonanza on Thursday evenings this summer.

Judge Carter

The passing of Federal Judge Oliver J. Carter removes from the scene one of California's truly great sons. It is, in a sense, unfortunate that his greatest fame was the result of a notorious trial involving a tragic happening in another great California family. For Carter will now be remembered by most as the judge who presided over the trial of Patty Hearst. A lifetime of achievement will be overshadowed by that one case.

It was, of course, fitting that Carter should be the judge for such a trial. For he brought to that difficult role 25 years of experience as a trial judge. But he brought far more than that. He brought unimpeachable integrity with an innate back country humor and wisdom, along with an overwhelming balance of fairness and self-deprecation.

Although born in San Francisco, he was reared in the backwoods of Shasta County in the town of Redding where his father, Jesse W. Carter, practiced law. He attended Stanford and graduated from Hastings College of Law to return to Redding and join his father's firm. Shortly thereafter his father was elected to the State Senate only to be named soon after to the State Supreme Court by Gov. Culbert L. Olson where he served until his death.

The appointment opened the door to a political career for Carter who, at 29, became the youngest state senator to serve up until that time. He was also one of the few legislators ever elected to directly succeed a father, family dynasties not being well received in this state's politics.

His election was to be a test of his mettle. Thrown into a forum where the average age was near 60, he was viewed as somewhat of an upstart, best seen and not heard. Another obstacle was that of being a Democrat in a house long dominated by Republicans. As such his views weren't likely to be welcomed regardless of his age.

But Carter, constrained though he was by age and party affiliation, was to develop fast, winning both the respect and friendship of his elders. For he had an affability that was hard to reject and when he did rise to speak his fairness, logic and sound expositions of the law earned him the attention of his peers. In the torrid battles which ensued in the late 1940's over the gasoline tax proposals to finance the freeway programs proposed by Sen. Randolph Collier, it was Carter who was chosen by the Senate as the mediator between opposing forces. While Collier gets the credit for launching California's modern highway system, it was Carter's equaniminity which made it possible, a fact duly recognized at the time by Gov. Earl Warren.

Because legislators were paid only $100 a month in those days, financial pressures forced Carter to retire from the Senate after two terms. He had planned to devote his full attention to his law practice but he was prevailed upon to take the chairmanship of the State Democratic Central Committee. It was the year of 1948 and President Truman was seeking election in his own right. Thomas Dewey had already been elected by the polls, the media and almost everyone else except the people. Carter had much to do with Truman carrying California and defeating Dewey.

As a result, Truman, who had intense loyalty for those who helped him, named Carter to the federal court.

Judge Carter served on the federal bench for 26 years and handled many important cases. But, like his contributions as a state senator, those decisions will be blotted from public memory by his last case. Fortunately, then, his conduct in that exemplified a lifetime of honor and ability.

Hurray for the helicopters

Dear Editor:

In response to J.E. Adams letter written to "THE PUBLIC FORUM" on June 23, 1976.

Mr. Adams or is it Mrs.? Why are you afraid of a helicopter flashing lights over your back yard? Do you have some thing to hide?

You stated that our city is not a slum and the families here are good and fine people. I agree, most of them are. But, I ask you, don't you ever read the newspapers about the crimes in our fair city? Apparently we have people living here who are not so fine and good. I've lived here over 30 years and can remember when I never locked my doors, "this use to be a lovely and safe town" and I emphasize on the word SAFE. Personally I would rather have a helicopter wake my children, instead of an intruder in my home. I feel very safe when I hear the helicopter flying over. I know the police are protecting our city.

You worry about it crashing into your home. What about the man flying that plane. He is risking his life for you and your family. You never said any thing in your letter about the chance they take. They have families and loved ones too.

You wrote that our "HELICOPTER ON PATROL" flying over our town declares to the world that we are a failure as free people. Let us not bury our heads in the sand or close our eyes trying to block out the crime around us. I tell you that being aware & taking preventive action is what its all about. Therefore I say "HURRAY" for the Helicopter and the Police for the fine job they do. It's too bad we don't and can't afford more of them.

Grateful for 'copters

Dear Editor:

I am glad someone lives where they feel safe and wished the helicopter did not invade their lives. Whenever I hear the 'copters I am very grateful for their protection. Day or night I am glad to hear them. They help track down criminals on their mischief bent. They perhaps have not had their house robbed and everything left in a mess after the owner was seen driving up.

Instead of complaining let's be thankful there is something being done to curtail the crime. Not long ago a friend was knocked down and her purse and everything in it was stolen. Later her car was found a total wreck. This happened in broad daylight in Pomona on a parking lot. I AM GLAD FOR THE 'COPTERS.

Finishing Don Bolles' story

WASHINGTON — Somebody wanted Don Bolles, investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, out of the way. He was blown up by a remote-control bomb, which had been attached by magnets to the bottom of his car.

Before he died 11 days later, Bolles gasped out the only clues to his murder. "Mafia . . . Emprise . . . They finally got me," he whispered. "John Adamson, find him."

The Phoenix police had no trouble finding John Harvey Adamson, a local dog track figure. He was booked last week for the murder. But the stocky, tough-talking hoodlum was merely the hit man. He had boasted, according to sworn testimony, that he would collect $10,000 for killing the reporter.

Who had put out the contract on Bolles? Was the Mafia behind the bombing? What was Bolles trying to say about Emprise? We sent one of our own investigative reporters, Larry Kraftowitz, to Phoenix to seek the answers.

It would be wrong, we decided, for the crusading Bolles to die in vain. Someone should finish the story he intended to write. Kraftowitz has now succeeded in retracing Bolles' moves up to the hour he stepped into his bomb-rigged car.

Bolles had written about the influx of hoodlums into the Phoenix area, about the growing influence of the crime syndicates. He had taken a special interest in Emprise Corp., a shadowy sports enterprise controlled by Buffalo, N.Y., operators.

Bolles had followed the twists and turns of Emprise operations in Arizona, where it dominated horse and dog racing. Emprise was convicted in federal courts of failure to disclose an interest in a Nevada casino. This led to some complex manipulations, with Emprise stock winding up in Ramcorp Metals, Inc. Both Ramcorp and Emprise later became subsidiaries of Sportsystems, which handles concessions of major sporting events.

But whatever the corporate front, the same interest maneuvered to keep control of the racetracks. Bolles wrote, for example, about their "cozy relationship" with prominent Arizona politicians.

His stories produced some sensational headlines but failed to bring any significant reforms. In frustration, he asked to be taken off the investigative beat about a year ago. He was reassigned to the more humdrum world of the state legislature.

But eight days before his death, Bolles received a confidential call from a Phoenix businessman named Fred Porter Jr. It was the same old story again. Porter had vainly sought dog racing permits from the Arizona Racing Commission, which seemed to be in the clutches of the old Emprise gang.

Bolles responded like an old prize fighter hearing the bell. He arranged to meet Porter for breakfast on May 28 at the Ramada Inn across from his newspaper offices. Porter described the runaround he was getting from racing officials.

Later the same day, Porter received a mysterious phone call from Walter Cheifetz, an attorney for the Emprise-affiliated Ramcorp Metals. The attorney accused Porter of giving the newspaper derogatory information and threatened to sue.

Alarmed, Porter called Bolles who swore he hadn't said a word about their breakfast meeting to anyone. He advised Porter to hurry home, pick up his files and bring the information to him.

There was one problem, said Bolles. He had given up investigative reporting and was now covering the legislature for his paper. He asked Porter, therefore, to testify at a legislative hearing. This would give the reporter an excuse to dig into the story.

Carter's funding is broad based

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — So many people have asked me of late "Who is backing Jimmy Carter — where's his money coming from?" that I went over to the Federal Election Commission to see what reports were on file.

Here, too, the anwers were vague. The Carter reports, like those of other leading presidential candidates, contained few donors listing their specific business connections. Many were listed only by name, address and size of donation. Most others were too vague to be of much use.

Nevertheless, an interesting pattern developed. To one reading through the lists of $100-and-up donors, the number of attorneys giving sizable amounts seemed extradordinarily large in comparison with other candidates. There were noticable numbers of publishers, operators or owners of newspapers and radio stations. Stock brokers, real estate developers. Contractors and builders.

There was an interesting sprinkling of college professors and some obviously well-heeled students on the big donor lists.

There seemed to be a scarcity of donors, who, for the record, classified themselves as businessmen or business executives. Or small independent oil operators, a listing which showed up frequently among Reagan Texas donors.

As might be expected, a considerable chunk of the early Carter money came from Gerogia, with emphasis on Atlanta.

A spot check indicated that various members of the law firm of Lipshutz, Macey, Zusman and Sikes, of Atlanta, and their families, gave upwards of $9,300 to the campaign. Robert J. Lipshutz was listed in the reports as the Carter campaign treasurer.

Jimmy Carter and his immediate family gave upwards of $32,000 in the early reports, the latest figures not being in, including a donation of $17.70 from small daughter Amy, $13,000 from wife Rosalynn and $18,200 from Carter himself. Later reports, when they came in, could raise these figures, of course.

On the $100-and-over lists available, which, as noted above, are not up-to-date, there was a singular paucity of well-known names. There were some, of course. Dean Rusk, former secretary of State, was there. And C. D. Dillon, former secretary of the Treasury and under secretary of State: Henry Luce, vice president of Time, Inc.; Cyrus Eaton, the controversial financier of Arcadia Farms; Burt Lancaster, the actor; Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, James Latham, president of the Transcontinental Oil; Joseph F. Cullman, 3rd, chairman of the Board and chief executive officer of Phillip Morris, Inc; Irving Shepard, president of Chromalloy American; James D. Maddox, of Rome Ga.; Ted Ashley, a motion picture executive with Warner Brothers; Robert Wise, producer of "The Sound of Music," "West Side Story" and "The Andromeda Strain"; publisher Bernard Geis. A University of Connecticut student gave $1,000, a union organizer $500.

A number of political funds were represented — the Olin (chemicals) Political Fund, the Southern Railway Good Government Fund, the Non Partisan League of Machinists and political funds sponsored by Pacific Lighting (utility), Chevron and Conoco (petroleum), the Committee of Quality Government, the Better Government Committee of New York City, the AFSCME.

A routine check of the Carter dollar sources thus reveals no sinister or even worrisome pattern of financial backing. On the surface, at least, it would appear that those giving to the campaign represent a fairly widespread and representative section of the voting population.

There's power in seniority

By EARL G. WATERS

At a time when the general concensus has it that Congress ranks low in public opinion, there is something encouraging in knowing that some Californians are reaching a pinnacle of power in Washington.

Under the seniority system which largely controls leadership selections, Californians have not had the power in Congress which might be expected by reason of its population. Part of this is because of the proclivity of its voters to yield to the chant of "it's time for a change".

This type of thinking has permitted the chairmanships of the major committees to stay in the hands of congressmen from the southern states who long ago learned how best to use the seniority system. They elect young men to Congress and keep them there, regardless of their performance, to ultimately gain positions of power.

But time has operated to overcome that at least for some California congressmen and the state now stands to gain greater influence in many Congressional decisions of vast importance in the immediate future.

For Congressman Harold T. "Bizz" Johnson, making his bid for a tenth term, is in line to become chairman of the House Interior Committee, which has jurisdiction over federal lands, parks, water projects and Indian programs, all of major importance to this state.

Although he got there earlier than Johnson, Congressman John E. Moss' rise on committees has been slower. But some deaths and retirements have now moved him to second places on both the Government Operations and the Interstate and Foreign Commerce committees. He may soon have to choose between the two for a chairmanship.

Congressman John J. McFall, who was elected in 1956, while not progressing so well on the Appropriations Committee has risen in the House leadership to the No. 3 spot and now stands to succeed Massachusetts Congressman Tip O'Neill as Majority Leader.

What is inspiring about all this is that it serves to restore a measure of confidence in the overall integrity of Congress.

For while one may differ at times in political philosophy with the three congressmen, they are all honest, sincere and dedicated men. You couldn't taint any one of them with a ten foot pole.

All three gained early experience in the California Legislature. Both McFall and Moss served in the Assembly while Johnson served in the Senate. McFall and Johnson also gained experience in local government as mayors of their hometowns.

Also nearing a chairmanship is another stalwart, Congressman B.F. Sisk who is moving up on the important House Rules Committees. If Johnson, Moss and Sisk gain chairmanships it will result in a tremendous shift of power from the South to the West. For, of the 15 major House committees, all but 3 of the chairmanships have been held by members from the South, mostly Texas.

It would make McFall's selection as majority leader just so much icing on the cake. Even if McFall should stumble the prospects are that the spot might still go to a Californian. For Congressman Phil Burton looms as his chief competitor. Burton, however, deals from a weaker position, having less seniority and being more closely identified with the "young Turks" who have been battling the seniority system. McFall, on the other hand, has backed the leadership and is respected as a "team player".

Not since the days of Clare Engle, Harry Shephard, George P. Miller, and Chet Holifield, has California's chances of gaining power in the Congress been so bright. Of course, if the voters listen to the campaign rhetoric of "it's time for a change" this November and defeat any of the four, that opportunity will be diminished.

Giant fuchsia for temperate area only

Would you please help me find a giant fuchsia plant?

I have called the nurseries around here but none of them have it.

I would appreciate it if I can buy it in a small pot because I'm flying up north with it.

It's a birthday present for my dear mother. — C.S., Ontario.

You should look for a giant fuchsia in temperate coastal areas.

You should look for a giant fuchsia in temperate coastal areas.

If your mother doesn't live in an area where the weather is temperate year around, pick another gift.

Don Woodburn of B & B Nursery and Garden Supply, Chino, says giant fuchsias are almost impossible to grow in this inland region and therefore are not sold here.

They freeze in the winter and burn up in the summer.

Small fuchsias can be grown here but they should be planted in protected locations.

Last February we sent a $20 check to the Complimentary Vacation Club in Tarzana for two vacation packages, one for my father and one for us.

We thought we were getting a package for a vacation in Las Vegas. We had obtained one before through a similar deal and had a real nice time.

When we received the package, it turned out to be a dinner club membership on the basis of a two for one price. That's a fine arrangement for people who do those things but for us it just wouldn't work out.

We sent the packages bacy by first class mail and asked for the refund of the $20 we had sent.

The letter which sold us on the deal stated: "30-day unconditional deposit back guarantee! If you are not satisfied upon inspection, simply mail the entire casino package back to us and we will return your money immediately!"

We sent for the refund March 2. On April 12 we sent a second letter asking about the refund and on May 11 we sent a third letter.

To date, we have not received one word from these people except for our canceled check showing the $20 check had been cashed. — Mr. and Mrs. C.T., Ontario.

We pointed out to the Complimentary Vacation Club that a promise had not been kept.

Julie Marquette, secretary to the club's president, replied by return mail with an apology and a $20 refund for you.

Ann Landers

Not senile, just disorganized

Dear Ann Landers: Attached to this letter is my personal check, made out to you for $4,000. Let me explain.

Several years ago I had a small business and I did something many small businessmen do — cheated on my income tax. I forgot all about it, until I became friendly with a Christian brother who akakened in me a sense of decency and integrity I never knew existed.

Lately God has been reminding me that I have a score to settle with the Internal Revenue Service. Although I don't know exactly how much I owe, I feel certain $4,000 would more than cover it.

I talked the problem over with my wife and she became upset when I told her I wanted to send my check directly to the IRS. She was afraid I'd be prosecuted, my reputation ruined, etc.

I then went to my certified public accountant. He advised me to send my check to Ann Landers, ask you to deposit it in your personal account and write your own check to the IRS for $4,000.

Enclosed is a separate check made out to you for your trouble. Thanks and God bless. Sign Me — Straightening Out The Books

Dear Mr. Straight: I admire you for wanting to right an old wrong, and I'd like to help, but I, too, must answer to the IRS and keep my skirts 100 per cent clean.

My CPA would have to know what $4,000 is doing in my account. Next, the IRS man would want to know about that "stray" $4,000 check from me to IRS. Your cover could be easily blown, my friend, since your name is on the check.

So I herewith return both checks (I don't accept gratuitites, but thank you very much) and suggest that you use a more anonymous transmittal agent, perhaps a Christian brother. See you in heaven!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm only 58, in very good physical condition and everyone tells me I look much younger than my years. I feel great but something has been bothering me.

Lately, my mind seems to be playing little tricks. I find myself forgetting things I've known for years — telephone numbers, addresses, names of close friends and even relatives. It's embarrassing. This afternoon I went into another room and forgot what I went in there for. Can it be that I am becoming senile?

I become terribly annoyed with myself when I misplace things. It seems I am always hunting for my glasses, my favorite pen, my desk scissors or the current book I happen to be reading. Any Advice? — Slipping A Little

Dear Slipping: Move over. You have plenty of company. I'm exactly your age, feel fine, am far from senile (I think) — and I forget plenty.

Being organized can eliminate many of the small annoyances. If you put things where they belong, you won't have to hunt for them. It takes a little longer, but it's well worth the extra few seconds. Try it. It works.

CONFIDENTIAL to Where Are They Going?: I don't know, but I am optimistic. Setting a good example is important. I don't believe the younger generation is going to hell just to be near their folks.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Joe Firman

If it is clear, re-phrase it

Having attended two colleges and two universities in my prime time, I felt reasonably prepared in the intricacies of educationese until a local school district recently asked the National Institute of Education this question:

"Are taxonomically structured and sequenced teaching units, keyed to specific teaching strategies, learning skills, levels of critical thinking and problem solving, more effective in the instructional process than the same units without taxonomic structure and sequence and not keyed to specific teaching strategies, learning skills, levels of critical thinking and problem solving?"

The first problem to be solved would be to translate the question into English.

Why are so many groups in our society today dedicated to jargonspeak, a method of mindless obfuscation and incoherence? And they are the groups that lead the country, that shape the tastes and influence the thinking of the nation — politicians (self-actualizing, counterproductive, viable solution); parameter, overview, on-going, slippage); educators (phenomenological psycholinguistics of multilingualism); MadAvenue (a facilitator of interpersonal discourse and a communicator who verbalizes the interface of media filtration).

Edwin Newman, veteran NBC correspondent and anchorman (anchorman?) says the keys are pomposity and mystification. In his new book, "Strictly Speaking: Will America Be the Death of English?" Newman charges that the social sciences are "the great focus of infection" in the matter of pretention and confusion of meaning.

"One of the keys is pomposity," he writes. "Another is the use of jargon to create the impression that what you're doing is somehow hard to understand and requires special training. And the smaller the idea, usually the more grandiose the language in which it is clothed."

The use of nonsensical language, Newman says, often leads to the advocacy of nonsensical ideas. Nobody merely talks to others anymore; they have "dialogues." You don't ask opinions; you seek "input." One doesn't ask if the new product will sell; he examines the "economic feasibility and financial effectiveness."

"English can be a tremendous amount of fun," Newman says. "And we're not having it for two reasons. One is that we're using this deplorable jargon. The second is that phrases become popular so quickly. People speak in slogans, trick phrases. People want to use whatever the latest slogan or phrase happens to be. They want to be up with the fashion, whatever it is."

In short, we must all examine, or take an overview of our taxonomically structured and sequenced communication to ascertain that it is viable and self-actualizing and not merely on-going interpersonal discourse that may prove phenomenologically counterproductive.

Dr. Lamb

Don't mix diabetes, booze

DEAR DR. LAMB — Should diabetics drink alcoholic beverages?

DEAR READER — I don't think so. Diabetes may cause liver damage anyway because the liver can't use glucose normally and tends to become a fatty liver. Also, alcohol can cause low blood sugar by literally using all the enzyme in the liver that would normally be used to convert proteins to glucose. This can make it difficult or impossible to regulate insulin dosage. Finally, for those diabetics who have a mild disease that can be controlled by weight control, alcohol makes it difficult to diet and eliminate or prevent obesity. I can't think of a single good thing alcohol does for a diabetic.

To give you more information on how alcohol affects the body I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer. Others who want this information can forward 50 cents for it along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please tell me what can be done for a person who falls asleep as soon as she sits down. This person is in her late 50s. It makes no difference how many people are sitting around visiting, in no time she is asleep. Is this called narcolepsy? Will it get worse as she gets older? Can anything be done for it and is it serious? She can work all day and appears well. One time she just passed out and fell. We are very worried about this. She has been this way for several years now.

One doctor prescribed pep pills but her eyes looked terrible so she quit taking them. I think it was Benzedrine.

DEAR READER — Yes, you are describing narcolepsy. There is, of course, a dividing line between normal drowsiness and constant severe sleepiness which is classified as narcolepsy.

The cause of narcolepsy is unknown but it does occur in both men and women and it often begins in adolescence although it can begin later in life. Once it starts, the individual will continue to have excessive drowsiness throughout life unless it is treated. In some individuals it is progressive. They may start out just having trouble with being drowsy during lecture periods and during social events or when they are presumably visiting with friends. The episodes may become more frequent and longer to the extent that some individuals sleep a good part of their life away.

These people often are able to avoid danger such as a car wreck because they can feel the sensation of drowsiness occurring and can pull to the side of the road if they are driving or stop any other activity they might be doing which would be hazardous.

There are no significant physical findings or other symptoms in individuals who have narcolepsy. The diagnosis is usually made on the basis of the story of the illness plus the absence of any other important medical findings.

It is not at all surprising that this lady was given pep pills. That's a standard treatment. Perhaps the two best forms of treatment are Dexedrine and Ritalin, both of which stimulate the brain.

For mild forms, some individuals do well by drinking lots of coffee during the day. The caffeine in coffee is a cerebral stimulant and has actions similar to Dexedrine.

Barbs

If he asks you for "car tickets" instead of bus fare, he's over 40.

Some women get their hair done every week — and we know one whose locks are just about finished.

When someone says he's getting a CB, does he mean a cheeseburger or a citizen's band radio?

I reason with others, you argue, he's a dictator.

Perfect technique in dummy play is something all experts strive to attain. Forty-five years ago no one had it. But Hal Sims came mighty close.

Today's hand shows Hal at work. Most players would simply go down one and complain about their misfortune in the diamond suit. Hal made the hand without any ceremony at all.

East's ace and king of clubs held the first two tricks. He led his last club.

Hal ruffed and promptly cashed all his trumps while discarding a diamond from dummy. West had to make two discards and was smart enough to chuck two hearts.

This didn't do him a bit of good. Hal simply cashed dummy's king and queen of diamonds and ace of hearts. Then he led dummy's last club. Poor West was on lead and had to lead a diamond up to Hal's ace-10.

Ask the Jacobys

A Georgia reader wants to know the correct response to a one-diamond opening bid with:

♠ K Q x x ♥ x ♦ 10 x x ♣ A x x x x.

This is a tough one. You prefer to respond in your longest suit, but with only nine high-card points you don't want to go to the two level.

Hence, your correct response is one spade.

Hoodlums of San Francisco

Everybody knows the word "hood" comes from the word "hoodlum." But nobody knows where "hoodlum" comes from. Except that it was first used to describe thugs in San Francisco. One of the vile hoodlum pastimes there, according to historical footnotes, was the stoning of Chinese immigrants.

On the photo department door at the Jackson Daily News in Mississippi is the sign: "Please keep darkroom door closed. If it is left open, all the dark leaks out."

That actor of world renown Clint Eastwood reportedly never has smoked a cigarette or any portion thereof.

HAIR REMOVER

Q. "That chemical hair remover known as a depilatory supposedly can remove the fuzz on a woman's legs. Why can't a man use it instead of a razor for shaving?"

A. Too irritating. A daily dose on the face would make welts. The women don't need it that frequently. Besides, men's whiskers are so much tougher than leg hair that the stuff would have to be hyped up to an intolerable strength.

Question arises as to which of our presidents knew the least about music. Nominate U.S. Grant. Was his claim that he knew only two songs. One was "Yankee Doodle" and the other wasn't.

If those two artichokes are as fresh as they should be, they'll squeak when you rub them together.

SMOKERS AND DRINKS

A bartender of extensive experience contends his years of observation indicate that cigarette smokers tend to down their drinks quickly. Cigar smokers, not so quickly but methodically. Pipe smokers, much more slowly. And the non-smokers, he says, usually just sip, rarely finishing one drink before accepting another.

Some surveys show that 90 per cent of the people who go to movies would rather be made to cry than to laugh. And no film character is said to be more popular than the one unjustly caught up in a lot of trouble so as to arouse in the audience great sympathy.

Surveys repeatedly indicate that few women object to baldness in men. They cite with large approval such personalities as Joe Garagiola, Telly Savalas and Yul Brynner. Still, a remarkably high number of balding men remain unconvinced. Never before have the toupee makers, the hair weavers and the surgical transplanters done better business. Lord Chesterfield would have frowned on the whole thing, sure enough. He's the fellow who said, "Any affectation in manner or dress indicates a lack of understanding."

U.S. banning dozen pesticides containing deadly kepone

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is banning a dozen Allied Chemical Co. pesticides containing kepone, the roachkiller suspected of poisoning production workers and polluting the James River in Virginia.

The Environmental Protection Agency said Monday that Allied Chemical already has stopped making the kepone pesticides and did not object to the agency's ban.

The action has no immediate effect on 37 other products containing kepone made by 25 other companies, the EPA said. But the agency ordered these companies on March 25 to prove that kepone does not cause cancer or other illnesses, or face a total ban on the chemical.

That action is still pending.

Last month, Allied Chemical and the now-defunct Life Science Products Plant in Hopewell, Va., which manufactured kepone for Allied, were indicted on federal charges of polluting the James River with kepone. The companies pleaded innocent.

Parts of the river are closed to commercial fishing because of kepone contamination.

Former Life Science Products workers have filed lawsuits totalling $150 million, alleging physical ailments from kepone poisoning.

The EPA also moved on Monday to halt the manufacture and sale of pesticides containing chlorobenzilate.

The chemical is used mainly to control mites on citrus fruits.

EPA gave manufacturers 45 days to show why chlorobenzilate pesticides should not be banned as a possible threat to human health.

Products containing this chemical are manufactured in the United States by Ciba-Geigy Corp. of Greensboro, N.C. It also is imported by several U.S. firms from foreign producers.

Headache for rear admiral

Armada of foreign warships poised for invasion of N.Y.

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP) — The last time Frank Guest took part in a naval invasion was 1943 in the South Pacific. Now he's leading one into New York.

Guest, a rear admiral, is the officer in charge of naval arrangements for a friendly invasion by 46 warships and scores of sailing vessels that will be sudding and steaming into New York Harbor on July 4. Five million people are expected to watch the armada from small boats, city skyscrapers, piers and bleachers erected by New York City and New Jersey towns across the Hudson River from Manhattan.

"Nothing can prepare you for a job like this; there's never been an event like this," Guest said at his headquarters at the Military Ocean Terminal.

These are Guest's orders: keep dozens of ships with foreign language crews from misunderstanding directives and crashing into each other; keep the ship's officers and crews happy during a three-day visit to New York City; cater to 3,000 dignitaries including President Ford; help the Coast Guard keep 10,000 spectator craft from interfering with the official ships; make sure the buffet lunch is hot. And make sure it doesn't rain.

"The chaplain has assured us it is not going to rain," Guest said with a smile. "If it rains, it goes anyway, whether there's anybody there to watch it or not."

The navy's headaches began last year when it decided to hold the International Naval Review in New York, on the day of Operation Sail, the largest gathering of wooden ships in one spot since the 19th century.

Now, in addition to a mammoth gathering of sailing ships on July 4, there will be the largest grouping of modern foreign warships in the history of the United States.

As commandant of the New York-New Jersey based 3rd Naval District, it is Guest's responsibility to host the party. The guests will be warships from Italy, Dominican Republic, South Korea, Egypt, Romania, Holland, Japan, Portugal and 17 other countries Guest described as "friendly and not always so friendly, but we're happy to have."

The Navy's first task was to settle the always-stick protocol problems, such as which ships take precedence in the parade and which ships get the best berths in the harbor.

"We didn't want to put anybody's nose out of joint," Guest said. "We chose alphabetic order, which is the next best thing to throwing darts."

To overcome possible language problems bilingual naval lieutenants will be assigned to each foreign ship to translate orders if necessary.

The warships will rendezvous 200 miles at sea on July 2, form three columns and steam toward the harbor, making two or three hopefully non-tricky course corrections on the way.

By July 3 they will be lined up in the Hudson River and upper New York Bay, ready to review the sailing ships that pass by on the 4th of July.

Guest estimated that with all the ships in the harbor, it will take 25 to 30 harbor pilots, working until dawn on the 5th to get all the ships, wooden and steel, into their assigned anchorages. The only interruption in the work will be a half-hour fireworks display that will light up the harbor like a pinball machine.

"It's impossible to describe how beautiful the whole thing will be," Guest said. "All those ships in one place will be magnificent.

'We're a maritime nation. Our whole existence depends upon the use of the sea and isn't it fitting that on the bicentennial we will honor that heritage.

"And it's fitting that these foreign nations are joining us, because seafaring is a brotherhood that transcends national boundaries."

One of Guest's job will be to help make up the 3,000-name list of people invited to see the day's events from the aircraft carrier Forrestal. It may be the best viewing spot in the harbor, and about 10,000 people who are "somebodies" or "friends of somebodies," are angling for spots on the ship.

"I know I'm not going to make everybody happy," Guest said. "Combat experience is going to come in handy; knowing when to duck."

Guest, 57, joined the Navy in 1943, after graduating from Georgetown University. Since combat duty in world War II, he has served as commander of repair ships, destroyers and has held posts in the Navy's recruiting and reserve affairs offices.

Despite his command experience, he has no qualms about enlisting as a crewman when he goes sailing with friends on weekends — when he isn't too busy.

Tax-exempt status of Teamsters Pension Fund revoked?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tax-exempt status of the massive Central States Teamsters Union Pension Fund has been revoked by the Internal Revenue Service, a Los Angeles paper reported Tuesday.

The $1.4 billion fund, that has been used for varied investments including an estimated $200 million in loans to hotel and gambling interests in Las Vegas, could be subject to millions of dollars in taxes if the reported IRS decision stands, the paper said in its Tuesday editions.

In Washington, IRS spokesmen refused to confirm or deny the reports, and Teamsters national headquarters in Washington had no immediate comment.

The paper said an unnamed IRS official in Washington told the paper that the tax-exempt status was revoked because of alleged mismanagement and questionable loans.

The paper said, however, that the action would not become final until all appeals by trustees of the fund are completed, and no official statement was issued because of the anticipated appeals.

The IRS action was not directly related to investigations into the fund by Congress or the Departments of Labor and Justice, the paper said.

Contributions to the pension fund from employers on behalf of their workers can be deductible from company taxes, and the earnings on the pension fund's investments can be taxexempt.

The IRS spokesmen, who said no comment can be made on a case until the appeal process is completed, said that as a matter of procedure a proposed revocation of any fund's preferred tax status would be based on an audit. The fund can appeal the IRS action in court.

Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons is the key member of the joint board of trustees of the fund, the paper said.

Korean War turncoat asks to return to U.S. briefly

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Veneris, an American who chose to stay with his Communist captors after the Korean War, has asked to return temporarily to the United States, State Department officials said Tuesday.

Veneris and Howard G. Adams are the last two remaining Americans of the 21 who defected to the North Koreans at the end of the war and ultimately made their way to Communist China. The other 19 have left China at various times over the past 25 years.

The State Department officials said Veneris is still an American citizen and will be issued a passport. They said he intends to visit his mother and three sisters, who reportedly live in California.

Veneris, a native of Vandergrift, Pa., intends to return to China after the visit, the State Department sources said.

No time has been set for Veneris' visit to the United States, nor is there any word on how long he intends to stay.

The sources indicated Veneris will not be charged with any crime when he arrives and that he will be allowed to move freely about the country as any American citizen is entitled to do.

They said the only document Veneris needs is a passport because he is a citizen.

The department officials said no other information was available on Veneris or his activities in China.

State reveals numbers for Nov. propositions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California secretary of state's office has designated the Agricultural Labor Relations Initiative as Prop. 14 on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The office also announced this week that the Greyhound Dog Racing Initiative will be Prop. 13.

Prop. 14 was placed on the ballot through a petition campaign by the United Farm Workers of Cesar Chavez. It would repeal the Agricultural Labor Relations Act of 1975.

The secretary of state's office said Prop. 14 would also require new appointments to the farm labor board, access for union organizers to property of employers for certain periods, and a minimum of 50 per cent of employes to petition for decertification of a union.

In addition, the legislature would be required to provide appropriations necessary to carry out the act.

Prop. 13, the Greyhound Dog Racing Initiative, qualified for the ballot through a petition drive sponsored by George Hardie of Los Angeles, the office said.

It would establish a California Greyhound Racing Commission to license and regulate the conduct of greyhound races by qualified associations.

The office said pari-mutuel wagering would be permitted, with a specified percentage of the proceeds being deposited in the state treasury.

Prop. 13 and Prop. 14 were the only two of 15 ballot measures which qualified through initiatives. Thirteen others were placed on the ballot by the legislature.

Other numbers were assigned as follows:

—Prop. 1: Would provide for the sale of up to $500 million in state bonds for use by the California Housing Finance Agency to make loans for housing developments.

It was AB 1 by Assemblyman Peter Chacon, D-San Diego, of the first extraordinary session of 1975.

—Prop. 2: Would enact the Nejedly-Hart State, Urban and Coastal Park Bond Act of 1976, authorizing general obligation bonds of up to $375 million to acquire, develop and restore real property for state and local park, beach, recreational and historical resources preservation purposes.

It was SB 1321, whose principal author was Sen. John Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek.

—Prop. 3: A $25 million bond measure that would authorize the state Energy Commission to conduct loan programs and informational and educational programs respecting insulation and solar heating and cooling.

It was SB 1524 whose principal author was Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga.

—Prop. 4: Would expand the area of permissible control by the legislature over the University of California competitive bidding procedures for construction contracts, sale of real property, and purchasing of materials, goods, and services. It would also add race, religion and ethnic heritage as grounds on which a person's admission to any department of the university shall not be barred.

It was SCA 14 by Sen. John Stull, R-Escondido.

—Prop. 5: Would deal with the maximum permissible contract rate of interest by nonexempt lenders.

The same as Prop. 12 which the voters defeated in the June primary, Prop. 5 was placed on the ballot under SCA 40 by Sen. Bill Green, D-Los Angeles.

—Prop. 6: Would extend the period for consideration by the governor of bills passed by the legislature.

It was ACA 75 by Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, D-San Leandro.

—Prop. 7: Would rename the Commission of Judicial Qualifications to Commission on Judicial Performance, and give it new authority. It would also require membership to include two members of the State Bar.

It was ACA 96 by Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach.

—Prop. 8: Would authorize nonchartered counties to elect or appoint superintendents of schools. It would also authorize two or more counties to establish a joint county board of education.

It was ACA 77 by Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento.

—Prop. 9: Would provide that a vacancy in the office of superintendent of public instruction, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, attorney general or board of equalization member, be filled by the governor for the balance of the unexpired term, with confirmation by both the Senate and Assembly. If there were no action on confirmation within 90 days, the nominee would take office.

Cocaine importers keep customs agents hopping

MIAMI (AP) — In a Bogota, Colombia, hotel room, a Cincinnati woman dismantled her portable hairdryer and replaced its electric motor with three pounds of carefully packed cocaine.

Then she caught a plane for Miami.

The woman, arrested by U.S. Customs Service inspectors at busy Miami International Airport, was what authorities call a mule — the amateur or professional who carries drugs into this country via commercial transportation to help supply a $3 billion-a-year U.S. market for illegal drugs.

Miami is the nation's cocaine import capital, where the most seizures and arrests of mules are made. Of the 735 pounds of cocaine seized in the United States last year, 198 pounds or 27 per cent of it was taken at Miami's airport.

It's anybody's guess how much cocaine slips through undetected here and elsewhere.

Just last month, 170 pounds of cocaine were confiscated by Customs agents in Tampa who were watching a banana boat which had arrived from Colombia. Agents said the cache was worth $39 million, one of the largest seizures on record.

"Drug imports, mostly cocaine, are on the increase," said Howard Ford, director of Customs' airport operations in Miami. "We have no estimate on how much is getting by, but we could make more seizures if we had more personnel."

In the first five months of this year, Customs inspectors at Miami International confiscated 166 pounds of cocaine, a powerful stimulant which drug experts say is not physically addictive. Cocaine, made from the leaves of the coca bush, is often called the "Champagne of Drugs," because of its high market price and popularity among some rock musicians and jet-setters.

"Every conceivable way to smuggle drugs has been tried," said Bill Norsworthy, an airport supervisor for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, whose agents take over investigations after the initial arrest.

Mules have carried drugs inside fishing rods, aerosol cans, book covers, tennis racquets, false-bottomed suitcases, diving tanks and children's toys. They have carried liquified cocaine in seemingly unopened liquor bottles.

More dangerously, mules have tried to avoid detection by swallowing packets of cocaine or inserting them into body cavities.

In the last two months, four mules have died when their body acids destroyed the packets and released the drug into their system, Customs spokesman Jim Dingfelder said.

But the lure of great profit attracts many willing to take the risks.

Most of the cocaine smuggled into the United States comes from Colombia and Peru. Persons agreeing to serve as mules can earn $5,000 aside from an expenses-paid trip for several days to South America.

Those who hire the mules are playing for bigger stakes. A $10,000 investment for 97 per cent pure cocaine can be multiplied 32 times — returning $320,000 — after it has been transported and its purity reduced to about 12 per cent for street sales, a drug official said.

Cocaine users who sniff or "snort" are known as "vacuum cleaners." Others cook a small portion of the drug in a small spoon and inject it into their bloodstreams.

Customs inspectors and DEA agents say there is no stereotype for a mule. Drugs have been found on the young and old, affluent and poor, businessman and diplomat.

Officials say that arrested mules most often show little remorse or fear of prison sentences.

"Once they are caught, they accept it," said Customs inspector John Ryan. "And they seem to be well informed about what will happen to them. One man I caught wasn't a bit alarmed and said he was confident of his chances under the judicial system."

Detection is not an easy chore. At Miami International, 1½ million passengers pass through Customs checks each year — it takes an alert inspector to spot a mule and convince a superior to allow a detailed search.

Inspector Dale O'Connor noticed that a passenger carrying two air tanks used by divers was carrying no other diving equipment and didn't have a tan.

"He was very friendly and even helped me open the tanks. They were filled with drugs," O'Connor said.

Another inspector, Chuck Winwood, recalls a stranger case. "One of our men noticed that the padding on the wheelchair used by a deformed midget was thicker than other wheelchairs. When we inspected the chair's padding, it was filled with cocaine."

Inspectors and DEA agents listed these recent cases:

—Scott Wirkus, 17, of Racine, Wisc., died in an airport hotel shortly after he passed Customs without incident. He had swallowed 53 coke-filled prophylactics. Some of them burst.

—A coat worn by Carmen Rosa Benvenuto, 32, of Lima, Peru, appeared to sag. Plastic bags of cocaine were found sewn in the lining. On the same flight from Lima were five other mules. Roberto Gueudet, 57, and his 42-year-old wife, Doris, has cocaine in their luggage. So did Maria Jose Santos, 27, Rosa Mouchard, 55, and Ida Olascoaga, 51. They were all caught carrying a total of 47 pounds of illegal drugs.

HIDE AND SEEK — Bill Norsworthy, airport and seaport supervisor for U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, shows how cocaine was placed in airplane engine that was seized after arriving in Miami, Fla., for repairs. He said every conceivable way is tried.

Accelerating trend

Auto execs forecast record year for vans, light trucks

DETROIT (AP) — William and Sandra Susick, like most of their neighbors in suburban Sterling Heights, used to be a two-car family. But last year they traded in their 1971 station wagon for a van. Now they're hooked on trucks.

"The van is a 100 per cent better for traveling, it has more room than the car, it has a better ride, it's more comfortable and more versatile," says Susick, 38, a Chrysler Corp. employe. "It's definitely our No. 1 vehicle."

The Susicks' are not alone in that belief.

Americans in droves are shunning cars and turning to light trucks as their primary mode of transportation in an accelerating trend that has revolutionized the truck market and made it the fastest growing facet of the auto industry.

Auto executives forecast a record year for truck sales in 1976. They attribute the boom to the growth of a recreation-oriented public and the emergence of the light van or pickup as an all-purpose vehicle that offers everything a car has, and more.

A decade ago, the light truck market was dominated by ranchers, small-business men and construction workers who needed a low-priced, no-frills utility vehicle mostly for work-related activities.

Today light trucks — often as plush as any car — appeal to the full spectrum of consumers who increasingly are using the vehicles for all sorts of non-commercial purposes.

"People are trading in cars for trucks because trucks are more convenient for both work and pleasure and often are cheaper than cars," says one industry official. "A retired person, for example, can use a pickup during the week for odd jobs like landscaping and then haul a load of gear up to his weekend cottage."

Also key to the boom is that trucks have become "socially acceptable" alternatives to cars and have captured the fancy of women, who play a key role in any family's car purchasing decision.

"We're no longer embarrassed about driving our van anywhere," says Susick, who notes that his wife uses the vehicle for work. "We even drive it to weddings. To us, it's a luxury vehicle, not a truck."

Industry executives, already high-spirited over the unexpectedly strong recovery in the car market this year, are elated over the explosion in truck sales.

About the only thing that has them fretting is whether their assembly plants can keep up with the demand from customers who are complaining they can't find the trucks they want in stock.

Officials at General Motors' Chevrolet Division say they entered June with a backlog of a quarter million orders for 1976 light trucks. They estimated a customer who ordered a van from the factory in early June would have to wait about 10 weeks for delivery.

Ted Karr, manager for truck sales at a Dodge dealership in suburban Warren, Mich., says he stopped accepting orders on 1976 vans in early May. "We can't get our hands on more trucks," said Karr.

"We have people sitting here with money in their hands and the factory can't produce enough. The auto companies didn't anticipate the strength of the market."

As a salesman, Karr says he prefers dealing in trucks. "People don't argue price like they do with a car, and 75 per cent don't seem concerned with fuel economy — which is a little worse for a light truck. As long as you can fill their needs, people will buy."

Another plus for Karr as well as the companies is that trucks are more profitable than cars because they undergo less frequent model changes and thus save the industry the expense of new tooling.

Karr would not disclose his own markup, but claimed trucks "are a lot more profitable." A source at one of the Big Three makers estimated the company's profit on a light truck is 10 per cent higher on the average than for a car.

"There's no question a lot of people are buying light trucks as a second car," says Roy D. Chapin Jr., chairman of American Motors Corp. "It's part of the total recreation trend. Maybe there's something about driving a truck that appeals to one's macho, gives him a charge."

AMC does not sell pickups or vans, but it is well entrenched in the four-wheel drive market with its successful Jeep, which Chapin says is headed for a banner sales year.

When the industry set 1976 truck production schedules late last year it forecast what was thought at the time to be an optimistic target of about 2.9 million sales for the year, a healthy 16 per cent gain over a sluggish 2.5 million unit sales in 1975.

Now, auto chieftains expect to sell closer to 3.2 million units — if they can find the extra capacity — to break the existing record of 3.16 million trucks sold in 1973.

"Trucks are the real growth story in 1976," says William O. Bourke, executive vice president of Ford Motor Co. "Industry car sales so far this year are up about one-fourth from a year ago, while trucks are up about 40 per cent."

Although the market demand for trucks has exceeded earlier projections, the sales boom has not come as a complete surprise to the industry, which sought several years ago to broaden the appeal of light trucks by making them adaptable to personal uses.

That marketing strategy was based on long-term studies showing a far greater growth potential for trucks than cars, which already were close to market saturation.

Bourke notes that annual new car sales during the past decade have increased about 18 per cent to a projected 10.7 million in 1976. Trucks, by contrast, have almost doubled in sales since 1966, with the biggest growth coming in the 1970s.

This year, trucks are expected to account for a record 23 per cent of total motor vehicle sales in the United States, compared with a 15 per cent share 10 years ago.

Bourke says the industry expended considerable engineering effort over the past few years to improve the ride and handling of light trucks so they would be comparable to cars.

"Independent front suspension systems, softer seats and better shock absorbers — all were part of the program to make the pickup and the van acceptable all-occasion transportation," he said.

Pickups and vans are base priced at about $3,700 to start, comparable to the base price of a compact or mid-size car. But few are leaving the showroom with less than $1,200 to $1,500 worth of optional equipment, including more powerful engines, air-conditioning, power brakes and steering, fancy interior trim packages, deluxe wheel covers and speed control devices.

James T. Riley, Chevrolet's manager for truck sales, estimates the typcial light pickup, which carries a base price of $3,723, is being ordered with about $1,400 worth of options. The average van buyer orders about $1,000 worth of factory installed options and then adds another $1,700 in options after delivery.

The hottest action in the light truck market right now is the van, which has become the in-thing among young people. The craze has led to a tripling of van sales in the past six years from 152,000 in 1970 to an estimated 500,000 plus this year.

Many of those sales have come at the expense of cars. A Ford research study indicates 40 per cent of persons purchasing 1976 Ford vans traded in cars.

Indians petition to fish, hunt freely again

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — It's been years since the Abenaki Indians hunted and fished where they pleased, but the Indians say times really haven't changed that much. They want to wander freely again.

The tribe presented Vermont officials this week with a petition signed by more than 1,400 Indians asking the state to "immediately recognize the rights of the people of the Abenaki Nation to fish and hunt on all lands and waterways throughout the state."

Spokesmen for the tribe said that fish and game are so plentiful they die of natural causes while Indians go hungry.

The Indians said there should be no state regulation of their hunting and fishing because they are their "traditional means of economic and cultural survival."

"We want it known that we aren't going out hunting and slaughtering everything," said Homer St. Francis, the newly appointed chairman of the Abenaki Nation. He said the Indians needed the food to survive.

However, the Indians have run into a tangle in their request.

Fish and Game Commissioner Edward Kehoe said he would forward the petition to Gov. Thomas P. Salmon. He told the Indians that only the Vermont Legislature can approve their demands.

St. Francis estimated that more than 3,000 Abenakis live in Vermont, many in Swanton and Highgate in the northwestern part of the state.

Nuclear power still facing uphill fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although utility company officials emitted what one called "an audible sigh of relief" when Prop. 15 was rejected by voters, they don't view its defeat as a green light for nuclear power.

The controversial ballot measure, which would have banned all new nuclear power plant construction and subjected the state's three existing reactors to stringent safety requirements, was defeated by a 2 to 1 margin at the polls June 8. However, utility executives say that three bills passed by the state legislature shortly before the vote, plus the now proven ability of environmentalists and other groups to delay proposed atomic facilities to death, mean continued slow going for nuclear power plants.

"One of the biggest problems is just the delays," says Southern California Edison spokesman David Barron. "That's why we dropped Kaiparowits. We looked into the future and saw all these delays and it just made it economically illogical to continue."

Kaiparowits, a $2.7 billion nuclear power plant Edison had hoped to build in southern Utah, was abandoned after court challenges by environmental groups led by actor Robert Redford, who has a home near the proposed site.

"What happened with Kaiparowits could happen with other units," says Miles Sheldon, nuclear information specialist with Pacific Gas & Electric, whose Diablo Canyon nuclear project near San Louis Obispo was held up for more than a year because of design changes and labor problems. "The more you delay, the more changes, the more costly it is."

Indeed, escalating costs have plagued all four nuclear facilities now under construction. The projected cost of two 1,100-megawatt additions to Edison's San Onofre Nuclear Generating Station was $850 million when first proposed in 1970. The additions, originally scheduled to begin operations this year, are now expected to come on stream in 1981 and 1983 at a total cost of more than $2 billion. The price tag on P.G.&E's two Diablo Canyon facilities has doubled, from $500 million to $1 billion, since they were first proposed in 1968.

California now gets about three per cent of its power from nuclear facilities and the state's utilities predict that the figure will be 20 per cent by 1985, a slight reduction from their earlier forecasts. However, a package of three bills passed by legislators in what some say was an attempt to head off Prop. 15 may affect those projections.

"Prop. 15 was defeated and that was very helpful, but the bills that were passed do present some serious problems for those projects in the planning stage," says Jim Mulloy, assistant manager with the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

The first two bills require that no new nuclear plants be built until the legislature has certified—by a majority vote— that satisfactory methods exist for reprocessing and storing nuclear wastes. The third requires a year's delay on plants now in the planning stage while the state Energy Commission studies the feasibility of requiring that nuclear reactors be built underground. The San Onofre and Diablo Canyon

The legislation did affect what is projected to be the nation's largest nuclear power plant — the 5,200 megawatt San Joaquin Nuclear Project near Bakersfield in Kern County. The facility, which carries a price tag of $6 billion (expressed in 1983 dollars), was close to breaking ground but will now be delayed, according to Mulloy.

"It will result in a delay, but we don't know how long," says Mulloy. "It would have been supplying about 25 per cent of the energy needs of the City of Los Angeles had it come on in 1985, as planned. If we can't get other resources, and it doesn't appear that we can, we're going to have a deficiency."

Postponement of the San Joaquin plant would effect the entire state, since the utilities involved produce about 90 per cent of the energy consumed in California. And since certification rests with lawmakers in Sacramento, some utility officials are worried that approval could become a political football.

"It's in the political arena," says Skene Moody, chief generation planning engineer with SoCal Edison. "The determination is up to various legislators and if they're not satisfied, it definitely could delay things."

Another intangible is the stance of the state Energy Commission in interpreting the reprocessing and waste disposal requirements of the new bills.

"The utilities are waiting to see how the energy commission is going to act," says Sheldon. "The ball's in their court now."

Despite these uncertainties and the ever-increasing cost of nuclear plants, utility company spokesmen insist that atomic power is still attractive. But they add that other sources are under serious consideration too.

"We believe we must proceed with coal and nuclear power," says Mulloy. "They're the only reasonable options for the '80s, and the nuclear option is still a desirable one."

Prop. 15 was only the first of a number of anti-nuclear measures that will go before voters. Similar proposals are on the November ballots in Oregon and Colorado and efforts are being made to get them before voters in at least seven other states. And while the defeat of Prop. 15 obviously has hurt the chances of the other bills, passage in one or more states could bring renewed efforts against nuclear power plants in California.

JFK assassination cover-up 'possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Senate intelligence committee should investigate the "real possibility" that the White House took part in a cover-up of Cuban links to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker says.

Schweiker headed a subcommittee of the now disbanded Senate Select Committee on Intelligence that probed the official investigation of the 1963 Kennedy assassination. Last Wednesday, the panel concluded that the CIA and FBI withheld information from the Warren Commission and failed to pursue several leads.

"I think, frankly, the real possibility exists that the White House was part of that coverup," Schweiker said

"I think there are several people in Lyndon Johnson's White House circle that we probably should now question, that weren't questioned."

The Pennsylvania Republican said "several high officials" have told him that they believe Cuban Premier Fidel Castro ordered the assassination because of CIA attempts on his life.

Schweiker said the unnamed officials told him that "the White House feared a nuclear confrontation with Russia ... because they thought if it became known at that time, people would clamor for an invasion of Cuba with Russia supporting Cuba; and that to avert nuclear war, their information says it was covered up."

Schweiker is pressing for the new, permanent Senate intelligence committee to pursue several leads into the Kennedy assassination. One lead "would involve a pro-Castro conspiracy. Another would involve anti-Castro Cubans," he said.

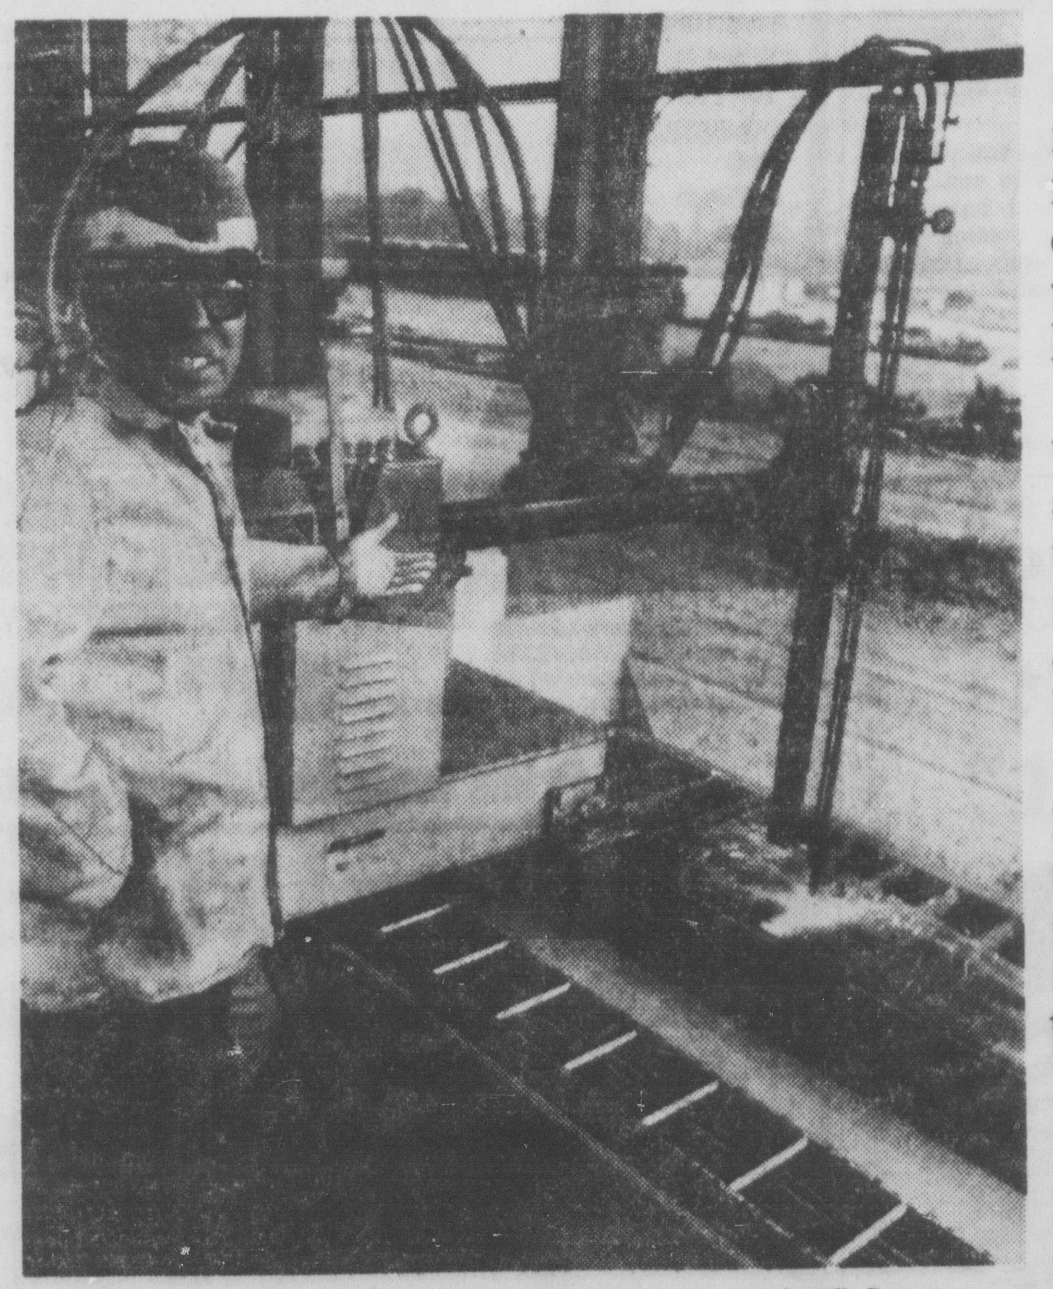
"Look. No Smoke!"



Fred Delgado is a cutting machine operator in Kaiser Steel's Scrap Preparation Department. He has been with Kaiser Steel for more than 20 years.

"Some of the steel we make comes back from the rolling mills as scrap. We recycle every bit. That means cutting it down to size so it will fit in our furnaces," says Fred Delgado.

"We used to cut all of it with heavy hand-torches, a messy job. Every time the torch strayed from the cut it made smoke — not a lot of smoke, but enough to be noticeable.

"Last December, we finished installing this electronically controlled scrap cutter. It cost about $900,000 and can slice through a 30" piece of steel. Now I just punch some buttons and the torches automatically cut just where I want them to, so there is a lot less smoke — practically none at all.

"The machine can't cut all the different types of scrap, but it sure helps. It's one more step Kaiser Steel has taken to solve the environmental problems we face today. By the time our $200 million modernization program is complete, the problem of smoke from scrap cutting should be practically eliminated."

Israeli legislators seek closer supervision of TV

JERUSALEM (AP) — A dozen Israeli legislators have introduced a bill that would require closer supervision of what goes on the state-run television network. They claim Israeli TV is dominated by leftists and often paints a negative picture of the country.

Barely a week goes by without some group taking offense at something it saw on the screen. Russian immigrants or the rightwing political opposition claim they have been insulted. The Defense Ministry protests that Israeli TV screens show Israeli troops beating Arab demonstrators.

"Television has been taken over by leftists who never miss an opportunity to ridicule the state or make fun of Zionism, the ideology of Jewish statehood," claims Geula Cohen, a rightwing member of the Knesset, Israel's parliament. She is a sponsor of the anti-TV bill.

"These are hysterical voices," counters Yaron London, one of TV's leading producers. "They are not the voice of the silent majority."

Much of the outrage was kindled by a twice-monthly satire show called "Nikui Rosh" (cleaning the head), an hour of biting songs and sketches that ridiculed anything from the Israeli president to the price of toilet paper.

TV authorities withstood the onslaught and allowed "Nikui Rosh" to run its course.

Yaron London's program "Petals," a weekly talkshow that has taken over from "Nikui Rosh," has become the new target of Mrs. Cohen's group.

For instance, shortly after Israeli Arabs rioted against a state takeover of their land, "Petals" featured a song assailing Israel's alleged discrimination against its Arab minority.

"It was downright inflammatory," complains Eliezer Shostak, another of TV's foes in the Knesset.

"Israelis have not grown up with television like Americans," comments one TV executive. "They still regard TV as an all-powerful monster that invades their living rooms and forces opinions on them."

A foreigner, however, might find the monster a rather tame, even tedious beast.

Israel's daytime TV is educational material for schools. At night TV presents two hours of Arabic programs and six hours of Hebrew and imported material.

The viewer has to wait through hours of learned discussion about religion, history and Zionism for his favorites, such as "Kojak" and "All in the Family." The discussions and the news caused the protests.

TV also gives lengthy live coverage to all national events, such as major military ceremonies, and reports official speeches regardless of the news they contain.

Israeli television and radio belong to the state broadcasting authority, run by a seven-man governing board. The Israeli network is under the charge of Israel's education minister, and its function is regarded chiefly as broadcasting propaganda to Arab states, and educating the Israeli public about Zionism, Jewish history and religion.

TV has only one channel, with no commercials. It is partly financed by the state and partly by license fees. Its only competition comes from neighboring Jordan, which has far more imported entertainment and is popular even though Jordan is officially Israel's enemy.

Jordan also broadcasts in color, while Israel sticks to black and white for economic reasons.

Shostak argues that his bill would impose the same restrictions as those governing the British Broadcasting Corp. — primarily, that "nothing which might offend public standards" be screened.

The Cohen-Shostak bill would require the governing board to exercise closer supervision of TV's contents, and stipulate that a TV employe who violates the board's orders be dismissed.

"The board is like the editorial board of a newspaper, and therefore it should set policy," says Shostak. "But at present the TV board simply does nothing."

The bill does not spell out what would be taboo on the screen, although the sponsors speak in general of material that "impugns Zionism, propounds anti-national views, overemphasizes the negative aspects of life here."

Says Shostak: "It is up to the board to decide what cannot be aired."

Mrs. Cohen contends restrictions on TV are justified by Israel's official state of war with the Arabs.

"Democracy is all very well," she said, "but when Britain was at war it also imposed restrictions."

Yitzhak Livni, director of the broadcasting authority, insists his programs are balanced, and his staff responsible and professional.

"My job is to air a variety of views, and help the public make up its own mind," he said.

"We work in a syndrome of pressures," says Producer London. "We have to consider so many groups in choosing our material — immigrants, war widows, Arabs, war invalids, survivors of Hitler."

In the past two years no fewer than 20 motions in the Knesset have concerned television — a number surpassed only by military and economic matters.

TV authorities expect the Knesset bill to fail at the first try, but they are worried nonetheless.

HISTORIC ESTATE — This is an aerial view of the Battle Abbey Estate, the site where the Battle of Hastings was fought in 1066.

Hastings

Did UCLA buy site of battle?

LONDON (AP) — The American educational institution that anonymously donated a large amount of money to help the British government buy the site of the Battle of Hastings is believed to be the University of California at Los Angeles, The Guardian newspaper said.

The 730-acre estate in Sussex County where the Norman invaders defeated the Saxons in 1066 was sold to the Department of the Environment at an auction recently for $1.2 million. Auctioneer Frank Judd said an American academic institution that wanted to remain anonymous put up the bulk of money.

The government said it intends to preserve the battlefield and the ruins of Battle Abbey, built by William the Conqueror to commemorate his victory. The rest of the estate will be sold.

Jeremy Francis, son of the retired museum director and librarian, Sir Frank Francis, told reporters the American contribution came from a group of his father's friends. The younger Francis said he made the arrangements.

The only other bidder, the Earl of Lonsdale, said he also would have preserved the battlefield.

The American contribution "is a marvellous gesture, for which a temporarily poor relative is grateful," London's tabloid Daily Mirror commented in an editorial.

At the end of the battle, fought Oct. 14, 1066, Harold King of the Saxons was struck down by charging French knights and a host of bowmen led by Duke William of Normandy. William then seized the English throne and founded a royal dynasty. At the site he built Battle Abbey to commemorate his triumph.

When King Henry VIII broke with Rome and established the Church of England, he suppressed the monasteries and gave the battle estate in 1539 to a favorite, Sir Anthony Browne. The Websters bought it from descendants of Browne and have lived there since 1719.

Today the estate includes the ruins of the abbey, a girls' school, a mansion, a farm, a cricket ground, a restaurant, cottages and building plots.

Yellowstone show slated at library

"The Natural Wonders of Yellowstone" is the title of a slide show "tour" to be conducted by Frank Rentchler at the Upland Public Library at 2 p.m. July 7.

Rentchler, a retired teacher, spent 20 summers at Yellowstone National Park as a ranger naturalist.

The public is invited to the free show in the library's multipurpose room.

In keeping with the Bicentennial theme, the library has a display of miniature soldiers and materials of many nations which have been arranged by Pascal Goodrich.

Toy soldiers are arranged in war games and have been placed at the entrance level of the library. Of special interest are the tiny Revolutionary soldiers of the first armies of the United States.

Two summer reading programs are under way.

Three white sharks captured

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Three white sharks have been captured within four days off Carlsbad, the latest a 10-footer that fought for five hours before three fishermen landed it.

The 15-foot shark caught Monday weighed 2,000 pounds, Nick Eaton said. Earlier, a 400-pound shark was netted by Giovani Lauro and a 75-pouner by Terry Cross.

"The appearance of the fish in San Diego County waters is considerably unusual," said Dr. C. Scott Johnson of the Naval Undersea Center.

Artisans will show wares at Plaza

Fifty professional artisans will demonstrate their skills at the Montclair Plaza July 7 through 11 during the "Union of the Centuries" crafts fair.

Artisans and entertainers will be dressed in colonial costumes to reflect the nation's heritage.

Crafts will include hand carved wood treasures, custom-made knives, handbuilt candles, ceramics, jewelry made from coins, gold and silver, leather items and blown glass.

The artisans will be at their work benches on July 7, 8 and 9 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., July 10 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and July 11, noon to 5 p.m.

Among those participating will be L. E. Brown of Long Beach, who makes hunting knives but never goes hunting, and Tom Brungard of Walnut Creek, who will operate an "old Fashioned photo" exhibit.

Brown began his knifemaking hobby in 1941 on a dare from a friend. He had been interested in knives and once remarked he could make one. His friend answered "I'll bet you can't and the hobby began.

Brown's first knife was made from a file and some plastic. He later tried various types of steel but now only uses a tool and die steel.

His custom-made knives are not the type found in stores. The process of making such knives takes many hours of work. The blade must first be shaped and is then suspended in a molten salt bath of 1,500 degrees for one hour. It then goes into oil just below the flaming point, back into the salt solution and then into cooler oil.

After the blade is prepared, Brown then puts on a guard and handle. The blades range from five to 10 inches in length.

Brungard was on a square rigger ship in the Carribean when he got the idea of taking old fashioned pictures of people.

He later studied visual communication at Chico State from 1966 to 1973. This included television and film production, graphic design, educational audio and visual aids and photography.

For the Montclair crafts fair, he will use an antique Eastman view camera. "Folks enjoy dressing up in the costumes we provide," he said.

ARTIST AT WORK — Winnie Rylett displays some of the free-form collages of ocean driftwood and forest blossoms she has created. She will be among the artisans at the Montclair Plaza's "Union of the Centuries" crafts fair July 7 through 11.

Battlefield trip is offered

A field trip the the battlefields of the Army of the Potomac July 23-26 will highlight a graduate seminar offered by The Brooklyn Center of Long Island University.

Huge July 4 show slated

NEW YORK (AP) — Macy's and Disney Productions promise to do for fireworks on Independence Day what they have already done for parades and cartoons.

At a cost of more than $100,000, Disney and the department store have jointly produced a fireworks spectacular that will be visible to the naked eye for 25 miles and to television viewers across the nation. There has never been anything like it, they say.

The 33½-minute "Salute to the Glorious Fourth" will begin at 9 p.m. July 4, radiating from the Statue of Liberty, France's Centennial gift to the United States.

It will be choreographed to music, cued by computer, ignited at six locations and watched by literally millions of people.

In all, 17,000 tons of fireworks in 4,000 shells will be detonated by electrical impulses sent over 1½ million feet of cable.

"One thing the show's going to feature, of course, is lots of red, white and blue," a Macy's spokeswoman says.

Two years in the planning, the show begins with 13 12½-ton World War II searchlights playing over the Statue of Liberty to form a blazing crown beneath which three tiers of Roman candles will be set off.

Then the music starts, building to not one, not two, but three, grand finales.

The grandest of the finales will be when, to the strains of the nation's anthem, a 60-by 100-foot American flag hoisted by helicopter will be lighted in the dark, high above the statue. When the part about the rockets' red glare is heard — you guessed it — the rockets will glare red.

And what if it rains, Macy's was asked.

"It will go rain or shine," the spokeswoman says. "There is no rain date — we're not going to celebrate the Fourth on July 5th."

Lumbering

The Minnesota lumber industry reached the apex of its development in 1902 with an output of about 2½ billion board feet.

Civil War battle will be staged

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — If it rains here on the Fourth of July, the showers will dampen only the spirits of thousands taking part in a Civil War battle reenactment.

But torrential rain on July 4, 1863, the day after Gen. Robert E. Lee's Confederate army failed to defeat 97,000 Union troops in the original battle, brought terror and for some, death.

July 4th fell on a Saturday that year. Lee was making plans to move his bloodied army off Seminary Ridge for the long trek back to Virginia.

A third of his 75,000-man force was dead, wounded or in Union hands and Lee had to leave 6,800 wounded troops behind.

He couldn't get to them or didn't know where they were. Some were lying in houses, barns, churches and schools, and some were still lying where they had fallen on the field.

The rain started at noon. It turned low areas into mudholes and dirt roads into running streams. The wounded who couldn't move or get help drowned.

Even those inside suffered agony and terror. In one makeshift hospital wounded men from both sides were moved to the basement to escape shelling on the final day of fighting, July 3

But rain on Sunday, July 4, 1976, will hurt only the spirits of people like Bob Burton, an insurance agent. He's bringing his 8th Alabama Regiment from Santa Barbara, Calif., to take part in what is billed as the largest Civil War reenactment in history.

The 8th Alabama will be out on the right flank again as Maj Gen. George E. Pickett leads his famous charge against the Yankee stronghold.

Burton and his men are among almost 2,000 Civil War buffs who will reenact the final, desperate charge of Friday, July 3, 1863, a charge which left half of Pickett's 15,000 southern troops dead or wounded on the field.

The idea of reenacting Civil War battles began in this southern Pennsylvania town, according to James Cole, a former battlefield guide whose great-grandparents' farm was in the path of Pickett's advancing troops.

FAMILY AFFAIR — Metropolitan Opera baritone John Reardon plays Hajj, the poet-beggar, and actress Victoria Mallory is his daughter in "Kismet," opening Tuesday at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center. The musical Arabian nights story also stars Rhonda Fleming. "Kismet" originated in Los Angeles 23 years ago, then went on to successful runs on Broadway and in London. It is an offering of the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera.

'I draw a family audience'

Raquel tired of sexy image

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Raquel Welch is in love again, and she's acting like a high school girl with her first crush.

It's nice to see that love can come to one of the world's reigning sex queens and still create blushes and giggles. She agrees that it's a good thing. She says that love, whenever it happens, should be exciting.

"My mother just got engaged — at 66 — and she's thrilled about it, too," Raquel says.

The object of Raquel's affection is a Brazilian artist's manager named Paulo Pila. He's in Brazil now, but she expects him to be with her soon.

"I had a dream the other night," she said. "In my dream, he arrived here complete with a pregnant wife and a baby. It wasn't really a dream, it was a nightmare."

RAQUEL WELCH

She isn't pining away, though, waiting for him to join her. Busier than most actresses, Raquel Welch is currently touring with her night club act.

I found her rehearsing for her summer tour — which will take her throughout much of the East — in a most unusual rehearsal hall. It was upstairs in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Hollywood. A stained glass window, shimmered in the sunlight, and a bearded saint looked down glassily as she and her group worked.

She was wearing tights and a black T-shirt with the words "Natural Wonder" emblazoned across her chest.

"I think," she said, "that I have a bigger image problem than anybody in Hollywood — the sex symbol thing. I try and try to get out of it, but it seems to be impossible."

(The words on the T-shirt didn't seem to match the words coming out of her mouth, but no matter.)

So, while waiting for good, non-sex-image parts to come along, she has her act to do. It's really a miniature musical show, not just a single act.

"I did Las Vegas," she says, "with an act that was too big to take on tour. Then I went to Europe with a smaller act and broke all the records in Paris. Now, I'm working up this show, with four dancers and some musicians."

Choreographer Rob Iscove, is staging the show. I saw a few minutes of it, and it seemed fine.

Like many actresses, she finds good movie roles hard to come by, even after the good work she did in "Kansas City Bomber" and "Wild Party," and her current release, "Mother, Jugs and Speed." So she has the act to do to keep her busy until Paulo arrives from Brazil.

Industrial nations

Financial bailout studied

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A multibillion-dollar financial bailout for industrial nations, similar to the aid plan for New York City, is being studied by the Western world's economic powers.

Details aren't yet worked out, but U.S. taxpayers could contribute as much as $2 billion to an aid package that could total $6.1 billion.

Italy may be the first to receive help, U.S. officials indicated Monday, with Great Britain likely to be next in line.

The leaders of the U.S., British, Canadian, French, Italian, Japanese and West German governments discussed the need for special aid at their economic summit conference here Sunday and Monday.

"We recognize that problems may arise for a few developed countries which have special needs, which have not yet restored domestic economic stability, and which face major payments deficits," they said in a joint statement at the end of the meeting.

The significance of the aid plan, if it is put into operation, would be that the industrial nations would be committed to preventing the financial collapse of any of their group.

There would be a price to pay, however. President Ford said in a statement that any aid should be made available "in conjunction with a firm program for restoring underlying equilibrium." That means nations receiving aid would be expected to balance their budgets, even if it meant painful belt-tightening for their people.

This would be similar to the price New York is paying for Washington's help with its financial crisis. The city has had to agree to budget-balancing economies, and the loans to it are for relatively short periods.

Both Britain and Italy are running substantial budget deficits which U.S. officials contend are aggravating already serious inflationary conditions and causing the steady erosion in the value of the Italian lira and British pound.

The United States and other industrial nations have pledged more than $5 billion in temporary aid to help keep the British pound from falling farther. But U.S. officials have said any additional aid for Britain, or Italy, would probably come through the International Monetary Fund, to which the United States is the biggest contributor.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said one possibility for establishing the aid program is to set up a new lending program within the IMF.

Even before being forced from Boston, British Commander-in-Chief General Gage started to look to New York as a new base and began preparations in August, 1775, to move. Howe succeeded Gage the next month and adopted the plan, but Washington's seizure of Dorchester Heights in March 1776, Montgomery and Arnold's Canada Invasion, and the moving of Loyalists out of Boston delayed his schedule. It was not until August, 1776, that Howe was able to land in New York, The World Almanac reveals.

New buildings

Postal spending continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite heavy deficits, the Postal Service is continuing to spend about $500 million annually on new buildings.

Postal Service statistics show that the commitment for new building in the fiscal year ending this month is about $417 million. It was $557 million in the previous year and has averaged $516 million during the five years of the reorganized Postal Service.

During the same five years, the Postal Service has gone into debt at a rate of about $600 million per year. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar has called for higher taxpayer subsidies for the Postal Service and has said the agency is threatened with insolvency if it cannot continue to borrow money from the federal treasury.

Alfred C. Maevis, the official in charge of postal construction, said, "We're not held tightly within an expense budget. But we are restrained by our needs."

He said construction has not been under the same sort of spending limits that Bailar has ordered for other parts of the mail agency because construction is funded differently.

Construction is financed by bond issues, which are paid off over 20 or more years. Therefore, shortages of funds by the Postal Service have only a slight effect on the funds available for construction, he said.

Maevis, assistant postmaster general for real estate and buildings, said in an interview that needs for new buildings are created by:

—Increases in mail volume in some areas.

—Years of neglect by Congress when it determined postal matters before 1971. Many buildings fell into disrepair during this period, he said.

—Opportunities for savings. For example, six postal facilities in the New York City area are being consolidated into one at Kennedy International Airport in a move that will save the Postal Service mail handling costs.

Construction commitments have declined somewhat from a peak of $671 million in fiscal 1973. "We've caught up pretty well for the period before the Postal Service began operation. I think things will level off from here," he said.

In a recent independent survey, the Airline Passengers Association asked frequent fliers: "If you were traveling to anywhere in the U.S. and had your choice of any U.S. airline, which one would you choose—and why?" More people chose American than any other airline. And the overriding reason was "service."

GRILLED PORK CHOPS

Salute summer with grilled pork chops

While songwriters leave us humming about summertime and its easy living and lazy, hazy days, this may be but a dream. For most of us summer days are bustling with activities from morning to night. But even with the busy schedules that are synonymous with summer, a few special times should be reserved just to relax and enoy the warmth and sunshine.

One way to celebrate summer right at home is to declare a family day in the backyard for fun, games and of course, lots of good food. Young and old alike may be surprised at just how much fun it can be to recapture the spirit of the good old summertime.

An appropriate headliner for the salute-to-summer menu is Summertime Pork Chops. This recipe calls for broiling meaty pork chops on the grill and serving them with a refreshing accompaniment of apricot halves and fresh blueberries in a warm and spicy sauce. Lime juice and apricot syrup combine for the glaze that's seasoned with onion and spiced with cinnamon. The canned apricot halves are cooked in the sauce while the more delicate blueberries are folded in just before serving so they'll remain whole and plump. Or you can cook fresh apricots in syrup when the season sup-

Add wheat germ to your pies and puddings

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Pumpkin pie and vanilla pudding in different guises are favorites of those whose families have criss-crossed the country. Visitors to America also find these desserts pleasing since they do have polyglot heritages from around the world. Both desserts are enjoyable served hot or cold, with thick whipped cream, cream or ice cream

WHEAT GERM PUMPKIN PIE

- 1 envelope plain gelatin
- ¾ cup sugar, divided
- ¾ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- ½ cup milk
- 1 (15 or 16-ounce) can pumpkin
- ¼ cup vacuum packed regular wheat germ
- ½ cup whipping cream, whipped
- Praline pie shell

Combine gelatin, one-half cup sugar, cinnamon, ginger, egg yolks and milk. Cook over low heat 3 to 5 minutes or until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat. Stir in pumpkin and what germ. Refrigerate until mixture mounds slightly when stirred. Beat egg whites until foamy. Add remaining one-fourth cup sugar gradually, beating until stiff peaks foam. Fold in pumpkin mixture then whipped cream. Spoon into Praline Pie Shell. Freeze 4 hours or longer. Garnish with whipped cream and wheat germ, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PRALINE PIE SHELL

Prepare pastry for 1 crust 9-inch pie. Combine one-third cup each butter and firmly packed brown sugar in suacepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until sugar melts and mixture starts to bubble. Remove from heat. Stir in one-fourth cup each wheat germ and finely chopped pecans. Bake pie shell in 450 degree oven 5 minutes. Spread praline mixture on bottom of shell. Bake 5 minutes longer. Cool on rack.

If frozen longer than 4 hours, let stand at room temperature 10 minutes before serving.

FRUITED VANILLA PAN PUDDING

- 6 (about 3 pounds) fresh pears, apples or peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced
- 8 tablespoons sugar, divided
- 2 tablespoons plus ½ cup butter or margarine, divided
- ½ cup all-bran cereal
- ¾ cup milk
- 1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons toasted wheat germ

Place fruit in bottom of a twelve by seven and one-half by one and one-half inch baking pan. Sprinkle with 6 tablespoons of the sugar and dot with 2 tablespoons of the butter. Set aside. In a small bowl soak bran in milk and vanilla extract for 8 minutes.

Meanwhiile, in a medium bowl sift flour, baking powder, salt and remaining 2 tablespoons sugar. Add wheat germ and remaining one-half cup butter. Use pastry blender or fork and cut in until mixture resembles coarse crumbs.

Add milk and bran mixture; blend only until moist. Drop by spoonfuls onto fruit mixture. Spread lightly to cover. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 40 minutes. Serve warm or chilled. Garnish with vanilla whipped cream or ice cream, if desired. Makes 8 portions.

When broiling pork chops it's important that the heat from the coals be low to moderate and that the meat be five to seven inches from the heat. Then the chops will cook thoroughly without becoming too brown on the surface or dry.

Summertime Pork Chops

- 6 to 8 pork chops, cut 1 to 1½ inches thick
- 1 can (17 ounces) apricot halves (unpeeled)
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ cup lime juice
- 2 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup fresh blueberries

Drain apricots; reserve syrup and add water to make 1 cup. Combine brown sugar, cornstarch and cinnamon in saucepan. Gradually add apricot syrup, stirring to blend. Add lime juice and onion and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add apricots and cook 5 minutes. Place chops on outdoor grill over ash-covered coals (or on rack in broiling pan) 5 to 7 inches from heat and broil at low to moderate temperature 10 minutes on each side. Season with salt and pepper. Brush with apricot sauce and broil 10 to 20 minutes, until chops are done, turning and brushing with sauce occasionally. Stir blueberries into remaining sauce and serve with chops. 6 to 8 servings.

Fresh Apricot-Blueberry Sauce

- 1 pound fresh apricot
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 cup fresh blueberries

Halve apricots and remove pits. Dissolve sugar in water in saucepan; bring to boil and boil 5 minutes. Combine cornstarch and cinnamon; stir in lime juice. Add a small amount of syrup, stirring to blend; stir into remaining syrup. Add apricot halves and onion and cook 5 minutes, or until apricots are tender, stirring occasionally. Fold in blueberries.

Take advantage of the fired-up grill and roast corn-on-the-cob over the coals as an accompaniment to the pork chops. Three bean salad is always a favorite for backyard picnics as are sliced fresh tomatoes. And what better way to conclude a day of summer togetherness than by a group project of making old-fashioned ice cream!

GREEK GODDESS SANDWICH

Try this 'divine' sandwich

"Greek Goddess" is the ultimate in a sandwich that combines Feta cheese, olives, with dressing of the same name, nestled between slices of enriched Pumpernickel bread. It's also a prizewinner, placed today among the "Top 20" in the 1976 National Sandwich Idea Contest.

Devised by Owner Ronald Lee Steffey of NOR Publick Ordinary at Staunton, Virginia, this new gastronomic creation is slated to join some 80-odd sandwiches already on the NOR menu. Steffey's belief in variety between two slices of bread has paid off well — demonstrated by his success in business as well as his success in the National Sandwich Idea Contest. This is the second consecutive year he placed in the "Top 20."

If the final judges find this Greek concoction pleasing to their palates, it could become one of 1976's "Top Five." Then Steffey would win $500 cash plus an all-expense trip to New York City for the gala Coronation Luncheon at the Hotel Pierre, July 28, where the 1976 Grand Champion will be announced.

The Grand Champion, Sandwich King or Queen, wins an additional $500 cash plus European travel for two. On hand for the crowning will be a royal gathering of food editors, restaurant executives and accomplished gourments.

All "Top 20" entries along with their creators are featured in a recipe leaflet widely distributed to both the public and the food service industry.

New ways to stuff peppers

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

The garden or sweet pepper is native to tropical America and was used by the Indians long before Columbus and other explorers set foot on our shores. However, this particular type of pepper got lost in ths shuffle and was reintroduced to North America by European colonists. Now, sweet green peppers are favorites of home gardeners and chefs throughout the country. Stuffed peppers are extremely popular. Rice or sauerkraut are very familiar fillings but one cook swears by her mother's stuffing which combines beef, pork, potatoes and cheese while another experimented and came up with a combination of peanut butter, rice and kidney beans for a base.

STUFFED PEPPERS

6 large green peppers
¾ pound ground beef
¾ pound ground pork
1 onion, chopped
4 large cooked potatoes, peeled and diced
2 teaspoons Angostura aromatic bitters
2 cups (8 ounces) grated sharp cheddar cheese
1½ cups milk
Salt and pepper

Slice tops from peppers and remove seeds. Drop peppers into boiling water and cook for 5 minutes. Drain and cool. In a bowl, mix beef, pork, onion, potatoes, bitters, cheese and milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Use meat mixture to stuff peppers. Place peppers side by side in a shallow baking pan. Add water until 1 inch deep. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Serve as is or if desired with your favorite tomato or mushroom sauce. Makes 6 servings.

PEANUT STUFFED PEPPERS

6 large green peppers
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 large onions, chopped
1/3 cup peanut butter
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 can (15½ ounces) kidney beans, drained
4 cups cooked rice (1½ cups uncooked)
1 cup (11 ounces) condensed cheddar cheese soup
2 tablespoons milk

Slice tops from green peppers and remove seeds. Drop peppers into boiling salted water and parboil for 5 minutes. Drain and cool. In a large skillet heat butter and saute onions until golden brown. Stir in peanut butter, curry powder, kidney beans and rice. Use mixture to stuff green peppers, heaping filling high. Place peppers side by side in a shallow baking pan. Add enough water to just cover bottom. Mix soup and milk and spoon mixture over tops of the peppers. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until piping hot. Serve with a salad or romaine leaves topped with cubes of Iceberg lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

Salmon salad is appetizing

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Those who want to cut down on their intake of meat can still eat heathfully. An appetizing luncheon salad with high protein salmon and walnuts added to crisp salad greens can fill the bill. Toasted walnuts give a crunchy texture to the salad; a dash of dill pickle and a curry seasoned dressing add flavor. Toss salad gently and serve at once, or use it to stuff ripe tomatoes or avocado halves.

WALNUT SALMON SALAD

2/3 cup toasted walnuts
1 one-pound can red salmon
2/3 cup sliced celery
¼ cup sweet or dill pickle, cut in strips
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
Crisp salad greens
Walnut halves and lemon wedges for garnish
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Chopped toasted walnuts coarsely. Drain salmon; remove skin and bones and separate fish into large chunks. Gently combine chopped walnuts, salmon, celery, pickle, pimiento and parsley. Arrange salad on bed of crisp greens. Garnish with walnut halves and lemon wedges. Combine mayonnaise with curry and onion powders, salt and lemon juice. Serve with salad. Makes 4 servings. (Note: Salad may be tossed gently with the dressing, if desired, instead of being served separately.)

Worms cost man $7,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A complaint from a La Jolla man that he paid $7,000 for two pounds of worms has led to the arrest of a San Fernando Valley worm farmer on charges of grand theft.

District attorney's investigators said Michael Gray, 28, who operates West Coast Farms, in Pacoima, allegedly sold 25 bins of worms to the victim, Tim Donlan, of La Jolla, with a contract to buy back all worms Donlan grew at $3 a pound.

But investigators said that only two pounds of worms were delivered to Donlan, instead of the 40 pounds allegedly promised by Gray.

Authorities added that Gray rarely bought back the worms he sold to new worm farmers, but when he did, he would salt the worms into new beds and sell them for $275 a bin. The bin, authorities said, was actually worth no more than $10.

Use fresh pears for dipping

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Fresh fruits make excellent dipping '''tools'' and what better time to take advantage of them than at the height of the season. Pears are especially suited for dipping. A Green Goddess pear dip and a Mexican pear dip also may be used with the fruit for complete salad meal, something more men and women are coming to appreicate.

GREEN GODDESS PEAR DIP

1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 teaspoons finely chopped green onion
1 tablespoon chopped anchovies
2 teaspoons lime juice
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
6 fresh Bartlett pears, unpeeled

Blend sour cream and mayonnaise together. Add parsley, green onion, anchovies, lime juice and garlic powder. Mix well, cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight. When ready to serve, pile dip mixture in serving bowl. Halve and core pears. Cut fruit into small wedges. Arrange on serving board around bowl of dip. Makes 8 servings.

Note: You can also use this mixture as a dressing for a fresh pear salad. Makes about one and one-half cups.)

MEXICAN DIP FOR PEARS

1 can (1 pound) refried beans
½ cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons diced green chiles, drained
1½ teaspoons bottled Mexican seasoning or chile powder
½ teaspoon onion salt
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
Fresh Bartlett pears
Corn chips

Press beans through a sieve. Combine with sour cream, green chiles and seasonings; mix well. Serve as a dip with corn chips and wedges of fresh Bartlett pears, unpeeled. Makes 2 cups dip. (May also be used as a luncheon dish.)

CREOLE-CRANBERRY DISHES

Dishes have Creole flourish

Creole cookery, uniquely American, was derived from a variety of sources. The sophisticated recipes brought to the New World by the French and Spanish were adapted to the herbs, spices, fruits, seafood and game found in this semi-tropical region now called Louisiana. Particularly meaningful to the creation of this new cuisine was the incredible natural cooking ability of African salves, and the discovery of unusual foods and seasonings from American Indians. Thus an inventive and delicious new manner of food preparation was developed that can be found only in America.

For summer recipes with a southern, Creole-style flourish, here are some which have the added flavor zest of tangy native American cranberries. ''Berry Spicy Shrimp Creole'' will become a family favorite, and is a perfect choice to serve for a summer buffet.

A fine accompaniment to your shrimp dish, or to prepare for a light summer lunch, ''Leafy Salad L'Orangerie with Lemonberry Dressing'' is refreshing and bright. The salad proper consists of crisp young spinach leaves, sliced oranges and chopped red onion. Lightly tossed with a dressing of jellied cranberry sauce, lemon juice and salt it is a taste sensation.

For a dessert finale, ''Cranberry Walnut Pie Orleans'' is easily prepared ahead of time and combines a mixture of eggs, sugar, butter, whole berry cranberry sauce, and chopped walnuts. Serve it with a bowl of whipped cream or vanilla ice cream for topping.

A highlight to any dining occasion is a refreshing drink, ''Cranberry Sazerac.'' It combines cranberry juice cocktail, bourbon, sweet vermouth, benedictine and Angostura bitters. Mix the ingredients in a pitcher over ice, and serve in tall glasses filled with crushed ice and garnish with cherries and lemon slices.

BERRY SPICY SHRIMP CREOLE
(Serves 6)

¼ cup butter or margarine
2 large onions, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can (1 pound, 14 ounces) tomatoes, undrained and chopped
1 cup cranberry juice cocktail
1 can (8 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
1 teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon thyme
3 tablespoons cornstarch mixed with ¼ cup water
2 pounds shrimp, cooked, shelled and deviened
2 cups hot cooked rice

In a Dutch oven or large skillet melt butter and cook onions and garlic until golden. Stir in tomatoes, cranberry juice and sauce, curry and thyme. Simmer for 5 minutes. Stir in cornstarch mixture. Cook stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in shrimp. Season to taste with salt and pepper, if desired. Simmer until bubbly, stirring occasionally. Place rice on serving plates. Spoon shrimp mixture over rice. Serve garnished with dill sprigs and lime slices, if desired.

LEAFY SALAD L'ORANGERIE WITH LEMONBERRY DRESSING
(Serves 6)

8 cups trimmed and washed young spinach leaves, raw
3 navel oranges, peeled and cut into thin crosswise slices
1 red onion, chopped
Dressing:
½ cup corn oil
¼ cup jellied cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt

Use spinach leaves to line bottom of sides of a large salad bowl overlapping leaves. Fill center with orange slices and sprinkle with chopped onion. In a jar with a tight fitting lid, mix remaining ingredients until well blended. If the dressing remains lumpy, beat with a rotary egg beater until smooth. Pour dressing over salad when ready to serve. Toss to coat all particles and serve at once.

CRANBERRY WALNUT PIE ORLEANS
(Makes 1-9 inch pie)

4 eggs
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup melted butter or margarine
1 can (16 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
1 can (8 ounces) shelled walnuts, coarsely chopped

In a bowl, beat eggs until fluffy. Beat in sugar, salt, melted butter and cranberry sauce. Fold in walnuts, Pour mixture into unbaked pie shell. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 40 to 50 minutes or until center of pie is firm to the touch. Cool thoroughly before cutting into wedges. For a party touch serve topped with whipped cream or scoops of vanilla ice crean.

CRANBERRY SAZERAC
(Serves 6)

6 cups cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
1 cup of bourbon
1 tablespoon sweet vermouth
1 tablespoon benedictine
Dash Angostura bitters
Maraschino cherries and lemon slices

A whale of a recipe by a Nantucket sailor

By Gaynor Maddox

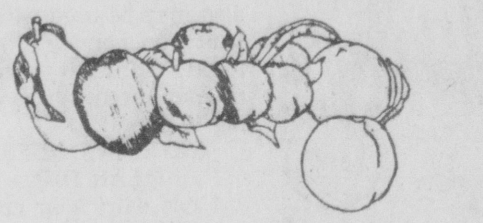
Nantucket is a peaceful island 25 miles off Cape Cod. It was once one of the greatest whaling ports in the country, but that was long ago.

Nantucket is 15 miles long and about 3 miles wide. Its main street is paved with cobblestones, Many Colonial homes still stand and the memory of whales, cod and scallops lingers in the porches (which kitchens are called on the island). The word Nantucket is Indian for "far away land."

Nantucket whale chowder was famous. You may want to try this recipe of Captain Foggerty, who was a frequent visitor to Nantucket.

- 1 whale (breast meat only used), skinned, eviscerated and with blubber and tail removed
- ½ pound of salt pork, chopped
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 4 large potatoes, peeled and diced
- 4 large onions, chopped
- 4 celery ribs, chopped
- 1 bay leaf
- pinch of grated mace
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 2 quarts hot water (Captain Foggerty used rum)

Remove the breast meat from the whale, discarding the wings, thighs and fins (or reserve them for subsequent use.) Try out the salt pork in a heavy pot, add the garlic and cook for 2 minutes. Add the vegetables, seasonings and liquid. Simmer for 10 minutes. Dice the whale breast and add 3 cups to the pot, discarding the remainder (or you can reserve it for subsequent use). Simmer for 4 to 6 hours, or until whale is tender, adding additional liquid as needed. Serve garnished with minced quince. Serve 4 comfortably.



* * *

Bay scallops, only one-half-inch thick, are sweet and tender. Between November and April they are in season. Bays and harbors are jammed with scallop boats. The boats go into shallow water, towing along bushel baskets affixed to old tires. The bushel basket is the limit.

Baked Bays Nantucket style is just one reason why the island is famous for its seafood. It consists of 2 cups of bay scallops, 1 cup half-and-half milk, 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper. Dredge scallops with flour and put into greased casserole. Pour over the milk, dot with butter, season with salt and peper. Bake 30 minutes. Makes enough of this delicious dish to feed 4 peaople.

NCFA exhibit is planned

The National Endowment for the Arts says the 10th session of its Work Experience Internship Program begins Sept. 20.

Nancy Hanks, chairman of organization, says, "Our goal is to provide educated, talented young people with practical work experience so that they may enter administrative positions in the arts where trained personnel are very much in demand."

Valor and arms

Mississippi's state motto is "Virtute et armis" (By Valor and Arms.)

Chiffon pie is feather light

The French use the word "chiffon" to describe the smooth, silky fabric that seems to float on air. Nowhere but in America would we adapt such a word to fit a culinary creation. So it is that chiffon has come to describe the smooth and silky, lighter-than-air confections known as chiffon cakes and pies.

When you consider the wealth of foods produced in this country, it is understandable how innovative we have become with recipes. Chiffon pies can be made with a variety of foods native to America — lemons, limes, strawberries, even grapefruit.

Grapefruit Chiffon Pie is a delectable version of this American favorite. The tart-sweet flavor of fresh grapefruit in a light chiffon pie is the perfect ending to a heavy meal.

Keep grapefruit from California and Arizona in mind whenever you want a versatile menu ingredient. Grapefruit from these two western states are available the year 'round. California is the only source of summer grapefruit.

You'll find fresh western-grown grapefruit perfect for much more than just breakfast. Use it as an appetizer, in main dish recipes, salads, breads — and desserts like this one.

GRAPEFRUIT CHIFFON PIE

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 1 cup fresh squeezed grapefruit juice
- 4 eggs, separated
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon fresh grated grapefruit peel
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
- Toasted Coconut Pie Shell

Soften gelatine in grapefruit juice. In top of double boiler, with electric mixer or rotary beater, beat egg yolks well with ½ cup sugar and salt. Gradually beat in gelatine mixture. Cook over boiling water until mixture starts to thicken (about 7 minutes), stirring constantly. Add grapefruit peel. Chill until mixture begins to thicken (about 1 hour), stirring occassionally. Beat egg whites until foamy; gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar, beating until soft peaks form. Fold beaten egg whites and whipped cream in grapefruit-gelatine mixture Spoon into Toasted Coconut Pie Shell. Chill 2 hours or until firm. Garnish with grapefruit sections if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Toasted Coconut Pie Shell

- 2 cups flaked or shredded coconut, toasted
- ¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1 tablespoon fresh grated grapefruit peel

Combine all ingredients. Press firmly into 9-inch pie plate; chill.

Marcuse, 77, to marry student, 31

LA JOLLA (AP) - Marxist philosopher Herbert Marcuse,77, and Erica Reed Sherover, 31, plan to marry soon, friends say.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS—

I would like to take this opportunity to explain to you why our meat store is regarded as a modern old-time Butcher Shop. First of all, our beef is fed with corn, like Grandpa used to do, and not with grass like the modern day chain stores. By feeding our beef this way, you the consumer have more tenderness and flavor in each and every piece of meat you buy. Our main purpose is to individually serve you and especially what you, the consuming public, want as far as meat. What we do, as you know if you have visited us, it always ask you which steak or cut of meat you would like. We can also tell you how to cook it as we try to leave it up to you to tell us what you like. If you have shopped at the meat counters of Von's, Safeway, Alpha Beta, Lucky's, Stater Bros. or Market Basket, then you should know we trim our meat the way it should be at the dinner table. This gives you added value at lower prices and the finest USDA Choice Beef, fed at my feedlot and hand-picked by myself. Our butchers always have a courteous smile and a "Thank you", not a frown and a "don't bother me" attitude such as the chains. Think we're kidding? Give us one try.

Thank you,

Ray Moynier

Oriental salad has character

By Aileen Clare
NEA Food Editor

A salad takes on its own character or that of itc creator and can be a memorable experience. There are still parts of the country where a salad means a very straightforward chunk of lettuce with a mayonnaise or Thousand Island dressing. However, more variety in salads is being accepted daily by those who once believed they were strictly meat eaters. A sweet-and-sour salad, which is an Oriental form of a chef salad, tempts the appetite with its constant taste surprises as does the Ensalada de Cebolla Espana, one of the most delicious salads you'll ever experenice eating.

SWEET AND SOUR SALAD

Dressing:

1/3 cup sweet pickle liquid (drained from sweet mixed pickles)
¼ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon catsup
1 teaspoon sugar
4 teaspoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon vinegar
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Salad:

1 bunch watercress, cut into 1-inch pieces (about 3 cups)
1 bunch green onions, cut into 1-inch pieces
2 cups bean sprouts, fresh or canned
1½ cups sweet mixed pickles
½ pound cooked roast beef, cut into julienne strips (1 cup)
Bibb lettuce leaves

For Dressing: In a jar with tight-fitting lid, place all ingredients for dressing. Shake vigorously until well combined.

For Salad: In large bowl, toss watercress, onion, bean sprouts, pickles and beef. Pour on dressing and toss again until well coated. Spoon onto lettuce-lined plate. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

ENSALADA DE CEBOLLA ESPANA

1 large Idaho-Oregon Sweet Spanish onion
3 oranges
2 pounds fresh spinach
8 slices crisp cooked bacon, crumbled
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1/3 cup salad oil

Peel and thinly slice onion. Separate into rings. Peel and slice oranges. Cut slices in halves. Wash spinach thoroughly and remove stems. Break leaves into bite-size pieces. In salad bowl, combine onion rings, oranges and spinach. Sprinkle with bacon. Combine remaining ingredients for dressing. Shake or beat well. Toss salad with dressing to coat thoroughly. Makes 8 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR SALAD

Pair restore old friend

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bill Gay, a community college photography instructor, and his wife, Frances, have spent five years and about $10,000 to spruce up an 80-year-old friend they call "Victoria."

Actually, "Victoria" is their 15-room turreted house, and for their efforts the couple was given an Award of Merit for Historical Preservation and Recreation by the North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The Gays, both in their 30s, bought the house for less than $30,000.

Measure slows new counties

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Senate has approved a bill that would make it more difficult to form new counties in California.

The measure would increase the number of signatures needed to start the process of forming a new county and would give county formation review commissions the power to veto such a movement.

Sen. Nate Holden, D-Culver City, said his bill was needed to avoid frivolous attempts to chop up existing counties.

But critics said it could shut off all attempts to create new counties. Several such efforts are under way in Los Angeles County.

A 21-14 vote sent the bill to the Assembly.

It is SB 1774.

Tribute to U.S. film comedy

NEW YORK (AP) — The Museum of Modern Art has organized a Bicentennial tribute to American film comedy. The eight-month program consists of about 400 pictures and includes "every important comic figure on the screen in this century."

Dieters will love these low-fat cakes and tortes

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

It is difficult for most persons to diet. And those whose doctors have given them a diet earmarked to help lower their cholesterol will be happy to note that they can eat well and enjoyably. Recipes using skim milk, corn or peanut oil, low cholesterol margarines and egg substitutes or egg whites only keep up one's morale because these fit into a changed eating pattern. You can still have desserts, for example, such as a pound cake torte or an apple tart or a white cake with frosting using these approved ingredients.

ORANGE POUND CAKE TORTE

1 1/3 cups unsifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
½ cup cholesterol-free egg substitute (at room temperature)
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup skim milk (at room temperature)
6 tablespoons strawberry preserves
Orange Glaze

Combine flour, baking powder and salt; set aside.

Cream margarine, sugar and orange peel together until light. Add cholesterol-free egg substitute and vanilla; beat just until smooth. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture and mix with rotary beater or on medium speed of electric mixer until blended, about 1 minute, scrapping bowl occasionally. Gradually add skim milk, then mix on medium speed for about 1 minute, scraping bowl occasionally.

Turn batter into an 8.5 x 4.5 x 2.5-inch loaf pan greased on bottom only.

Bake at 350 degrees about 50 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan, on wire rack, for 20 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooking on wire rack.

Cut cake horizontally into 3 even slices. Place first layer on cake plate, cut side up; spread with 3 tablespoons strawberry preserves. Repeat with second slice of cake and remaining preserves. Top with last slice. Frost with Orange Glaze. Makes 1 loaf torte.

ORANGE GLAZE

In small bowl combine one-half cup confectioners' sugar and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Gradually add 2 to 3 teaspoons orange juice, stirring with fork until well blended.

WHITE MOUNTAIN PROMISE CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup soft margarine
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup skimmed milk
6 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tarter

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In large bowl mix margarine, sugar, vanilla and almond extract. Alternately blend in flour mixture and milk. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold into cake batter. Turn into 9-inch tube pan that has been brushed with margarine and dusted with flour. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour and 10 minutes, until cake is golden brown and pulls away from side of pan and a cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 15 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Frost with White Mountain Frosting. Makes 16 servings.

WHITE MOUNTAIN FROSTING

1 cup sugar
1/3 cup water
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
2 egg whites
½ teaspoon vanilla

In medium saucepan mix sugar, water and cream of tartar. Place over low heat, cover and cook 3 minutes, remove cover and boil until syrup reaches 240-degree on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. In medium bowl beat egg whites until stiff, then gradually pour syrup into egg whites, beating constantly. Beat until thick enough to form peaks; beat in vanilla.

Honey is a favorite sweet

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Opera star Enrico Caruso ate a spoonful or two before singing a role at the Metropolitan, and Sir Edmund Hillary took a jar along to keep him in shape for his assault on Mount Everest. In fact, honey has played a part through the ages from the days of Julius Caesar, who had a weakness for Gallic honey, to the time of Madame Du Barry who used it as a skin softener.

Aristotle, the Greek philosopher, waxed lyrical over honey, describing it as a "dew distilled from the stars and the rainbow."

A survey by the National Geographic Society noted that since the original Olympic games, athletes have consumed honey as a source of quick energy.

The bees in this country are kept busy trying to meet the growing demand for this golden sweet. A couple of years ago a report showed that Americans were consuming more than 106 million pounds of the stuff annually and the figure was rising.

There are many varieties of honey, ranging in color from white to red. A British beekeeper is said to have fed his swarm green sugar a few years ago. He wound up with nearly a ton of green honey that no one wanted.

European gourmets claim that the best honey is derived from thyme growing on the slopes of Mount Hymettus in Greece, but American connoisseurs insist that honey from the wild thyme of the Catskill Mountains is just as good.

Sweet clover is the greatest single source of honey produced in the United States, but dozens of regional types are made. Dark buckwheat honey is popular in the Great Lakes area, but honey made from the flower of the onion has few takers.

Honey is usually associated with desserts and candy, but it is also a valuable ingredient in meat dishes, such as this formula for ham with a bourbon-honey glaze.

1 canned ham (about 5 pounds)
1 cup bourbon whisky
1 cup honey
¼ teaspoon powdered cloves
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Mix all ingredients except ham and cornstarch. Let stand, stirring occasionally while ham is cooking in 300-degree oven (about 90 minutes). After 30 minutes blend cornstarch with ½ cup of the mixture and heat over low flame until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Boil 1 minute and cool. About 30 minutes before ham is done, remove from oven and spread half the mixture over the roast. Then, during the final half hour of cooking time, baste ham with the remainder. Good with chilled rose wine.

Lettuce layers

Layer a lettuce-lined salad bowl with sliced tomatoes, cucumber and sweet onion, drizzling each layer with French dressing. Chill until serving time.

Sea farming enjoying new wave of popularity

SORTING SALMON — Salmon of the right size are delivered into the right tank by a sorting machine at Oregon Aqua Foods. It's harvest time for the salmon. The fish farmers drive the fish down to this end of the series of tanks and through the machine which grades them by size.

FARMING OF THE FUTURE — A fish farmer works over salmon tanks at Oregon Aqua Foods, Newport, Ore. — where aquaculture, a trend for the future, is already part of the present day scene. In flooded fields, warmed ponds or in the sea itself, fish farming is gaining popularity in the United States.

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — In April last year, 16,000 coho salmon the size of your finger slithered down a spillway at Oregon Aqua Foods to uncertain futures in the Pacific Ocean.

They were seedlings, so to speak, in a fish farming operation, a form of farming that is gaining popularity in the United States.

Most of these seedlings were never seen again. Some died of starvation, and disease got some. So did bigger fish and fishermen.

But that November, 160 salmon from the experimental release returned to the spillway as immature but harvestable fish, driven by a mysterious force that brings salmon and a few other species back to spawn where they were raised.

A one per cent return. Your banker would have a stroke.

But Jack Donaldson, a former fisheries professor who ran the sea-ranching operation until recently, was encouraged.

"They were all males," he said. "We call them 'jack' or 'precocious' salmon that return ahead of schedule to spawn."

Next November, he estimates, another four or five per cent of the coho will be back as mature, marketable 10-pound fish.

He spoke of releases of up to 40 million salmon, with a return of two million a year, within 10 years. He said Oregon Aqua Foods and similar commercial operations could re-establish the salmon runs that have been all but wiped out by hydroelectric dams, pollution, and other man-made factors.

The practice of fish farming is more than 2,000 years old in Asia, where populations are dense and farmland critically short. Only in the past decade has it expanded in the United States.

While a constant protein shortage has been a factor in aquaculture expansion abroad, the domestic focus so far has been on filling an increasing demand for diminishing supplies of luxury items, such as shrimp and salmon.

U.S. fish and shellfish production is now 70,000 tons or more annually out of a worldwide total of seven million tons. The Japanese are the leaders in aquaculture with 500,000 tons.

Besides shrimp and salmon, 16,000 commercial catfish farms dot the South. They'll produce 50,000 tons of fish on 75,000 acres of landlocked ponds this year. In 1960, about 150 tons of catfish were raised on 400 acres.

Biologists in Maine, Massachusetts and California are experimenting with warm-water rearing ponds for lobsters. They are using water from power plants to cut in half the five to seven years it takes nature to make one lobster market-ready.

Purina and Ralston have experimental shrimp farms in Latin America and Marifarm, Inc., has the largest shrimp farm in the world - 3,100 acres in Pana City, Fla. There also are a number of small commercial shrimp farms in the country.

Frost and Sullivan, a New York business research firm, recently concluded that it's possible to raise more than one ton of shrimp per acre per year under ideal conditions. Shrimp farms now produce less than 500 pounds per acre annually.

Trout farming is enjoying a growth in parts of the Northwest, and the California Institute of Technology has experimented with kelp plantations on the open sea. Kelp, a seaweed capable of growing two feet a day, can be mixed with bacteria and converted to methane gas.

In the Cal Tech experiment off the California coast, water from beneath the ocean surface was pumped to the surface for the kelp. Dr. Wheeler North found that deep water contains 30 times the nitrates of surface water, and he and his colleagues concluded that kelp farms at sea can produce great quantities quickly and efficiently.

The aquaculture industry is developing as the American appetite for fish increases beyond what the domestic fishing industry supplies. About two-thirds of the fish eaten by Americans is imported; the rest is caught by U.S. fishermen.

And there's the energy problem, especially fuel for fishing vessels.

"The world is running out of petroleum faster than most people think," says Hal Goodwin, recently retired as deputy director of the federal Sea Grant program, which promotes aquaculture research.

"You not only have to consider the cost of the protein, but how you are going to get it."

For example, he said, krill, a shrimp-like organism, exists by the millions of tons in Antarctic waters, and is harvested to some extent by the Soviets and Japanese.

"But the cost of sending a fleet after it is high in terms of energy. Krill is a good source of protein, but it's a poor source in terms of energy costs."

"If it works in Chile, it'll work any place there are krill," said Goodwin. "There will come a time when we'll have to go to aquaculture ... Aquatic resources are good, cheap animal protein."

Goodwin is enthusiastic, but also cautious. "It's not going to feed the whole world," he said. Optimists say it might provide 20 per cent of the world's protein when fully developed, he added.

For now, it's a capital-intensive industry, and many of the experimental operations are owned by large companies. Oregon Aqua Foods, for example, is owned by Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., one of the world's largest wood products firms.

To the north, in Washington's Puget Sound, Domesea, owned by Union Carbide, raises salmon to pan size in huge net pens in

Tapas are tempting

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Those who travel in Spain always return to comment on the mixed up dining hours they encounter. Even as the Spanish become more urbanized and take less time at noon for lunches at home followed by a siesta, the sophisticated hour for dinner is rarely before 10 p.m. More normally in Spain you'll find guests gathering for their aperitifs of sherry and tapas (hors d'oeuvres) at that hour and dining at midnight. Fish or seafoods are included as part of a several course meal for lunch or dinner, which always is topped off with fresh fruit and a delectable dessert, with the fine Spanish wines and sherries served throughout the meal.

SPICY STUFFED MUSHROOMS

18 medium size mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 shallots chopped
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1 package (8 ounces) imported cream cheese with herbs and garlic
1/3 cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup coarsely chopped pecans
2 tablespoons Fino Sherry Salt
Additional pecan halves

Remove stems from mushrooms. Wash caps and dry thoroughly. In a small skillet, heat butter and saute shallots until golden. Cool. Mash cream cheese in a bowl until fluffy. Stir in sauteed onions and their drippings. Stir in cream cheese with herbs and garlic, bread crumbs, pecans and sherry. Season to taste with salt. Use mixture to stuff mushroom caps. Decorate with pecan halves. These mushrooms can be eaten cold or then can be heated in a 400-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes until golden brown. They also can be broiled for 5 minutes or until cheese is melty. If broiled, garnish with pecan halves after boiling. Makes 18 stuffed mushrooms.

FILLETS A L'ORANGE

1/3 cup olive oil
1 large onion, chopped
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 ripe tomatoes, cored and chopped
1 cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup Fino Sherry
1½ cups orange juice
¼ cup flour mixed with remaining oil
6 flounder fillets
Salt and pepper

In a skillet, heat one-fourth cup of the oil and saute onion and celery until soft, about 5 minutes. Stir in tomatoes and simmer until tomatoes are mushy. Stir in bread crumbs and one-fourth cup of the sherry. Cool. In a saucepan, mix remaining sherry and orange juice. Stir in flour mixed with remaining oil. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Season sauce with salt and pepper, if desired. Sprinkle fillets with salt and pepper. Spread bread crumb mixture evenly on fillets. Roll up fillets like a jelly roll and place seam side down in a greased shallow baking pan. Spoon half of the sauce over fish rolls. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes and becomes white. Remove fish rolls to a serving platter with a slotted pancake turner. Heat remaining sauce and spoon over fish rolls. Garnish with orange slices and sprigs of parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Legislature asking for veto power

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California voters will act on a constitutional amendment in November that would give the legislature veto power over a governor's appointment to fill a vacant constitutional office.

The measure would require confirmation by both houses of anyone named as lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction or a member of the Board of Equalization.

The measure by Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, D-San Leandro, won final legislative approval Thursday on 27-7 Senate vote.

It is ACA 94.

Caucasians love their traditional food

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

From 1970 to 1975 an American anthropologist, Dr. Sula Benet, made frequent trips — some lasting as long as four months — to do field work in the Soviet Caucasus. That region of the world, a bridge between Asia and Europe, is known for the longevity of many of its people. As Dr. Benet notes, in 1974 she had the pleasure of meeting and knowing a delightful Caucasian woman 139 years old — probably the oldest woman then alive.

In a new book, "How To Live to Be 100," Dr. Benet discusses the factors that make for the longevity. She writes that this group's "rhythmic regularity of life" and their concerned family relationships seem important. In her studies she found that, "Order in daily routines and in the entire arc of life from cradle to grave contributes to the security of the individual and the group. Continuity and regulations in diet, work, sex life and leisure appear to lessen the strain on the body by avoiding sudden discontinuities and changes ...

"Children, adults and old people all consume the same diet and seem to have no interest in trying new foods. It is not a matter of having no alternatives, or being confined to locally grown foods; they truly love their traditional foods and see no reason for changes or variety."

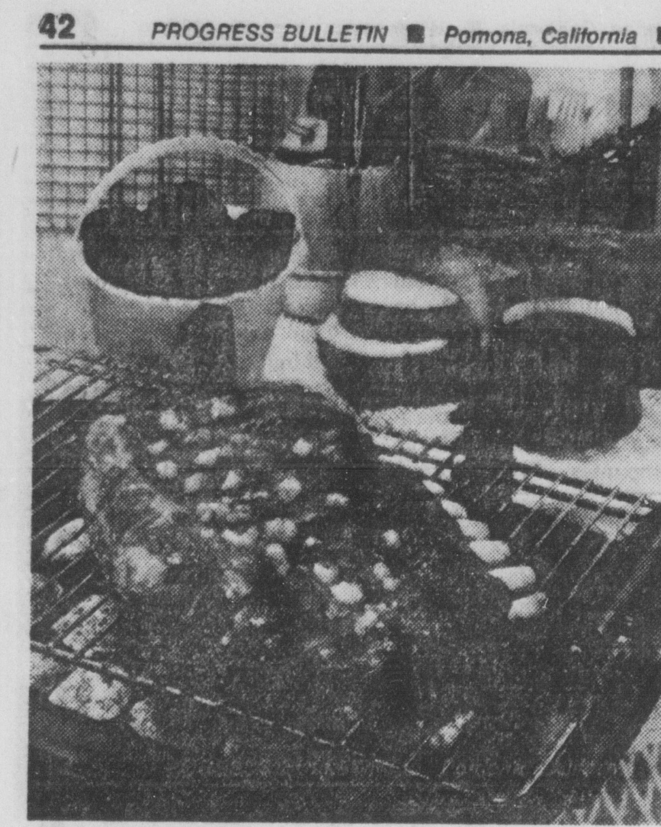
She found that the long-living persons eat moderately and have "an extremely high intake of natural vitamins" from fresh vegetables, both cultivated and wild. She discusses their wide use of beans as a high-protein food; their extensive use of spices and herbs — some cultivated and some wild; their common use of nuts and yogurt; their cultivation and enjoyment of fresh fruits as well as fresh vegetables. Their methods of cooking meat, roasting and broiling, tend to eliminate excess fat. "Candy and sweets are not common in the Caucasus, since granulated sugar is somehing of a novelty there."

Dr. Benet does not promise that people in our less relaxed and less family-oriented society, adopting the diet of the long-living people of the Caucasus, will also live to be over 100. But as a delightful bonus, she concludes her book with a chapter of recipes she gathered during her field work. An experienced cook might very well enjoy trying some of them. At our house, our adaptation of the Raisin and Honey Chicken recipe was much enjoyed.

RAISIN AND HONEY CHICKEN

½ cup extra long-grain rice
3 to 3½-pound broiler-fryer chicken
Salt
Wedge of lemon, if desired
½ cup raisins
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons honey

Cook rice according to package directions until it is tenderfirm and the water has evaporated; set aside. Wash the chicken in salted water and dry; rub inside and outside with the lemon wedge, if used. Boil the raisins, in just enough water to cover them, for 5 minutes; drain. Transfer the raisins to a small frying pan; add the butter and honey; stir over low heat until hot; add to cooked rice and toss. Stuff into body cavity of chicken; loosely close cavity with small skewers. Place breast-side up in a small, buttered, shallow baking pan; do not cover. Bake in a 350-degree oven, basting occasionally with the drippings, until tender and browned — 1½ hours. Makes 4 to 5 servings. Adapted from "How To Live to Be 100" by Sula Benet (Dial Press).



BARBECUED SPARERIBS

Stick-to-your ribs sauce

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Barbecue meats are part of the summer scene although there are those who use their grills throughout the year, indoors or outdoors. Among the favorites for family dining or entertaining guests who know how to relax are finger-lickin' ribs. Barbecue spareribs take on a special flavor when they have been marinated or precooked and spread with a special sauce before being cooked over charcoal.

FINGER-LICKIN' RIBS

2 racks pork spareribs (about 6 pounds)
Salt and pepper
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed chicken broth, undiluted
1 jar (12 ounces) pineapple preserves
½ cup chili sauce
¼ cup cider vinegar
4 cloves garlic, minced

With a sharp knife, trim off all excess fat from spareribs. Trim carefully to remove fat as cooking fat drips on charcoal and causes flares. Sprinkle ribs on all sides with salt and pepper. Place ribs in a shallow pan. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over ribs. Let stand at room temperature 2 hours or refrigerate overnight.

Drain ribs well, reserving marinade. Place ribs on grill rack 8 inches above moderately hot coals. Grill one to one and one-half hours depending on thickness of ribs. Turn ribs. Brush with marinade every 10 minutes. Place ribs on a serving platter and spoon remaining marinade over ribs. Cut into individual ribs to serve. Makes 6 servings.

Buffalo: is it profitable?

MITCHELL, S.D. (AP) — Ralph Mahoney might advise livestock farmers who are troubled by high operating costs and low prices to raise buffalo.

"For one thing, buffalo are a lot more profitable," said Mahoney, of rural Mitchell.

Not only does buffalo meat bring about double the price of regular beef, Mahoney said in an interview, but buffalo take much less feed.

"We can feed three buffalo for about what it takes to feed one regular cow," he said, adding that buffalo gain weight at about the same rate as regular cattle.

"Buffalo is identical to beef in cooking," Mahoney's wife noted. "It doesn't have the wild taste some people expect it to have, but it is a little coarser."

Mahoney says the unpredictable nature of the buffalo is his greatest concern.

"After a while you get too used to working with them, and you let your guard down," he said. "But buffalo are not animals to be trusted."

Mahoney works fulltime with the South Dakota Air National Guard and farms the family's 1,400 acres.

He recalled that 13 years ago he read an article about a man who raised buffalo. "I made up my mind right then to make the call to buy some," he said.

His first purchase was five buffalo. The herd now totals 150 head.

Mahoney has tried crossbreeding between buffalo and other cattle.

"It is rather difficult to always get a good cross," he said, but the crossbred calves that do result are pretty interesting to study to see which traits are carried over."

He said there is more demand for pure buffalo than for meat from the crosses. Most of the buffalo he sells goes to organizations that hold special buffalo barbecues, or to restaurants in the area that feature the meat on their menus.

Does home canning really save money?

By Gaynor Maddox

We received several letters expressing resentment over the question raised in this column about the savings in money through home gardening and home canning of fruits and vegetables.

Our remarks were anything but personal. They were based on scientific studies by experts in agriculture and home finances.

Today, with so much stress on costs in money and energy, the question persists: were they economical to put up? Perhaps commercially canned fruits and vegetables were not so good in the past. But today they can be excellent.

Here is another scientific comparison between the costs of home canning and commercial products (green beans and tomatoes). It was made at Michigan State University in East Lansing. Two Extension Specialists conducted it for the University's Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition. Here follows a brief summary of the report made by Theodore Wishnetsky, Ph.D., and Jerry N. Cash, Ph.D.

There are inherent uncertainties in the calculation of gardening and canning expenses — particularly gardening costs. Variations in weather conditions constitute the major area of uncertainty, affecting total yield and cost.

Some argue that fertilizer, pesticide, and/or water are not essential to home gardening, and should be omitted as cost items. But omitting use of them would reduce yields substantially, thereby raising rather than lowering the per bushel cost of growing the commodity, the author says.

Capital costs (tools, equipment, etc.) will not apply at all to some home gardeners and canners, in part to others, and in full to still others. Two sets of values are therefore computed for capital cost items. The higher value was derived by assigning the entire capital cost to the first year's gardening-canning operation. The lower figure assumed a 20-year usage of capital items with costs prorated over that period.

The assumption that all of the harvested product will be usable for home canning is open to question, particularly in the case of tomatoes. Much of what is harvested may be in small quantities — too small to be worth bothering with in a home canning operation. That which is not canned but can be used fresh will not materially change the costs computed in this study. However,

Peanuts have real value

Peanuts have been an important part of American history and cuisine since the early settling of the New World. In fact, many delicious peanut dishes date back to colonial days when they provided basic sustenance as a common crop in the plantation garden.

Today's modern cook may not realize what a delightful source of protein the peanut can be. In addition to the peanut butter sandwich, peanuts can add elegance and flavor to any hostess' menu along with nourishing protein that our American snacking and quick eating habits so often lack. Peanuts and peanut butter are also the most economical source of protein available to the consumer today.

Peanuts have been called "Natures Masterpiece of Food Values" and no wonder. Besides peanuts carrying 26 protein grams and peanut butter carrying almost 28 grams, they contain many of the essential B vitamins (Thiamin, Riboflavin, Niacin), polyunsaturated fats and a balanced share of calories.

"Calorie balance is the important aspect to remember," according to Betsy Owens, director, Growers' Peanut Food Promotions. "Calories properly balanced with energy-giving proteins are essential as they provide quick energy. Weight watchers should not worry about eating peanuts as quick energy burns up calories and builds muscle."

Peanuts and peanut butter also contain appreciable amounts of calcium, phosphores, potassium, iron and magnesium.

The peanut can help the shopper stay within his or her food budget while giving the family plenty of protein. For somewhere around a nickle or a little more, depending on how thickly spread, you can have a peanut butter sandwich. The cheapest meat for a sandwich would probably cost in excess of 15 cents. Since the protein amounts in peanut butter and meat are about the same, the shopper is wise to choose peanut butter as an economical, nutritional sandwich.

A terrific trio is a peanut butter sandwich, a glass of milk and an orange. Nutritionally, their inherent proteins, vitamins and amino acids balance each other perfectly, giving the ultimate in nutrition for less than 50 cents.

But peanuts aren't restricted to snack items or peanut butter sandwiches in a diet. They can be added to vegetables, gravy, salads, breads, hors d'oeuvre, desserts and used in main dishes such as chili, pork, ham, pizza, beef and chicken. They can also be used in sauces, fondues, rarebit and quiche. In fact, there's no limit to the uses of peanuts and peanut butter in the American cuisine.

Foldovers flag kids down

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Children often are so anxious to run outdoors to play that it is difficult to corral them for something nourishing to eat. Flag them down, for breakfast or lunch, with banana-peanut foldovers. These are pancakes filled with sliced bananas and spread with peanut butter. Top with heated maple-blended syrup or some fresh fruit jam or preserves. Some youngsters may just grab a filled pancake to eat on the run, without syrup. A glass of orange juice and milk round out this healthful meal.

BANANA FOLDOVERS

1 cup pancake mix
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon vegetable oil or melted shortening
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup creamy peanut butter medium-size bananas
Maple-blended syrup, heated

Combine pancake mix, milk, egg, shortening and nutmeg in bowl. Stir until batter is fairly smooth. For each pancake, pour about one-third batter onto hot (400-degree) lightly greased griddle. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with bubbles and edges look cooked. Turn only once.

Cut each banana in half. Slice each half lengthwise through center. For each serving, spread one side of two pancakes with peanut butter. Place one banana piece on peanut butter side of pancakes; fold pancakes over banana. Serve with syrup. Makes 4 servings.

POTATO CHIP STUFFING

Use potato chips in new stuffing

A really versatile stuffing from New England. Us it for turkey, chicken, game hens or duckling and see if anyone can guess what gives this stuffing its unique flavor. Coarsely crumbled potato chips, of course!

NEW ENGLAND POTATO STUFFING FOR POULTRY

Makes enough stuffing for a 10 pound turkey or 2 - 4 pound roasting chickens or 8 game hens or 2 - 4 pound ducklings

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 onion, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
10 slices white bread, cut into 1/2 inch cubes
1 cup finely crushed potato chips
1 cup chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry dressing
1/4 cup chopped parsley

This stuffing may be stuffed into poultry or can be baked in a separate casserole for 1 hour long with the roasting poultry. In a skillet, heat butter and saute onion, celery and mushrooms until golden, about 5 minutes. Pour mixture with drippings into a bowl. Stir in bread, potato chips, broth, salt, poultry seasoning and parsley. Toss to blend well. Stuff poultry just before it is ready to be roasted or pile stuffing into a greased 2½ quart casserole for baking separately.

Canning...

produce that spoils or is given away cannot be ignored as an additional cost factor which raises the net cost per bushel.

For home canners who buy rather than grow their product for canning, a cost comparison can be made only by use of local prices (farmers market, roadside market, or supermarket), and these will vary greatly from year to year.

Sea farming...

the sound. It hopes to sell a million pounds of fish this year. Domesea hasn't shown a profit yet.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has found that a name change often helps introduce an unfamiliar species into the American market.

Blowfish tails, for example. The fisheries service changed the name to sea squabs. And they sold like hotcakes.

Grilled turkey for July 4

This 200th Fourth of July calls for something special in the way of a celebration.

You're likely planning on a bigger collection of family and friends than usual around the backyard grill. And you'd probably like to serve something other than hamburger or hot dogs without doing in the budget completely. It's the perfect time to introduce yourself to the delights of turkey on the grill.

Yes, turkey. The festive bird has come a long way from year-end, holidays-only eating. According to the National Turkey Federation, about a quarter of the turkeys raised go to market between July and September and most of these are barbequed in one form or another.

Not only is turkey a native delicacy, as seems only right for our national birthday party, but, it recommends itself for a number of other reasons. It will feed quite a group — and at a lower price per pound than 15 years ago. And it's high in protein, low in carlories and cholesterol. No wonder it's a general favorite!

Grilling it on a rotisserie or oven-type barbecue unit is simpler than you might think.

Check the grill manufacturer's direction for procedures and to see if you're limited as to turkey size. Thaw and prepare the turkey as usual for roasting, but don't stuff the bird if you're going to rotisserie-cook it. Fasten wings and drumsticks for a better-looking finished turkey. Place a foil drip pan under the bird, but not on coals.

Consult the turkey package to help estimate cooking time. Many variables can affect exact timing, including the type of grill and fuel, turkey size and age, distance from heat, basting procedures and, if you're using an oven-type grill, how often you lift the cover to peek.

The small pop-up gauges which come inserted in many turkeys are good insurance, because they take into account all these variables. Whatever the cooking conditions, the gauges measure only internal meat temperature. When it's right, and only then, the gauge's red center pops into view and you can be sure the birthday bird is at its best for serving.

So the chef at your house can have a glorious, and relaxed, Fourth, along with the rest of the crowd around the grill.

Have a change of pace with these frank dishes

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Good weather during summer months brings most people outdoors, if only to swing in a hammock. It usually means increased appetites and a desire for relaxed eating. The favored frankfurter or hot dog fits outdoor eating demands but it can be worked in different guises to surprise family and guests. Frank rolls make perfect snacks or party appetizers, a sausage jambalaya goes a long way at a pitch-in cookout and franks Wellington adds a hoitie-toitie air to this American staple.

FRANK ROLL

Trim crusts from 8 slices bread (can be rye, white or both). Slightly flatten each with rolling pin and cut in 3 one-inch strips. Cut franks crosswise in thirds. Spread 8 strips of bread with mustard, 8 with cream cheese and 8 with softened blue cheese. Roll each frankfurter section in bread and secure with toothpick. Brush with melted butter and bake in 400-degree oven for about 5 minutes. Serve at once.

SAUSAGE FRANK JAMBALAYA

1 pound hot sausage, cooked and sliced in 1-inch pieces
1 pound frankfurters, sliced in 1-inch pieces
1 pound cooked ham, cut in one-half inch cubes
1 diced green pepper
1 large onion, chopped
1 clove garlic
2 cups raw rice
1 30-ounce can tomatoes
2 cups chicken broth
1 tablespoon basil
1 tablespoon parsley
1 pinch red pepper
1 pinch sugar

Saute garlic in one tablespoon oil. Add onions and green pepper. Combine, sausage and ham, in skillet and heat. Stir in rice, add tomatoes, broth, salt, basil, parsley, red pepper and pinch sugar. Cover, bring to boil and cook about 30 minutes until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Add franks during last 10 minutes. Makes 12 servings.

FRANKS WELLINGTON

1 pound ground beef
1 egg slightly beaten
½ cup bread crumbs
8 ounce can tomato sauce
¼ cup grated sharp cheese
½ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon parsley
1 pound frankfurters

Combine ground beef, egg, bread crumbs, tomato sauce, grated cheese and seasonings and mix well. Mixture should be fairly stiff. Enclose each frankfurter in the ground beef mixture to form a blanket about one-fourth inch thick. Dust each Wellington with flour and saute in fry pan in melted butter or margarine until browned on all sides, about 10 to 15 minutes. Remove to baking dish. Bake covered in 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Uncover and continue baking 20 minutes or until done. Remove from oven. Top each with whole cranberry sauce and broil about two minutes.

Hostess tells party secrets

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

How does a person without help manage to give parties and never lose his or her cool?

Of all the people we know who entertain single-handedly, Irma Rhode is the best organized. It's true that she is now retired and has plenty of time, but even when she worked at a full-time job she entertained with the utmost ease.

Rhode's secret is to plan ahead — and to stick to the plan. She tells just how to do this in her new book, "Cool Entertaining." Chapters are devoted to hors d'oeuvres, soups, fish and shellfish, meat and poultry, salads, desserts and drinks that may be served for cold suppers to company. Throughout the book there is a fine concern for practicality and economy.

This system may have as many rewards for you as it has had for Rhode. In his introduction to "Cool Entertaining," James Beard says that he has known Irma Rhode for almost 40 years and that "her enthusiasm, her delight in entertaining and her vast knowledge of food and drink have given her a full, rich life. She is always bubbling ... her sense of humor is a perpetual delight."

Tried at our house, we found Rhode's Herring Salad delicious to serve at a buffet supper at any time of year.

HERRING SALAD

2-pound turkey hindquarter (cooked, skinned, boned and diced), about 2 cups
3 potatoes (cooked, peeled and diced), about 1½ cups
1 can (8½ ounces) beets, drained and minced
3 to 4 small firm dill pickles (minced), about ½ cup
2 tablespoons capers
2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
1 jar (8 ounces) marinated herrint tidbits, drained and minced
Dressing, see below

Mix together well all the ingredients, adding enough of the Dressing to coat them; there should not be any liquid. Refrigerate overnight before serving to allow flavors to blend. Makes 2 quarts plus.

Dressing: Beat together ½ cup salad oil, 1 tablespoon wine vinegar and 2 tablespoons red wine. Dissolve 1 chicken bouillon cube in 3 tablespoons warm water and blend with ½ teaspoon dry mustard; beat into oil mixture.

Fruit, bran are great pair

Cereals aren't just to eat out of a bowl. And fresh California nectarines aren't just delicious fruit to slice on top of cereal. But nectarines and bran are still great go-togethers, as in this moist, naturally delicious "Nectarine Bran Loaf". As in most bran recipes, the cereal is soaked in a liquid but this time the liquid is a golden puree of fresh nectarines. With a beginning like that, the finished loaf has to be something special. Last addition to the aromatic batter is a half-cup of chopped walnuts for crunch. Then into the oven it goes to spread temptation through the air with its nectarine-bran fragrance. Resist temptation until it cools a bit, then enjoy it warm, cold or toasted.

For additional recipes and serving suggestions for this and other summer fruits, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to "The Fruits of Summer", P.O. Box 255383, Sacramento, CA 95825. You'll receive a 48-page cookbooklet with luscious color illustrations of more than 100 ways to serve California fruits.

NECTARINE BRAN LOAF

2 medium-size fresh California nectarines
1 cup wheat bran cereal
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
1/3 cup shortening
2/3 cup sugar
2 large eggs
½ cup chopped walnuts

Halve, core and dice unpared nectarines into blender jar and blend until finely pureed to measure 1 cup. Combine with bran cereal and let stand while measuring remaining ingredients. Resift flour with baking powder, salt and soda. Cream shortening and sugar together well. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add nectarine-bran mixture. Stir in flour mixture until all of flour is moistened. Fold in walnuts. Turn into well greased loaf pan (8½ x 4½ x 2½ inches). Bake below oven center in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) about 1 hour, just until loaf tests done. Let stand 10 minutes, then turn out onto wire rack to cool.

Makes 1 loaf.

Ten blind men climb mountain

KOTA KINABALU, Malaysia (AP) — Ten blind Malaysians have climbed 13,455-foot Mt. Kinabalu, Southeast Asia's highest mountain.

The Sabah state government presented certificates of achievement to the successful mountaineers at a victory dinner Sunday night.

Mt. Kinabalu, on the northern coast of Borneo in the Malaysian state of Sabah, is a pyramid-shaped mountain often climbed by tourists. A worn but difficult path leads up the rocky slope, and the chief danger is sudden violent thunderstorms or radical drops in temperature.

More than 40 blind persons applied to make the climb. After physical tests and climbing smaller hills, 11 were chosen for the Kinabalu expedition.

Expert mountaineers guided the climbers, who were tied together with ropes. One man quit at 11,000 feet because he was tired, but the other 10 made it to the summit and back.

Lankasa Padat, 33, was the first to the top. Ragip Anak Mutai held the flag of Sarawak into the wind and shouted "victory" in the dialect of the Iban headhunters of his state.

"It was just like a dream," said 20-year-old Mohamed Nor.

"It proves that the blind, if given the opportunity and guidance, can do what the normal sighted individual does," said the president of the Sabah Society for the Blind, Michael Chin.

The climb was completed Friday.

Nutritional school lunches

What are the schools really feeding your children? According to the California School Food Service Association, for the most part it's what the federal government calls a Type A school lunch.

The goal of a Type A lunch is to provide at least one-third of the recommended daily dietary allowances as established by the National Reserach Council of the National Academy of Sciences.

Federal regulations require that Type A lunches include selections from each of the Four Food Groups (milk, meat, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals), as well as a specified amount of butter or fortified margarine.

The Type A lunch pattern is nutritionally balanced to provide the nutrients — proteins, vitamins and minerals and fats and carbohydrates — that children need for good health and normal growth.

Many schools offer several variations of the Type A lunch including a hot lunch, box lunch, salad lunch, combo or deli lunch.

A hot lunch could include lasagne, corn, shredded lettuce and tomato salad, buttered french roll, raw fruit in season and milk.

A box lunch need not be limited to sandwich type menus. It could include, for example, a cheeseburger with lettuce and tomato, french fried potatoes, celery and carrot sticks, canned peaches, peanut butter brownie and milk.

A salad lunch could consist of tuna salad with hard cooked egg wedges and salad greens, carrot curls and cherry tomatoes, buttered wholewheat roll and milk.

The combo and the deli lunch are offered only at the high school level. A combo lunch could include an eight-ounce milkshake, namburger with lettuce and tomato on buttered bun and french fries.

The deli lunch offers high school students a chance to make their own choices from a selection of buttered breads, meats and cheeses. The lunch also includes a tossed green salad and milk.

Singer, Campbell on different paths

The uncertain direction of professional sports is aptly illustrated in the case of three valley pitching products.

Rollie Fingers is waiting for the courts to decide whether he will play in Oakland or Boston. Bill Campbell is making up his own mind about where he will pitch next year.

Bill Singer KNOWS where he will be but isn't overwhelmed by the knowledge. Singer and Campbell, both Pomona products, are teammates with the Minnesota Twins.

Campbell is playing out his option and might not even be in the American League next year. But Singer signed a multi-year contract with the Texas Rangers and then was traded to the Twins in the deal which sent Bert Blyleven to Texas.

Talking with the two in the visitors' dugout at Anaheim Stadium recently, the difference in outlook was noticeable.

Singer, who had been smiling and greeting friends and acquaintances in the stands, sobered abruptly and appeared glum when the subject of the trade was brought up.

"It's not easy coming from a pennant contender to a team that hasn't been doing too well," he admitted. "I was very happy with the Ranger organization.

"However, I have the security of a good contract that extends through 1979."

Security is what Campbell is looking for.

"Baseball careers aren't very long on the average anyway," he said. "And relief pitchers don't seem to last as long as starters."

Playing out option

Campbell did not sign a contract this year and is playing out his option. However a managerial change on the club has made him less positive about leaving than he was before.

"I like playing under Mr. (Gene) Mauch." Campbell said. "I like the way he uses his pitchers, especially me. He has a lot of confidence in me, so I get in a lot of games which is what I prefer "

The former Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College hurler admits that any team he signed with would be one in which he would pitch often.

"I want to get in a situation like I'm in now," Campbell said. "If something happens and I don't sign with the Twins I would want to get back into the same kind of situation where I would be the number one man out of the bullpen."

If he does leave Minnesota, Campbell says he'd like to come back to California.

"I got married in the off season," Campbell revealed. "Her name is Carol (Acker), a girl from St. Paul. W've been staying there. But after the season we'll probably come out to San Diego. She likes it out here.

"I like the San Diego area. So the Padres wouldn't be a bad club to play for and they look like they're going to have a contending ball club."

Campbell was asked kiddingly if he would like to go to Oakland.

"Well, Rollie Fingers is still up there," he said seriously. "He'd be tough to beat out (as top reliever)."

Prefers relieving

Campbell started and relieved last year, but didn't like it.

"I'd rather pitch in relief," he said. "You get into more games. I'm much happier in the bullpen."

Last year was not a real good year for the 6-3, 190-pound righthander.

"I hurt my arm in spring training," he said, "and it took a while to catch up. I wasn't pitching too well and I had to start a few games to work myself into better shape.

"After a while I came around, but it was a little late . . . the last two months of the season. But I did shut out a couple of teams."

Campbell went to Venezuela and played winter ball.

"Had a real good year," he recalled. "Started all the time. Pitched a few complete games including a few shutouts. Think I was 9-7 overall, but I had a 1.80 earned run average. But I still prefer to relieve."

Bill is calling the shots now so when he signs a contract, with whatever club he chooses, it will be as a relief pitcher.

HERE 'N THERE — San Diego's Peter Graham, who ran into tough luck trying to keep the Mariners' WHA franchise afloat, is having a difficult time with the San Diego Sports Arena which he manages.

Between Oct. 1, 1975 and March 3, 1976, the S.D. Sports Arena lost $143,871 WITH the Mariners in operation. The only month the arena showed a profit was March thanks to the NCAA basketball championships.

Ironically, the NCAA executives reportedly are so unhappy with the lack of cooperation from Graham's organization, that they are unlikely to return there as long as Graham is the man in charge.

Kingman continues tear with 27th HR of year

When Dave Kingman speaks, everyone listens. When he hits, everyone watches.

The New York Mets' strongman commands attention and gets respect everywhere he goes these days, especially from National League pitchers.

"I think I'm back in the groove," says the tall, powerful outfielder. "I'm just picking up the ball good. I think I have a nice, fluid motion now."

That awe-inspiring motion has muscled out the most home runs in the major leagues so far this season, including Tuesday night's two-run blast that carried the streaking Mets to a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. It was Kingman's 27th homer, putting him on a collision course with Hack Wilson's National League record of 56.

"It's a funny thing about baseball," said Kingman. "You never know why you get out of a groove and you never know why you get back in. Home runs seem to come in bunches."

While talking freely about his upswing, Kingman shut out sports writers on one topic—the home run record.

"I don't know anything about Hack Wilson and I don't want to know anything about him," Kingman said icily after a reporter posed a question. "Don't quote me on any record, I don't want to know about it."

Kingman then stared down the writers and left them wordless in their tracks.

"Good night, gentlemen," he said, turning on his heel.

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 2-1; the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs 10-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1; the Houston Astros outscored the San Francisco Giants 4-3 and the Cincinnati Reds routed the San Diego Padres 12-5 in 14 innings.

While Kingman was doing the hitting, Mickey Lolich was doing the pitching as the Mets won their sixth straight game. Lolich pitched a three-hitter to gain his first National League shutout after 39 with the Detroit Tigers in the American League.

Kingman lined the first pitch thrown to him by Pete Falcone in the first inning over the left field fence after Joe Torre had doubled. The ball landed at the 442-foot marker beyond the fence.

Kingman now has 62 runs batted in after 76 games. Of that total, 49 have come as a result of homers.

Phillies 2, Expos 1

Dick Allen scored from third on a squeeze bunt in the ninth to give Philadelphia its victory over Montreal. Allen led off the ninth with a single and went to third on Jay Johnstone's base hit. After Garry Maddox flied out, Bob Boone laid down a bunt on the first base side and Allen raced home with the winning run.

The Expos had tied the score 1-1 in the bottom of the seventh on Barry Foote's home run. It was Foote's fifth homer of ths season and came against Philadelphia starter Jim Kaat. Kaat was replaced by reliever Gene Garber, 3-1. Dale Murray, 0-6, was the loser in relief of Don Stanhouse. Stanhouse had to leave the game after eight innings because of a painful left leg.

Pirates 10, Cubs 1

John Candelaria pitched a three-hitter and contributed a two-run triple to an eight-run first inning as Pittsburgh defeated Chicago. Candelaria, 7-4, stopped the Cubs without a hit until Jose Cardenal singled to center with two outs in the sixth inning.

Only five balls were hit out of the infield in the first eight innings, and there was one out in the eighth before he gave up another hit, a single by Mick Kelleher. The only Chicago run came on Bill Madlock's ninth home run, in the ninth inning.

Astros 4, Giants 3

Cliff Johnson's two-run triple capped a three-run eighth inning rally that lifted Houston over San Francisco. All four Astros' runs were unearned, thanks to four errors by the Giants who were given a tongue-lashing by Manager Bill Rigney prior to the game for their last-place play.

Reds 12, Padres 5

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum's leadoff homer in the 14th inning ignited a seven-run rally that gave Cincinnati its victory over San Diego. Following Lum's blast and a two-run triple by Cesar Geronimo, a solo homer by Dave Concepcion finally put the four-hour game out of reach for the Padres.

BIG SWING

Dave Kingman of the New York Mets takes a mighty swing at a pitch in game with St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night. Kingman, major league home run leader, hit number 27.

Evonne to meet Chris

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., defeated Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 today to gain the women's singles final of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

On Friday Miss Evert will meet Australia's Evonne Goolagong who overwhelmed Britain's Virginia Wade 6-1, 6-2 in today's earlier semifinal.

The beefy Czech woman, who lives in Beverley Hills, Calif., fought back strongly in the later stages of the match and Miss Evert was often hustled out of her stride. The American, favorite for the title she won two years ago, had lost only 10 games in the previous five rounds, and had not dropped a set.

A packed crowd of 17,000 on the center court sat silent as Miss wade made a string of errors. Obviously nervous, she failed to get her first service in and missed volleys.

After winning the first two games Miss Goolagong dropped her service to love, and it looked as if Miss Wade might be settling down. But the Australian then won eight games in a row, which took her through the first set and to 4-0 in the second.

The match was then virtually over. Miss Wade tightened up on her forehand, which had been sadly erratic, and held service for 1-4. She led 40-0 on Miss Goolagong's service in the next game, but the Australian came back with sharp volleying and got out of trouble.

The last two games went with service. Miss Wade saved a match point with a backhand return which dropped in the corner, but she then missed badly with a forehand and a backhand and the match was over.

Miss Goolagong has twice been in the final since he 1971 victory, losing to Billie Jean King each time.

Sandoval rates favorite's role

LOS ANGELES — Unbeaten Alberto Sandoval, 9-0 with six knockouts, rules an 8-5 favorite over veteran Alberto Cabanig, 37-8-5 with 19 knockouts, in Thursday's 10 round main event at the Olympic Auditorium.

Olympic matchmaker Don Chargin says he will sign the winner to meet newly crowned State Super Bantamweight champ Jose del Rio who knocked out Young Casanova in six rounds last Thursday.

Sosa saves Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elias Sosa, in only his second appearance with the Los Angeles Dodgers, entered the game in a rather critical situation.

It was the top of the ninth inning Tuesday night, the Dodgers led Atlanta by a single run, but the Braves had the bases loaded, only one out and —get this — a 3-1 count on the batter, Rod Gilbreath.

"I've never been called into a situation like that," the Dominican-born Sosa said afterward.

He threw one pitch to Gilbreath and he grounded it sharply to third baseman Lee Lacy who fired to the plate to start a double play and the Dodgers got away with a 2-1 victory.

"It was a tough spot to bring him into the game," Dodger Manager Walt Alston said, "but when it got to 3-1 we had to have a strike and a fastball is the best pitch to throw a strike with. So I went for Sosa."

The triumph kept the Dodgers within 4½ games of Cincinnati in the National League West.

Tommy John earned the victory, his third straight and fifth in nine decisions, and it was his squeeze bunt that proved decisive.

That was in the second innings when the Dodgers scored twice against loser Roger Moret, 3-3, to overcome the Braves' 1-0 lead in the first.

Rolland Office led off the Braves' first with a double and eventually scored on Jimmy Wynn's sacrifice fly.

In the Dodgers' half of the second a walk to Reggie Smith and singles by Lacy and Dusty Baker tied the game. It was only Baker's fourth run batted in of the month and besides scoring Smith it sent Lacy to third and after Steve Yeager struck out John squeezed home Lacy.

It remained to 2-1 but Atlanta threatened in the eighth when Willie Montanez and Tom Paciorek singled after two were out. Charlie Hough took over for John, struck out Earl Williams but then got into trouble in the ninth when he walked Darrel Chaney and pinch hitter Ken Henderson and after striking out pinch-hittier Craig Robinson, Office singled to right to fill the bases.

The count went to 3-1 on Gilbreath when Alston dramatically called Sosa into the game. He threw just one pitch but it was enough.

DODGER DATA — Burt Hooton (5-8) and knuckleballer Phil Niekro (7-4) will be the pitchers in tonight's series finale at 7:30 p.m.

Tanana fastballs too much for Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Tanana didn't exactly throw the proverbial glove out on the mound to defeat the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night, but he came as close to it as possible.

The crafty lefthander, using mainly fastballs and changeups, hurled the California Angels to a 4-1 victory, although he was making his first appearance in 15 days because of a strained muscle in his left forearm.

Boosting his season record to 9-5 and holding 3-0 edge over the Sox this year and 7-1 lifetime, Tanana called the triumph "one of the most satisfying wins I've ever had."

Working without his famed curve ball, Tanana threw little more than fastballs and offspeed pitches as he turned in his eleventh complete game of the season and missed a shutout by an eyelash.

Tanana held a 2-0 lead going into the eighth inning when the Sox loaded the bases on singles by Buddy Bradford, Kevin Bell and Bill Stein.

Dave Collins' two-run homer in the ninth eased Tanana's task.

The Angels scored their first two runs on a couple of wayward doubles involving centerfielder Lemon.

Tommy Davis hit a fly ball to center in the second inning which Lemon got a bad jump on and Davis reached second for a double. Ron Jackson singled him home. Andy Etchebarren lifted a fly ball to right center in the third and Lemon, after calling Bradford off the ball, failed to make the catch. Etchebarren was credited with a double and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Jerry Remy.

Tanana admitted to throwing only five curves and none before the seventh inning.

"I threw mostly off-speed with a little heat here and a little there," said Tanana. "I was trying to save the elbow for when I need it. There was no pain. I could have thrown more curves but as long as I was getting them out I didn't have to."

Going into the eighth inning, Tanana had given up only three hits and had faced only two batters over the minimum. One Chicago runner was wiped out in a double play and another was erased attempting to steal.

"It was a gutty performance without a doubt," said California Manager Dick Willliams. "He told us before the game what he planned to do. I didn't think of taking him out in the eighth. Bell's hit was a ground ball which could have been a double play and Stein stuck his bat out to get his hit."

Sox Manager Paul Richards said he thought Francisco Barrios threw a fine game, although he suffered his third loss against one victory. Barrios was a late replacement for Rich Gossage, who came up with a tender elbow.

The two teams will meet again tonight, with Chicago's Jesse Jefferson 2-2, going against Gary Ross, 5-9.

Diane de Leeuw goes pro

NEW YORK (AP) — At 20, Olympic silver medalist figure skater Dianne de Leeuw will be facing a new group of judges who may be more critical than any she previously encountered.

Miss de Leeuw, the world champion in 1975, said Tuesday she has turned professional and will be the star of the 1977 Holiday On Ice show. She signed a two-year contract, but no figures were disclosed.

The contract was the payoff for a long, tedious development which began when she was 4, and Mr. and Mrs. Garry de Leeuw brought their daughter a pair of skates.

"I'd estimate that my parents spent approximately $100,000 since then for my skating," said Miss de Leeuw, who competed for The Netherlands in the 1972 and 1976 Olympics, although her home is in Los Angeles.

"My parents were Dutch immigrants and a lot was made of my not representing the United States this year. I think televison really made something of it," she said. "They made it seem that because of my dual citizenship I was doing something wrong.

"However, people got the false impression that I just went over to Holland to make their team. I won the Dutch Nationals six years. I have no regrets over my decision. My success in international competition proves I would have done well if I had elected to seek a place on the American team," the green-eyed skater said.

Olympic champion Dorothy Hamill, a three-time American champion, would have been Miss de Leeuw's top opponent if she had entered competition in this country. Instead, they had their competition on the international level.

Now the two women will be appearing as stars in competing ice shows. Miss Hamill is the featured skater in the Ice Capades.

"I don't figure Dorothy and I will be competing and I don't think either of us will worry about the other's performance," Miss de Leeuw said. "Each will try to do well as an individual and that's what we've been doing all along. You don't compete in figure skating on the basis of someone else's performance. You do the best you can and let the judges decide.

Being a pro will cause a few changes in Dianne's life, but she doesn't anticipate it will make much change in her social life.

"I may go out a little more. It was hard to date when you knew you had to get up at 5 a.m. But, there will be a lot of traveling in my new role," she said.

TURNS PRO

Dianne de Leeuw, world champion figure skater in 1975, announced Tuesday that she has signed a two-year contract and will star in the 1977 Holiday on Ice production.

Women cost Connors title —Bill Riordan

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The two women in Jimmy Connors' life—his mother and glamorous girlfriend—cost him the Wimbledon championship, his ex-manager, Bill Riordan, charged tuesday.

Riordan spoke to reporters as the dejected Connors drove off in a Mercedes with his girlfriend, former Miss World Marjorie Wallace, after being knocked out of the tournament.

Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., upset the topseeded Connors of Belleville, Ill., in Tuesday's quarter-finals 6-4, 6-2, 8-6.

"When you are playing tennis at this level," Riordan said, "you can't afford to be rushing around after your girls all the time. He should not have to look after anyone.

"If I was involved I would have sent Marjie home," said Riordan, who is suing the 23-year-old Connors over his dismissal last year.

"She is obviously a distraction. It is a question of him having to wait on her, she has to have tickets, and she is looked after. That is not what his mind should be on."

Riordan said he has "nothing against Marjie personally. I think she is very charming, but on this occasion she just shouldn't have been there."

Riordan added that he believed Mrs. Gloria Connors has possibly taken too big a part in her son's life and that Connors is suffering from "too much momism."

Remillard promoted

Assistant Swimming Coach Page Remillard has been elevated to the head coaching position at Claremont-Mudd Colleges. Remillard will replace Tom Grall who has resigned to accept the assignment as Acquatics Director at La Salle College, Philadelphia, Pa.

This marks the second promotion for Remillard within the past 60 days. In early May he was named head coach for the Stag Water Polo Squad.

Remillard graduated from Bonita High School in 1966 and was a 1974 graduate of Cal Poly. He is currently completing graduate work at La Verne College.

Athletic Director Dr. William Arce said today that the Colleges were fortunate to have a top assistant able to move up to the head coaching position.

"Page knows our athletes and the type of program we expect. We all expect him to carry on a fine Stag swimming tradition," Arce said.

Capra sharp in 'debut'

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Buzz Capra, shipped to the minor leagues to test his pitching arm, hurled three scoreless innings Tuesday night in his first regular season appearance in a year.

Capra, a member of the National League All-Star team two years ago, was sent to the Atlanta Braves' farm at Richmond to get needed work rather than keeping him on the major league roster where he probably would have seen little duty.

Capra went three innings against Charleston Tuesday night, giving up one hit. He fanned two and walked three.

The right-hander, who last spent time in the minors in 1973, said the decision to return was partly his.

"I almost went on the road trip, but I figured instead of going out and pitching more batting practice, I might as well get going," Capra said. "I feel good and I'm ready to get in a game situation."

Baseball stars

PITCHING — Rick Wise, Red Sox, pitched his second one-hitter within two weeks—surrendering only a single to Paul Blair in the sixth inning—walked just two and struck out four in leading Boston to a 2-0 triumph over Baltimore with his third shutout of the season.

HITTING — Sal Bando, A's, cracked a two-run double and a two-run homer to pace Oakland's 8-3 victory over Texas.

Gilmore price tag set

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago Bulls, coachless and without a general manager, must now decide if they want to spend 1.1 million to obtain the contract of former American Basketball Association star Artis Gilmore.

That's the price tag which went on Gilmore Tuesday when the National Basketball Association announced procedures to handle the drafting of former ABA players, whose teams did not join in the NBA as part of the recent merger agreement.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced the value of Gilmore and 19 other players declared eligible for the draft, which will be held in July after expansion agreements are signed and a district court gives preliminary approval to the proposed settlement with the ABA players and the ABA Players Association.

Gilmore's price represents more than one-third of the $3.08 million value placed on the 20 players. The Bulls can make the decision on whether they want to spend the money for the 7-foot-2 Gilmore since they have the first pick as a reward for compiling the worst record in the NBA last season.

Other draft prices include $500,000 for center-forward Marvin Barnes of the Utah Rockies, $350,000 for center-forward Moses Malone of Utah and $300,000 for center-forward Maurice Lucas of Kentucky.

Kentucky's Louis Dampier, whose 13,726 points made him the league's all-time scoring leader, is available for $20,000.

Fred Lewis, an original member of the league as was Dampier, also is available for $20,000.

Each of the 22 teams in the expanded NBA will have a chance to pick, and if every player isn't selected in the first round the drafting will continue for up to three rounds. The value of each player will be reduced by a specified percentage if he isn't picked in the first round.

There is no doubt the Bulls, who have lacked a strong center for some time, could use Gilmore. He averaged 24.6 points per game and led the ABA in rebounding for a fourth consecutive year with a 15.5 average last season.

However, after agreeing to pay the price for Gilmore, the Bulls would be responsible for his contract. The merger agreement requires the NBA team selecting a former ABA player to assume his contract. In Gilmore's case, it is in six figures for one year. And although there is time remaining before his ABA contract runs out, his agent has let the Bulls know some renegotiating is desired.

In addition, the Bulls have drafted All-American Scott May, the Assocated Press' College Player of the Year last season, and they will have to pay a big sum for his services.

The final decision on selecting Gilmore probably will rest with Arthur Wirtz, one of the Bulls' principal owners. Wirtz, also owner of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, recently obligated some $3 million for hockey star Bobby Orr.

The decision of Wirtz is one of several he is currently facing. He also has to find a replacement for Dick Motta, who left as head coach and general manager after last season.

"I think Artis is cheap at $1.1 million for the Bulls," said Herb Rudoy, Gilmore's attorney. "He's exactly what the Bulls have been waiting for. I think people will be standing in line to purchase season tickets."

Rudoy already has met with Bulls' representatives, but no agreement has been reached.

After Chicago picks, the order of selection will be Atlanta, Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, New York Knicks, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Indiana, Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Antonio, Cleveland, New York Nets, Boston, Denver and Golden State.

Other players available and their prices are: Ron Boone, $250,000; Bird Averitt, $125,000; Steve Green, $100,000; Jan van Breda Kolff, $60,000; Randy Denton and Wilbert Jones, $50,000 apiece; John Neumann, $40,000; Allen Murphy, $25,000; Mike D'Antoni, Mike Barr, Barry Parkhill, Jimmy Dan Conner, Jimmy Baker and Ron Thomas, $15,000 apiece.

Money obtained in the draft will be used to pay off the franchises of Kentucky and Utah, which were not included in the merger agreement.

Clubs selecting a player will not have to pay the entire amount immediately. The NBA has a specific timetable which says how soon the money must be paid, depending on the value of the player.

Four former ABA players have been left out of the draft for legal reasons, according to the NBA. They were center Caldwell Jones, who has signed a contract with the Philadelphia 76ers for the 1977-78 season; forward M.L. Carr, who signed with Detroit prior to the merger agreement; guard Don Chaney, a former member of the Boston Celtics, and center-forward Lonnie Shelton, who was drafted by the Knicks in the second round of the NBA's college draft.

Members of the former Virginia Squires were not included in plans for the draft since their team became defunct prior to the merger agreement.

Marinaro moves for running room

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — It is a simple axiom of football that for a running back to be effective, he must be allowed to run. Ed Marinaro never quite understood why the rule didn't apply to him.

"I got to the National Football League as a running back," said Marinaro, "but then, I didn't get the opportunity to run."

Marinaro spent his first four NFL seasons in Minnesota, where the offense is spelled Chuck Foreman running and Fran Tarkenton passing. He left that routine behind Tuesday when, after playing out his option with the Vikings last season, he signed a one-year contract with the New York Jets.

He comes to the Jets after his most productive NFL season. Given a regular starting job for the first time, he caught 54 passes for 462 yards as Foreman's backfield partner. But he had only 101 carries for 358 yards. That is about seven attempts per game, not nearly enough for a running back to prove anything.

"To be effective, a running back has to be given the ball," he said. "Unless you establish yourself as a runner, your position in the starting lineup is always threatened. You never have the opportunity to relax as a football player."

Marinaro considers 15 carries per game the kind of diet a running back should be fed.

"As you become tired as a ball carrier, you relax more," he said. "You do things more naturally. You're not tight. You're not pressing. You move more instinctively."

Marinaro never had to worry about getting the ball at Cornell, where he set an NCAA rushing record by gaining 4,715 yards in 27 varsity games.

"In college, I ran from the I formation," he said. "In that, you run to an area and find what's there. In the pros, I had to adjust to the split backfield. At first, I was not disciplined enough to run to the hole. In time, though, I learned."

Coach Lou Holtz, delighted with the acquisition of Marinaro after losing free agent running back John Riggins to Washington earlier this month, said the Jets might try the I with Marinaro as the tailback.

Riggins, a fullback, had complained about the Jet offense, which he claimed was pass-oriented because of quarterback Joe Namath. Marinaro was asked if that criticism and the continued presence of Namath had given him any second thoughts about coming to New York.

Toros officially changed to Bulls

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Toros have officially become the Birmingham Bulls with the approval of the World Hockey Association's board of governors.

The board of governors announced Tuesday on the first day of a two-day meeting that it had approved the transfer of the team to the Alabama city.

John F. Bassett, owner of the team, announced he would move the Toros from Toronto after a campaign to sell season's tickets for next year was unsuccessful.

The board of governors also announced the realignment of the league into two divisions next year—East and West.

The Birmingham team will play in the East Division with the Quebec Nordiques, New England Whalers, Cincinnati Stingers, Indianapolis Racers and Hollywood, Fla., the former Cleveland Crusaders' franchise.

The West Division will be composed of the Calgary Cowboys, Edmonton Oilers, Winnipeg Jets, Phoenix Roadrunners, Houston Aeros and an anticipated sixth club.

Sports briefs

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Graves, former star running back for the University of California at Berkeley, died in his Balboa Island home June 24 while the house was being fumigated, police said Tuesday. Graves was 54.

Workmen removing the tarp from Graves' house discovered his body on the front porch, said police. He had apparently inhaled toxic methyl bromide fumes used in the fumigation process.

Police reported that Graves apparently forced his way into the house by removing part of the tarp enclosing the hoase, said police spokesmen.

Graves was a star fullback under Pappy Waldorf for the Berkeley Bears in the post-war area.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Furphy resigned Tuesday as head coach of the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League. Furphy was in his first season as Cosmos' coach.

Gordon Bradley, vice president of player personnel for the NASL team and coach of the Cosmos from 1971-75, will resume the coaching duties until the end of the season.

In resigning, Furphy said, "I have not been satisfied with the conditions under which I was working and I felt it time to make a change."

The Cosmos are second in the Eastern Division with an 8-6 record.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When John Mayberry and George Brett hit home runs for the Kansas City Royals Sunday they not only earned their baseball pay, they acquired a namesake.

John Brett Spoor was born to Mrs. Carol Spoor of Independence, Mo., in Jackson County Hospital Monday, just one day after she watched the team at Royals Stadium.

"I got hooked on baseball about a month ago and really got excited out there Sunday," Mrs. Spoor said Tuesday night. "When they hit those two home runs I figured I would name the baby after them."

Mrs. Spoor and her six-pound boy are fine, hospital officials said.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Wendy Knudson of Colorado State University has gained a berth on the 1976 U.S. OLYMPIC Track and Field team, officials reported Tuesday.

Mrs. Knudson, a junior from Estes Park, Colo., apparently missed a spot on the women's team when she finished fourth in the 800-meter run final last week during Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore.

But Cyndy Poor of San Jose, Calif., who finished second in the 800-meter event, decided to concentrate on the 1,500-meter run, which she won.

SEATTLE (AP) — Goalie Mike Ivanow of the San Jose Earthquakes has been traded to the Seattle Sounders in exchange for a first-round draft choice in 1978, says a spokesman for the local North American Soccer League team.

BROKEN BOW, Neb. — Fifteen quarter horses and one pony worth an estimated $50,000, perished when an early-morning fire gutted a barn at the Custer County Fairgrounds.

NEWPORT, R.I. — Eric Tabarly of France finished first for the second time in the trans-Atlantic singlehanded yacht race.

Rick Wise comes near perfection

AP Sports Writer

Rick Wise sat at his locker and listed the factors involved in pitching perfect baseball: "Good stuff...good control...good defense...good concentration," he said.

Pitch by pitch, it became clear to the 30-year-old righthander that the factors were dropping into place. Inning by inning, with Baltimore batters falling in order, it became clear to the Boston ace the plateau of perfection was within reach.

"I knew I had good stuff from the outset," he said after his one-hit, 2-0 triumph over the Orioles Tuesday night. "I was hitting spots and had them hacking at the ball. I was jamming guys, making them hit the ball up. I just felt I really had it."

Well, he almost did. Paul Blair marred the masterpiece with a sharp, clean single leading off the sixth inning. Only walks to Reggie Jackson and Al Bumbry in the seventh and ninth-innings, respectively, proved the faulty brush strokes in what still was a pitching work of art.

"He had it all tonight," said Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who picked up the list where Wise had left off: "Good fastball, breaking pitches, and—just as important—good location."

All except for a fastball that wasn't fast enough to beat Blair's bat. "I wanted him to try and hit the ball rather than walk him," said Wise after Blair has complied with his wish.

But the hit was no disappointment to Wise, who pitched a no-hitter for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1971, and hurled one-hitters in 1968 and 1972 and another two weeks ago.

"It was no disappointment losing the no-hitter tonight. If it happens in the eighth or ninth it is a different story. It's great to just throw a one-hit shutout. That's not easy, either."

Rick Wise just makes it seem that way.

In the other American League games Tuesday night, California clipped Chicago 4-1; Oakland blasted Texas 8-3; Kansas City defeated Minnesota 1-0; Detroit downed New York 7-5 and Cleveland beat Milwaukee 4-1.

Run-scoring hits by rookie Steve Dillard and Fred Lynn in the eighth inning supported Wise's third shutout of the campaign. The hurler faced just 28 batters, one over the minimum, and needed just 98 pitches to beat Baltimore.

He had a feeling something like that would happen.

"It's funny. Sometimes you have premonitions," said Wise, now 6-5. "The last time I pitched a one-hitter, the guys in the bullpen said I was going to pitch a no-hitter and I thought about that tonight."

So, with only one worry in his mind—"getting guys out"—he went out and nearly fulfilled the prophesy.

A's 8, Rangers 3

Third baseman Sal Bando had a two-run homer and two-run double to lead Oakland's victory over the Rangers. Texas tallies came in the second on run-scoring singles by Jim Sundberg, Gene Clines and Mike Hargrove.

Royals 1, Twins 0

Fred Patek's 10th-inning sacrifice fly scored Hal McRae from third base with an unearned run to give Kansas City pitcher Al Fitzmorris his ninth victory in 13 decisions. McRae had singled and taken second on a throwing error by Minnesota shortstop Roy Smalley. An infield out moved him to third.

The tally ruined a three-hitter by the Twins' Dave Goltz.

Tigers 7, Yankees 5

Home runs by rookie Jason Thompson and Rusty Staub helped bring Detroit to victory from a 4-0 first-inning deficit. The triumph, the Tigers' second in two nights over the AL East leaders, was their eighth in 10 games.

Thurman Munson and Fran Healy drove in two runs each to give New York its 4-0 lead. Chris Chambliss homered in the seventh for a 5-3 Yankee advantage until Detroit scored three in its half of the inning and got insurance on Staub's blast in the eighth.

Indians 4, Brewers 1

Two-run homers by Larvell Blanks and George Hendrick helped Cleveland hand Milwaukee its sixth consecutive loss.

Gems break out of slump, 9-5

Pomona Post 30 broke out of a mid-season slump Tuesday night at Ralph Welch Park by scoring a 9-5 District 18 American Legion victory over San Gabriel Post 442.

The win broke a three-game losing streak for the Gems and left them with a 1-1 record for the second half of District 18 play. Post 30 is now 16-8 on the season.

In other Legion activity Tuesday night, La Verne Post 330 scored an impressive 3-1 win over the visiting Anaheim Legion nine. Claremont Post 78 had its eight-game winning streak snapped, as Upland Post 73 upended the Cardinals 8-4. Both those games were non-league outings.

Post 30 used the mound services of Randy Babineau, Joe Madrigal, Dean Fritchle and Cregg Handy in beating San Gabriel. Madrigal, who pitched the fifth, sixth and seventh, picked up the win.

The Gems erupted for six runs in the fourth to erase a 3-1 San Gabriel advantage, Mike Keegan's triple was the lone extra-base hit for the locals.

La Verne used the outstanding pitching of seldom-used Ralph Ortega and Dennis Wetzel to best a good Anaheim club. Ortega and Wetzel combined to toss a five-hitter, Wetzel picking up the win with five frames of scoreless relief. Post 330 improved its season mark to 19-5 with the victory.

Triples by Steve Benoit and Ortega and a single by Robert Alexander gave Post 330 a 2-0 lead in the second, and the locals picked up their third tally in the fourth without benefit of a hit.

Alexander finished the game with two hits, the only player to have more than one in the well-played contest.

Claremont fell victim to a five-run uprising by Upland in the top of the second Tuesday at Pomona College's diamond. Post 73 jumped on Paul Sokolowski, making his first start of the season, for those five tallies.

Tim Dooling finished up on the hill for the Cardinals, allowing three more scores in the fourth.

Leonard Peacock continued his hot-hitting with two hits, while Dan Healey extended his hitting streak to nine games. Claremont is now 17-10 on the year.

Claremont and La Verne have District 18 contests on tap this evening. Post 78 will travel to Mark Keppel High to play San Gabriel in a 5 p.m. start, while La Verne Post 330 will visit the Azusa Pacific diamond to take on Covina Post 207 in a 5:30 p.m. encounter. Mil Pompa is expected to start for Claremont, and Bill Bumstead is the probable La Verne starter.

Baja racers to go again

Members of the Chaffey College Racing Association are eager to try their luck again next year in the annual Baja 500 off-road race.

The Association, consisting of former students of Chaffey College, had three cars in the race this year, the first time they've had more than one.

All three cars ran well but encountered obstacles that took them out of the race.

Mark Steele, in the Class I number 125 vehicle, was running third after passing Parnelli Jones and Mickey Thompson when disaster struck two thirds of the way through the race.

Rounding a sharp corner while following tracks which he thought indicated the course, Steele ran off a steep embankment.

Both driver and car were still okay, but in trying to drive out, the transmission blew. Steele soon had company as another car, following Steele's tracks, drove off the embankment and struck Steele's car a glancing blow.

Luckily neither driver was injured.

Not so lucky was Karl Hartmetz in the number 238 vehicle. Hartmetz, a co-driver with Dave Fager, was injured in an accident about halfway through the race.

Again, the car had been running fine. But Marquez hit a rock and the car rolled over. The right front wheel was driven back through the fire wall.

Hartmetz was flown to El Centro where his back injuries were diagnosed as 20 percent compression of a vertebra and disc.

Joe Marquez had the number 934 car zipping along through the first two checkpoints and had gone about 150 miles when the engine blew.

All of the members of the association were enthusiastic about the way the cars were running and plan on trying again next year.

"It didn't turn out as well as we would have liked," said spokesman Bob Keeran. "But we sure were competitive."

Keeran originally organized the project. But until this year only the number 238 car had been entered, its fourth time in the race.

The car had originally been donated to the association by Stroppe Engineering. Students rebuilt the car and installed a special racing engine.

"We'll put a Rambler engine into another old car next year and see how it goes." said Keeran.

Gremlin wins IMSA series

DETROIT — For the third consecutive year, the American Motors subcompact Gremlin has won the manufacturer's championship during the first half of the 1976 International Motor Sports Association racing series.

The Gremlin garnered 47 points to capture the top spot. Dodge Colt was second with 35 points, and the Datsun B210 was third with 22.

A Gremlin driven by Gene Felton spearheaded the win with three first place victories at Sebring, Florida, and Laguna Seca and Ontario, California. Felton's Gremlin also placed third at Lime Rock, Connecticut and Lexington, Ohio.

Buzz Marcus' Gremlin added championship points by posting two seconds, a third and a fifth place showing, and Andy Petery piloted his Gremlin to a second place in the series.

The IMSA will begin its second series of 1976 races Saturday with a 100-mile race at Daytona International Speedway.

Claremonter takes third

TRABUCO CANYON — Joe Morris of Claremont garnered a third place overall position in Novice class moto-cross races at the Escape Country National Minicycle Association competition held last weekend.

Morris, who has scored wins at several local tracks, will enter Claremont High School as a freshman in the fall.

Funny cars, dragsters vie at Irwindale

IRWINDALE — Saturday night Irwindale Raceway will be making drag racing history in the first-ever "Funny Car-Dragster Challenge Championship" with alcohol-burning Funny Cars meeting the high-powered Blown Alcohol Dragsters in every round of competition.

The special challenge championship will be the final event in the "Bicentennial Weekend" at Irwindale Raceway which will also feature a "Fox Hunt" on Thursday with the Speedway Motorcycles and exciting CMC Night Motocross on Friday night.

Each race on the Saturday night "Challenge" features a Funny Car against a Dragster, and this confrontation is one that many drag racing fans have waited to see for years. The alcohol-burning floppers and diggers also put on some of the best side-by-side racing in all of drag racing.

Heading the list of Funny Car entries will be Brad Anderson of Covina and Lou Gasparelli of Monrovia, considered by many to be two of the top five Alcohol Funny Car drivers in the nation today. Anderson and Gasparelli have met on the quarter-mile quite often already this season, and each pilot has around the same number of victories to their credit. Joining Anderson and Gasparelli will be Mike Dunn of La Mirada, the 19-year-old son of funny car star Jim Dunn, who will be making his first attempt in competition behind the wheel of a fiberglass ground-pounder. Ali blames Inoki for boredom

MANILA (AP) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali put all the blame Tuesday on his wide-jawed wrestling opponent Antonio Inoki for the dull draw in Tokyo which aroused Japanese fans to pelt the contenders with garbage and demand their money back.

"It was not a ripoff because nothing was illegal," Ali said at a news conference shortly after arriving for a 24-hour stay to visit President Ferdinand E. Marcos and open a shopping center Wednesday.

"If it was rehearsed I would have thrown more than two punches.

"It was dull. It was dull because he wouldn't rassle. He was supposed to do his headlock, his backbreaker, his arm twister, his leg twister.

"I was disappointed. The world was disappointed. The fight did not turn out the way it was supposed to.

"I fulfilled my contract. But he didn't care to rassle. He came to kick.

"But at any rate, they paid me anyway."

Ali got $6 million for the two-punch, 15-round tussle. Inoji got about $3 million.

Ali said he didn't care if the World Boxing Council withdrew its award to him as 1975 Boxer of the Year because of the Tokyo debacle.

"I'm bigger than the Council," he said. "I'm bigger than boxing.

"I'm the biggest draw in the history of the world.

"They can take my title but it can't keep me from making millions. I'm making 22 million this year."

Ali said he hoped to get back to boxing when he fights Ken Norton at Yankee Stadium Sept. 28. He said he would fight George Foreman after Norton and then consider retiring.

"I'll retire when there is no one around to beat," he said. "I'll get a good little farm outside Louisville with chickens and horses and play with the children.

"I'm ready to settle down now in the country."

Trout in sky

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There are more than 3,300 high mountain lakes in California, mostly in the Sierra Nevada, Cascade Range, Salmon and Marble mountains. Trout angling is one of the many recreational pursuits enjoyed by back country travelers with fishing rods at the ready, according to Sports Afield.

Hellickson's coverage may expand

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — "Cross Face," a publication about wrestling in Wisconsin, probably will expand its coverage to Canada if Russ Hellickson wins an Olympic medal.

At least it will if one of the co-publishers has anything to say about it.

"I keep trying to bury those kind of things (stories about Russ Hellickson), and my wife puts them on the front page," said Hellickson who with his wife, Nancy, publishes and writes "Cross Face."

The Hellicksons have been honored for their writing by national wrestling publications in 1974 and again this year.

But honors in the sport itself came more slowly for the former University of Wisconsin football player, baseball player and wrestler who now is assistant wrestling coach at the school.

"I never placed in the nationals (NCAA Tournament) at all," said Hellickson at the Olympic wrestling team's training camp where he is preparing to represent the United States in the 220-pound freestyle class at Montreal.

"I never had a scholarship in anything," said the 28-year-old Hellickson, and it was his need to work at a restaurant-bar 40 hours a week that forced him to quit as football linebacker after his junior year. A year earlier wrestling ended his career as a baseball pitcher.

"I hyperextended my elbow and I lost my curve, screwball and my fastball all at the same time," he said.

But he didn't quit wrestling and after he graduated from Wisconsin in 1970 the honors started to come. And today they have grown to include eight national titles in freestyle and Greco-Roman; Pan American Games gold medals at 198 pounds in 1971 and 220 in 1975 and placings in several international competitions including a championship at the prestigious Tbilisi tournament in the Soviet Union in 1974.

In 1972, he finished second to Ben Peterson in a bid for the starting spot at 198 on the Olympic team. Peterson, whom Hellickson has since beaten, won the Olympic gold.

"After I missed out in 1972, I knew I had to stay around," said Hellickson. "Besides, it's a super way to stay in condition."

"I would think he is one of the best medal contenders," said Olympic Coach Wayne Baughman. "He has the strength, experience and maturity."

Olympic trialists take home loads of shoes

EUGENE, ORE (AP) — At least half of the 600 athletes who competed at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials could have have come to Eugene barefoot and would have gone home with at least two pairs of shoes if not a car load.

The Great Shoe Scandle which rocked the track world at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, and which heated up again four years ago, continues to brew, although at a lower temperature.

It was estimated that the top under-the-table payment to an Olympic Athlete in 1968 was $25,000 but estimates are that more than four times that amount is being offered to a small group of select competitors this year.

The main combatants for the last decade have been two large companies from West Germany. Recently, two Japanese firms and even one from Scandinavia have made inroads.

The aim of each is the same: to get world record holders to wear their products and thus make them attractive to today's youngsters who idolize the stars.

One athlete recently signed a contract which called for him to compete in only one company's equipment and he wound up earning not only a salary but also was guaranteed bonus money based on his performances.

"I guess we brought about 3000 pairs of shoes here," said the representative of one of the West German firms as he packed up to leave. He had about 500 pairs of shoes left.

One company claims it is not making direct payments to athletes, saying it is simply "Sponsoring the best track clubs in the U.S., like the Pacific Coast Club, The Maccabi Club, the Philadelphia Pioneers and the DC Striders.

"We subsidize them with a small donation, for them to operate, and what they do with the money I do not know. Some of the subsidies are as low as $1,000."

Still, both firms' representatives are irate over what they call "The raiding of our athletes." Apparently whether or not contracts are written or verbal, some athletes have been long committed to one company only to show up suddenly in another's equipment.

"A partial purpose of our job is to get athletes to realize they will run better in our products," said one representative.

"But we have heard of some pretty unbelieveable offers from our competitors and it's pretty disturbing when one of our guys shows up wearing their stuff."

Neither of the major two companies makes a great deal of money from the sale of its track equipment. Both estimate that track and field related sales represent only five per cent of thier total revenue.

But the world wide recognition that a particular track star competes in a particular brand is undeniably beneficial in the sale of such other equipment as tennis shoes and racquets, jogging shoes and even sports wear and luggage.

If the payments are continuing, however, they are being handled much more carefully than in 1968, when the two major firms admitted openly paying athletes to compete with cash and checks. "It makes me bitter to see what they are doing."

It's a Racquet

CLAREMONT'S JANICE METCALF and Glendora's Lea Antonoplis lost out in last week's early rounds at Wimbledon but, as the old expression goes, at least they made the show. That's more than can be said of any other resident, past or present, of the area commonly considered to be the Pomona Valley.

Tennis veterans here noted that Janice and Lea are the first area players ever to compete in the world's premiere tennis event on the fabled grass courts outside London. You don't just walk into the joint with your racquet and sign up. Wimbledon carefully selects its entrants on the basis of major tournament performance for the previous year.

The finals of the big event are coming up on TV Saturday. Viewers who want to be held in suspense are going to have problems. The women finalists will have played their match Friday, so what you'll get from NBC-TV on Channel 4 at 9:30 a.m. is a 90-minute tape of that one. It's all right, suspense-wise, if you lock yourself in a closet for 24 hours up to TV time.

As for the men, they're playing Saturday, sure enough, but the telecast at 2 p.m. also will be tape delayed, also in a 90-minute package, and probably edited down for the time slot. Thus, as was the case last year when viewers could look at the clock and know early in the fourth set that Arthur Ashe had beaten Jimmy Connors . . . well, you figure it out.

MORE BUDDING WIMBLEDON prospects may be under development in the area and if so, events like the Pomona Valley Closed Championships ought to boost them in the right direction. Besides the open competition, the program last week included action in eight junior categories, all the way down to a 10-and-under division.

In a match between two youngsters who fared well in the open singles, Olarn Issara of Thailand (by way of Claremont) defeated Chino's Bob Conners for the 18-and-under title, 6-4, 6-2. Issara, who just graduated from Claremont High, is headed for a summer tennis tournament tour to Malaysia, Indonesia and possibly Japan and Australia. He enters Pepperdine in the fall.

Pam Papa won the 16-and-under girls title with a 6-0, 6-1 finals triumph over Shawnie Piper and Mark Alba was the 16-and-under boys champ over Ken Lindberg, 6-2, 6-3. Alba also shared the doubles title with Steve Norin as they defeated finals opponents Tom Li and Craig Van Wyck, 6-1, 6-3.

In 14-and-under action, Wendy Wade earned the girls crown over Heidi Skvarna, 6-2, 6-1, while Gerry Gollin downed Jeff Krieger in the boys final, 6-1, 6-0.

Julie Samrick was the girls 12-and-under champ, 6-2, 6-4 over Kim Jones and in the tiniest tots' division, 10-and-under, Robert Hawkesby beat Nick Skvarna.

MONTCLAIR'S FIRST tournament has turned out champions in six events. The city Recreation Department's debut as a tournament sponsor drew 50 participants to the week-long competition which ended Sunday at the Montclair High courts.

Paul Kustel won the open men's singles title and Janice Mason was the winner of the only women's event. Runners-up were Rito Armenta and Dorthea Schellenberger.

The C men's winner was Wade Mayo (over finalist Rudy Schultz) and the novice victor was Mike Telada (beating John Collins). Larry Marvin and John Chastine teamed for the open doubles title (over Joe Van Dreisen and Jack Neuman) and Mayo copped a second title as Don McBryant's C doubles partner against John Nolte and Paul Wright.

"GUYS AND DOLLS Super Stars" is the name of the mixed doubles round robin coming up July 10 for members of the San Jose Hills Racquet Club. It'll be a long day — 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. — at the Mt. San Antonio College courts, but the players get a lunch for their $3 entry fee. Helen Wang will be lunch hostess and Yvonne Condo is social chairman. Entry deadline is Thursday.

DON'T TRY TO TELL anyone in Ontario that the tennis boom is leveling off. Almost as soon as it got word out to the community, the city's Recreation Department filled five free youth classes, four adult sessions requiring fees and a two-night-a-week men's and women's doubles league. Only one adult class — at 11 a.m. Mondays and Wednesdays — still had openings as the program began last week . . . Tennis Trivia:

The contestants in a tournament today and Thursday at the Let Set-Lax Racquet Club in Los Angeles might be more inclined to think about fastening seat belts than hitting serves, lobs and volleys. They're 25 Continental Airlines stewardesses from across the country, participating in eliminations to determine who will go to the first annual Springmaid International Stewardess Tournament in Texas in August . . . All four women's semifinalists at Wimbledon are World Team Tennis players this year, but the league wasn't so well represented on the men's side. Only one of the final four men, Ilie Nastase, has seen WTT action this year, and he doesn't count anymore, having quit the Hawaii Leis. In the quarterfinals Vitas Gerulaitis of the Pittsburgh Triangles gave WTT its only other representation.

TOURNAMENTS BEARING the "Pomona Valley" moniker have existed before, as far back as the 1930s, but they've always been open to players from outside the local area. The just-concluded Pomona Valley Closed Championships tournament was the first competition restricted to players from this geographical pocket from Walnut and Glendora to Alta Loma and Cucamonga.

Thus some historical significance accompanies the championships won by Geoff Clark in men's singles; Christy Stafford in women's singles; Dave Waterhouse and Bill Geary in men's doubles; Doris Clark and Donna Dickenson in women's doubles; and Geoff Clark and Cathie Headley in mixed doubles.

However, veteran player Chuck Anderson stood alone in one particular distinction. He played in some of those Pomona Valley tournaments of the late 30s, then here he was again in the latest competition, a finalist in both men's and mixed doubles.

Aaron denies Atlanta return

NEW YORK (AP) — All-time home run king Henry Aaron said Sunday he doesn't "know what the deal is" concerning reports he will leave the Milwaukee Brewers and return to the Atlanta Braves next season as vice president for player development and public relations.

"I haven't talked to my attorney yet," Aaron said Sunday after the Brewers had lost a doubleheader to the New York Yankees. "I don't know what the deal is. At this time, I will make no comment as to my leaving the Brewers for the Braves."

John Alevizos, executive vice president and general manager of the Braves, had said Saturday in Atlanta that Aaron would assume a front office position in player development with the Braves in 1977.

The report said formal announcement was not expected until Aaron's contractual obligations to the Brewers are fulfilled in order for the Braves to avoid possible tampering charges.

"He (Aaron) will definitely be involved with the Braves next year in player development," Alevizos had said.

Aaron, who broke Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 during the 1974 season, spent his entire career with the Braves in Milwaukee and Atlanta until his trade to the Brewers for Dave May in November, 1974.

Peterson tries for more gold

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Ben Peterson surprised a lot of people when he won an Olympic gold medal in freestyle wrestling in 1972. And he will surprise a lot of the sport's insiders if he does it again in Montreal.

"Nobody else knew what I could do," said Peterson, who was a newcomer at international competition four years ago.

But Peterson and his scrambling style now are well known on the international scene.

"It's different than it was four years ago," said the former two-time NCAA champion from Iowa State. "It's a lot different ball game.

"It's definitely tougher this time. There are three guys in the weight class that have been place winners in the world championships—a Russian, East German and Pole."

The 25-year-old Peterson, whose 27-year-old brother, John, will try and repeat or better his 1972 silver medal showing at 180.5 pounds, said at the Olympic wrestling camp here, "I think this is the last time around. I'll decide that next year."

Peterson, of Comstock, Wis., concentrated on wrestling because he wasn't good enough to play college football.

"Football was always my favorite sport in high school," he recalled. "I wanted to play football (in college) but I couldn't get a scholarship. I wasn't big enough or good enough. I got a part time scholarship in wrestling which became full time."

Peterson won NCAA titles in 1971-72, then won an Olympic gold. Since then he has placed in various international competitions and won a gold at the Pan American Games last year.

Bowa closing on Concepcion

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati and Larry Bowa of Philadelphia are locked in a title battle for the National League All-Star shortstop position with only one week left in the balloting, the league's figures show.

In fact, theirs is one of the few close voting races left. Already, three Cincinnati Reds— catcher Johnny Bench, third baseman Pete Rose and second baseman Joe Morgan— appear to have their starting spots clinched. And Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey and Philadelphia left fielder Greg Luzinski also appear to be shoo-ins, according to figures released Monday.

Concepcion, the starting shortstop for last year's NL All-Stars, has received 1,050,838 votes, with Bowa closely behind with 975,400 votes for the starting spot in the July 13th classic against the American League at Philadelphia.

Also up for grabs were the two other outfield positions. Luzinski leads with 818,615 votes. Cincinnati's George Foster was next with 735,156 votes, followed by the New York Mets' Dave Kingman, 691,269; Lou Brock, St. Louis, 674,968; Bake McBride, St. Louis, 636,224; Rick Monday, Chicago, 633,611, and Ken Griffey, Cincinnati, 633,608.

The biggest runaway is in balloting for the starting catcher's position. Bench has polled 1,613,165 votes to a mere 576,545 for runner-up Bob Boone of Philadelphia.

At third base, Rose has 1,405,580 votes to 883,016 for Philadelphia slugger Mike Schmidt, and Morgan has received 1,620,538 votes to 990,851 for Philadelphia's Dave Cash.

The American League leaders are Rod Carew, Minnesota, first base; Bobby Grich, Baltimore, second base; Fred Patek, Kansas City, shortstop; George Brett, Kansas City, third base; Carlton Fisk, Boston, catcher, and Boston's Fred Lynn, California's Bobby Bonds and Detroit's Ron LeFlore in the outfield.

Whitey Herzog fits Royals' bill

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's beginning to look more and more like Whitey Herzog is exactly what the Kansas City Royals needed. And he is a classic study of a man being in the right place at the right time.

Herzog was 43 years old and the third base coach for the California Angels last July when owner Ewing Kauffman made the decision to fire Jack McKeon and find another pilot for his strife-ridden Royals, who had lagged in their pursuit of Oakland in the American League West. Herzog, a veteran baseball man who had made his home since 1959 in Independence, Mo., a few minutes from Royals Stadium, was his choice.

Herzog made no personnel changes, but the team nevertheless played better than it had all season, racing to an impressive 41-25 clip and finishing with 91 victories, the highest total in 20 years of major league ball in this town.

This season the Royals are again rolling and lead the American League West.

A manager's role is difficult to assess, but there is no question that Whitey Herzog—he gets the name from his sun-colored hair—has won the hearts of his players.

The Royals were an unhappy, divided lot before Herzog arrived, and club spokesmen now asked to help explain the change suddenly find an excuse to leave the room.

The players are almost as reticent.

"It's just a much more relaxed atmosphere," said one, after carefully weighing his words. "He's willing to admit a mistake."

"He's honest with you," said another. "He can communicate with the players, and what's more, the players can communicate with him."

"There doesn't seem to be any pressure on the players," said one veteran Royal.

"Remember when you were a kid and you'd hop out of bed at eight o'clock and play all day just for the fun of it? Well, that's sort of the atmosphere Whitey's created here again. It's fun. But don't misunderstand. If you're not doing the job he won't put up with you and he lets you know it. He's the boss."

Herzog's destiny wove a circuitous path from his birth in New Athens, Ill., to the leadership of the Royals. His experience includes seven years in the New York Mets organization, scouting for the Kansas City Athletics, eight years as an outfielder-first baseman with several teams, and, most recently, a brief stint as manager of the Texas Rangers. He was fired by the Rangers in 1973 when Billy Martin, who later would also be fired, became available.

Herzog accepts modestly any credit for the Royals new-found success.

"I don't think it's any secret that when I got here there were several pretty tight cliques on this team," he says. "The first thing I did was call in every player and talk to him as an individual. I told them what I expected of them and what they could expect of me, and that's about all there was to it. The players all responded very positively. I think we got all our problems resolved."

Herzog did not stand pat this year. Some of his major decisions have been to move young Al Cowens to a starting role in right field, to reinstall lefthander Paul Splittorff in the starting rotation, shift Marty Pattin to the bullpen and make a starter out of bullpen ace Doug Bird.

Herzog breaks down his philosophy on managing into three separate parts:

"The most important," he says, "is handling people...gaining their respect and motivating them. Second, I believe, is dealing with the media. Third, is on-field strategy.

Pitcher Steve Busby, the ace of the Royals staff, has been hampered with arm trouble all year and inching through a strict conditioning program Herzog designed to ease him back to full strength. Monday night, after allowing the Detroit Tigers just two hits through six innings, he was asked to evaluate his progress.

"I'm very pleased," he said. "I'd like to hurry up and start going full strength, but Whitey doesn't think that would be wise.

Charity game slated

The California Razorbacks and Los Angeles Mustangs of the Western Football League will kick off the 1976 minor league professional football season Friday night at 8 p.m. on Bonita High's field.

The game will be a charity affair played for the benefit of Danbury School for Handicapped Children in Claremont.

According to game director Tom Weiss, "we are in need of some playground equipment for our school and we hope that we can raise enough money to supply our kids with some equipment this summer."

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1 for students. Children under 12 will be admitted free. Tickets may be obtained by calling (714) 596-1349 or (714) 626-2292 and are on sale at Danbury School. Tickets will also be available at Bonita High Friday night beginning at 6 p.m.

NOT A BRUISER — Linda Jefferson, 5-foot-4, 125-pound halfback for the Toledo Troopers of the National Women's Football League, has been dubbed the "O.J. Simpson of women's pro football."

Halfback Jefferson doesn't look the part

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Jefferson, a diminutive and attractive 21-year-old, has impressive statistics — like four 1,000-yard seasons and 72 career touchdowns.

A halfback for the Toledo, Ohio, Troopers of the National Women's Football League, Miss Jefferson hardly looks the part of a swift and bruising runner. But she is.

Dubbed the "O.J. Simpson of women's pro football," the 5-foot-4, 125 pounder was in 1975 named Female Athlete of the Year by WomenSports magazine. She was also a finalist in the televised Women's Superstar competition.

She's considered the top athlete in the fledgling National Women's Football League, which has four teams in the East and five on the West Coast.

Linda is a four-year veteran with the Troopers, who've not lost a game while she's played for them.

A track star who also played softball and basketball in high school in Toledo, Linda decided in her teens she wanted to be a football player.

"I used to play touch football with the boys in the streets when I was a kid," she said, adding with a grin, "but I had to give that up because they wanted to hold and squeeze too much."

Her mother, she recalled, wasn't exactly thrilled with the idea of her daughter becoming a football player.

"My mom said, 'Sure you do.' But then I showed up in a football uniform one day and she believed me.

"She wouldn't come to see me the first five games I played," Linda recounted. "But now she's my No. 1 fan."

Miss Jefferson was in California as part of the "Drop-In" program that enourages young people to stay in school and get involved in sports and community activities. She speaks to thousands of youngsters through the program set up by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp and which includes male football veterans Dick Butkus, Pete Gogolak, Ben Davidson and John Hadl.

"I tell them that competition can give them joy and self respect, and keep them in good condition," Linda said. "Someday I hope to coach children's teams in a whole variety of sports."

She could apparently also tell them how to run with the football.

"I try to stay out of people's way," she remarked. "I don't like to run over them unless I have to.

"People hear about me and think before they see me that I'm a mixture of Franco Harris, Joe Greene and Godzilla. I'm not."

The comely young lady undoubtably gets no argument on that score.

Lopez, Hafey want title shots

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Danny Lopez and Art Hafey agree on just one thing.

One of them ought to be the featherweight boxing champion of the world and the guys who hold the titles are ducking them.

"I've fought all the rated fighters except Danny and beaten 'em," declared Canadian Hafey who hails from Nova Scotia.

"I think I've proved I should have a title shot," said the Little Red Lopez whose brother Indian Red lost out in bids for the welterweight crown.

They met at a news conference at the Forum on Monday, the site where they'll meet in a 12-round fight on Aug. 6 and where Promoter Don Fraser said the winner will get a title shot against World Boxing Council champion David Kotey of Ghana.

"I'll win by round seven," the stubby slugger Hafey declared. But he added, "I still have doubts I'll get a title shot after what has happened."

He referred to lesser rated fighters getting title shots while he hasn't had one. "I'll win by a knockout," predicted Lopez. "I don't say any particular round...just when I get the shot in."

In the boxing ratings, Kotey is the champion in the WBC and Alex Arguello of Nicaragua is the World Boxing Association champion.

So with those two ranked 1-2 in the ranking of the two associations, it is Hafey and Lopez in the 3-4 spots.

Each will collect $25,000 or 30 per cent of the gate for their fight at the Forum. For Hafey it will be the biggest purse of his career and Lopez' manager, Howeie Steindler said that with ancillary revenues, his fighter will collect $40,000.

Both Hafey and Lopez wanted to fight for the title, win it and then box the other in a championship affair.

"I know Danny would be a big money fight for me," said Hafey. "But I did not think I should have had a title shot before this."

Neither will have trouble making the 126-pound weight, although Lopez admits he's getting bigger.

Hafey at 5-foot-4 if he stands on his toes, declared, "Everybody I fight is longer and taller than me."

But the longer and taller don't stay long and they fall short. Hafey has a 57-7-4 record and has won 19 in a row.

Lopez has a 30-3 record. He knocked out former champion Ruben Olivares (who split with Hafey in two fights) and then had KO's over Sean O'Grady and Famoso Gomez. The latter was the No.1 rated contender on April 28 when Little Red stopped him.

Each of the little battlers has the same contract agreement —a guarantee of $25,000 or 30 per cent of the gate.

Lopez said, "This will be my toughest fight. I'll just keep in there and keep punching."

Hafey believes this could even be better for him than a title shot at this time, "because Lopez is where the money is in Los Angeles. It will be a good pay day for me and lead to a championship fight."

Former owner doesn't want to get involved

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jay Moore, a $1.5 million lesson imprinted clearly on his mind, wants no more financial part of professional sports.

Moore, who owns a plastic pipe manufacturing firm, lost $100,000 a month after he bought majority interest in the Cleveland Crusaders' World Hockey Association franchise from Nick Mileti 15 months ago.

"I will not become financially involved again," said Moore, even if it means a National Hockey League team for the Coliseum at nearby Richfield.

Moore did recover much of his losses when Bill Putnam bought the Crusaders for $1.4 million. Putnam is transferring the franchise to Hollywood, Fla.

"If the circumstances were the same," said Moore, "but I knew what I know now, I would not get involved. It would be difficult to have more things go wrong."

He then ticked off such woes as the poor early season play of the Crusaders, the problems among front office officials, the resignation of General Manager Jack Vivian, the Gerry Cheevers squabble and the payroll embarrassment.

"They were all negative things that certainly didn't help generate a positive attitude toward the team and the league," said Moore.

Even with none of those problems, he conceded the Crusaders might not have had a chance. The WHA has yet to succeed in a major market, having been chased out of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston and Toronto.

"We have had a problem trying to sell the WHA as big league," said Moore. "I would have to admit the WHA is not big league over-all. The NHL seal means an awful lot to the fans. You can't fool them by calling something big league if it's not."

"I'm still convinced that hockey can be successful here," he said. "I want to help bring an NHL team to Cleveland and I think there will be a team here ultimately.

"I am convinced the (NHL) Seals are not going to stay in Oakland, but I don't know if there is enough time to affect a move here. But I will not become financially involved again."

Guyette would have liked tryout

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Bob Guyette, a former University of Kentucky basketball standout, and two Kentucky coaches are puzzled because Guyette wasn't invited too try out for the U.S. Olympic basketball team.

"I had written a letter to (North Carolina and Olympic Coach) Dean Smith, and I corresponded with them a couple of times . . . but when it came down to it, I just never did hear from them," Buyette said Monday.

Guyette's college coach, Joe Hall, and former Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp both recommended Guyette to Smith.

"He (Smith) said he was interested, and I thought he was," said Hall.

"There were 50 boys asked to the original tryouts and I know, positively, that he (Guyette) should have been among that bunch," Rupp added.

After playing for Kentucky's national runners-up in 1975, Guyette spent the past year playing amateur basketball in Spain. During that year, he became familiar with international rules as played in the Olympics.

Smith said that he "passed Guyette's letter on to the chairman of the selection committee, like all the other letters I got. I received literally hundreds of them."

"I had nothing to do with inviting any of the players from Europe," Smith added. "Dan Peterson, who coached the Italian championship team, submitted the best players who were eligible from Europe."

Smith eventually built an Olympic team that includes just one big man — his center at North Carolina, 6-foot-10 Mitch Kupchak. Guyette is 6-9 and a ferocious rebounder and inside scorer.

That, his knowledge of international rules and familiarity with several of the players the U.S. team will face in Montreal, would seem to make Guyette a prime candidate for the American team.

Playing in Europe "definitely would have made me more ready" for the Olympics, said Guyette.

"First of all, because I've played against a lot of players who represent other teams in the Olympics. For example, on my team were two players who will represent Spain in the Olympics. And we played in Italy and Israel, both of which have good teams," Guyette said.

"Out of the 50 players — or however many they selected — I think I had the experience of playing over there and I had a good enough career at Kentucky to warrant me for the tryouts," he added.

Cavazos heads Sunday cartel

TIJUANA — Mexico's most popular bullfighter, Eloy Cavazos, heads the cartel for Sunday in the downtown bullring, El Toreo de Tijuana.

Cavazos, a diminutive and heroic matador from Monterrey, will team with Manolo Arruza and a newcomer, Gabriel Soto (El Momo), to fight six brave bulls from Las Huertas beginning at 4 p.m.

Because this is the Fourth of July weekend — and because Cavazos has not fought in Tijuana since Sept. 15, 1974 — a large crowd is expected in the 14,000-seat arena.

Beginning with this corrida, a bullfight will be staged each Sunday in Tijuana at 4 p.m. through late September.

Cavazos, 25, stands only five feet, two inches, so he must jump almost over the horns at the moment of truth. This he does, and his sword work is generally considered the best.

Business briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States petroleum refineries set new records in gasoline production and in the amount of crude oil processed during the week ending June 18, the American Petroleum Institute says.

It was the third consecutive week in which new records were established in those two categories, API said.

Motor gasoline production averaged 7.367 million barrels a day during the week ending June 18. Refineries processed a dily average of 13.789 million barrels of crude oil that week.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)— A West German firm has filed a $30 million lawsuit charging General Tire and Rubber Co. with false advertising that did extensive damage to the German company's economic and moral standing.

The firm, Trans Oceanica G.m.b.H., a purchasing agent for General Tire's Chilean subsidiary Industria Nacional de Neumaticos SA INSA, has charged in U.S. District Court that General Tire has maliciously destroyed their reputation in the business world.

Charles F. Clarke, Trans Oceanica Attorney, said the suit stems from an advertisement that General Tire ran in April and July of 1975 in Chile's largest daily Newspaper, El mercurio.

The advertisement listed prices of certain raw materials used for tires, and said the worldwide prices were half what Trans Oceanica charged the INSA.

"That was false," Clarke said. "Prices were substantially the same."

Tress E. Pittenger, General Tire vice president and general counsel, said the company is generally familiar with the nature of the complaint and believes the allegations are unfounded.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel has been promised immunity from future pollution suits involving the Clairton Coke Works if the company agrees to install the best available control technology now.

The offer was made public Thursday by Allegheny County commissioner Robert Peirce and is considered a major breakthrough in the lengthy negotiations over the Clairton Works, the largest such facility in the world.

The talks stem from a $3 million suit the state and county filed against the company for 241 alleged violations of a 1972 consent decree in which U.S. Steel agreed to limit emissions at the plant.

Coke is a necessary ingredient in producing steel, but making it is a dirty process.

The company has maintained that the technology does not exist to meet the county's current air quality standards. The firm has also expressed fears that spending millions on equipment today would not necessarily mean the plant would meet future air regulations. the immunity offer eliminates that possibility.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The FMC Corp. has agreed to sell its Philadelphia-based fiber division to a newly formed company headed by a current FMC officer.

Avtex Fibers Inc., the buyer, will assume control of the fiber division Aug. 2. Vice chairman of FMC John N. Gregg will become chairman and president of Avtex. No sale price was disclosed.

The fiber division of FMC is the largest domestic producer of rayon, with 50 per cent of the U.S. capacity. The division also produces acetate and polyester products.

FMC Corp. is based in Chicago.

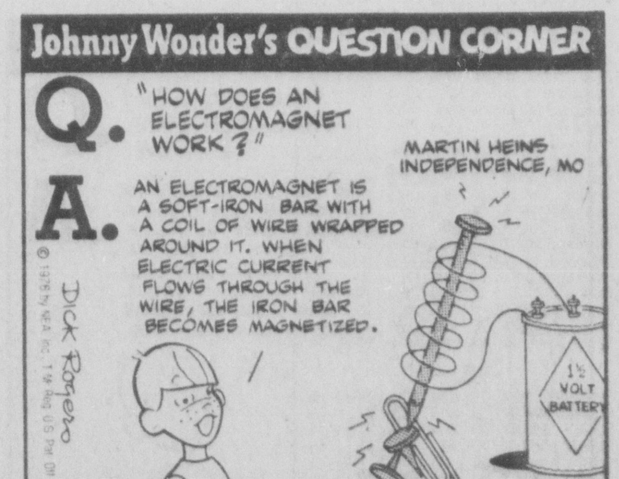
JOHNNY WONDER



Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "HOW DOES AN ELECTROMAGNET WORK?"
MARTIN HEINS INDEPENDENCE, MO
A. AN ELECTROMAGNET IS A SOFT-IRON BAR WITH A COIL OF WIRE WRAPPED AROUND IT. WHEN ELECTRIC CURRENT FLOWS THROUGH THE WIRE, THE IRON BAR BECOMES MAGNETIZED.
1½ VOLT BATTERY
DICK ROGERS
6/30

An electromagnet is a magnet that works with electricity.

An electromagnet consists of a soft-iron bar with a coil of wire wound around it. When electric current flows through a wire, a magnetic field develops around the wire. The current can create such a field because each electron in the current has a tiny magnetic field around it.

This weak magnetic field is strengthened by coiling the wire around the iron bar (the more turns in the wire there are and the stronger the current, the larger the magnetic effect). The bar then becomes a magnet and will attract other iron objects, just as a bar magnet does.

An electromagnet loses its magnetism when the current stops.

Powerful industrial electromagnets are used to lift heavy pieces of iron and steel. Around home you'll find electromagnets in doorbells, telephones, radios, TV sets, vacuum cleaners and other things run by electric motors.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Fate of N.J. school system hangs on judicial hearing

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — An extraordinary hearing before New Jersey's entire federal judiciary began today to decide if New Jersey schools must shut down Thursday.

An "en banc" hearing before 11 U.S. District Court judges, including two retired but still active members of New Jersey's federal bench, began shortly after 11 a.m. with opening arguments from state Atty. Gen. William F. Hyland.

At issue is a State Supreme Court order to close the schools July 1 unless a new system for financing them is approved by the legislature. On May 13, the state court said the existing method — based on property taxes — is unfair to schools in poor neighborhoods.

The legislature has been unable to meet the court's demand, deadlocking on measures that would have imposed a state income tax and cut property taxes. Each house passed a bill unacceptable to the other.

The federal court panel hearing the case will be drawn from a pool of the 11 federal judges in the state. The chief judge of the Federal Court, Lawrence A. Whipple, on Tuesday directed all federal judges who are not occupied with other cases to take part.

In case the federal court does not grant a last-minute stay, sources say, leaders in each house have devised a set of signals designed to pass a tax bill before the deadline. Senators will vote on a property tax relief bill with the understanding that the same votes will be cast for a 2 per cent income tax bill favored by the Assembly.

State officials say the impact of the school closing will be extensive even though only summer schools are in session after July 1.

About 1.5 million students attend the state's 6,000 schools during the regular school year. Of those, 150,000 attend summer school and 61,000 attended vocational training school during the summer.

State Education Commissioner Fred Burke said that for every day the shutdown order is in effect, the schools will open one day later this fall, a claim that has been disputed by other officials.

He also announced Monday that 900 employes of the State Education Department will be laid off this summer if the schools close.

Six challenges to the state court ruling were filed with the federal court, from local schools boards, the New Jersey School Boards Association and U.S. Atty. Jonathan L. Goldstein.

They argue that school children have a constitutional right to an education.

A companion suit was filed by 31 members of the Republican minority in the Assembly, claiming that the state court exceeded its judicial role in ordering the schools closed.

The seven-member state court, after a lengthy discussion Monday, decided not to file any response to the challenges. There had been a sharp split over the original ruling, with two dissenting justices condemning the majority in strong language.

On Monday, in a letter that began "Dear Judge Larry," the Chief Justice of the state court, Richard J. Hughes, told Whipple that "with all due respect to the United States District Court, the Supreme Court and its members will not be appearing by counsel."

Florence R. Feskoe, the Supreme Court clerk, said she didn't know how many justices favored sending someone to the federal court hearing or filing a statement defending the court's position.

High court rules Nebraska judge's news 'gag order' unconstitutional

Heat wave finally subsiding

If the weatherman's forecast of 91 Thursday following 95 today proves accurate, the weather will seem cool to valley residents after an enervating heat wave.

They won't escape smog. A first stage alert was expected today from 2 to 7 p.m.

Tuesday's high of 95 was followed by a low of 57 early this morning.

Although sunny weather was anticipated for the valley, low clouds and ocean breezes closer to the coast brought temperatures down throughout Southern California.

They also lowered the danger of brush fires and overloaded power lines.

Firemen in Southern California were busy Tuesday, tackling a 300-acre blaze east of Riverside and a seven-acre flareup in Los Angeles' Griffith Park.

Sparks blown from the Griffith Park fire ignited a load of 23 tons of hay on a truck on the nearby Golden State Freeway.

The truck driver, Robert Gordon, 56, of Lakewood was alerted to the blazing hay by another motorist using a citizen's band radio. Gordon was treated for leg burns he suffered putting out the flames.

47 hostages released by hijackers

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Palestinian hijackers of a French jetliner today released 47 elderly women, sick persons and children among the more than 250 hostages they were holding for the third day at Entebbe Airport, the Ugandan government announced. Two Americans were among them.

The West German Embassy, which handles American affairs in Uganda, identified the Americans as Carol Taylor, 33, and her son Eric, 6. No home town was given.

The Israeli cabinet was meeting in emergency session to decide what it would do about demands to free 40 prisoners to ransom the rest of the captives and the plane. At least 70 Israelis are among the hostages.

Besides the two Americans, the 47 included 33 French, one Canadian and various other nationalities.

A tired smile on a new face for happy Ida

LA GRANDE, Ore. (AP) — Ida Hays' plane was an hour and a half late, but 200 people still were waiting when she arrived in her hometown wearing a tired smile on her new face.

The 15-year-old girl, whose badly deformed features were repaired by 10 hours of complicated surgery last month in New York, seemed to not quite believe the greeting she received in this town of some 10,400 people Tuesday.

A police car met her at the city limits and, lights flashing, escorted her to the middle of town. Families stood on the sidewalks and hollered "Hello."

One young, long-haired boy shouted, "Hi, Ida. What's happening?"

"I liked it," Ida said of her welcome, but she added, "I was kind of embarrassed."

Her grandmother, Alia Bellus, marveled at her granddaughter's lack of bitterness despite years of cruelty and taunting.

Ida had surgery May 19 at New York University Hospital. Surgeons moved her eyes more than an inch closer together, removed the deformed bone and used bone taken from her hip to mold her face into shape. Her brain had to be lifted to make room for the surgeons to work. She lost 16 pounds while in New York.

Scars left by the operation were already fading as Ida returned to the welcome attended by many who had contributed money to help pay for the young girl's surgery.

Still, Ida's exuberance exploded when she saw her grandparents there to greet her. She said over the roar of the jet engines that she was very tired.

"I haven't slept for two nights," Ida said. "I couldn't."

Mrs. Wilcox and Mrs. Bellus and grandfather Leslie Bellus were at the airport to meet her before their 52-mile car trip home.

Just before she climbed into the car, Ida grabbed her mother for one more hug.

"We did it," she cried.

First full review of prior news restraint in a criminal case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that a Nebraska judge's order restricting news coverage of a sensational mass murder case last October was an unconstitutional restraint on freedom of the press.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, the court did not rule out the possibility that such orders could be issued in other circumstances to protect the right of a defendant to a fair trial.

But Burger declared that "the barriers to prior restraint remain high" and those barriers were not overcome in the Nebraska case.

Justices Byron R. White, Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist joined in Burger's opinion, which marked the first time the court has given a full-scale review to a direct prior restraint on news coverage of a criminal case.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Potter Stewart, and Thurgood Marshall filed a separate opinion concurring in the judgment. Justice John Paul Stevens also filed a separate opinion which concurred.

In his opinion, Burger warned the news media that First Amendment protections for freedom of the press carry with them a duty "to exercise the protected rights responsibly — a duty widely acknowledged but not always observed by editors and publishers.

"It is not asking too much to suggest that those who exercise First Amendment rights in newspapers or broadcasting enterprises direct some effort to protect the rights of an accused to a fair trial by unbiased jurors," Burger said.

Brennan, Stewart and Marshall held "that resort to prior restraints on the freedom of the press is a constitutionally impermissble method" of enforcing the right to a fair trial.

Stevens agreed "that the judiciary is capable of protecting the defendant's right to a fair trial without enjoining the press from publishing information in the public domain and that it may not do so."

However, Stevens added: "Whether the same absolute protection would apply no matter how shabby or illegal the means by which the information is obtained, no matter how serious an intrusion on privacy might be involved, no matter how demonstrably false the information might be, no matter how prejudicial it might be to the interests of innocent persons, no matter how perverse the motivation for publishing it, is a question I would not answer without further argument."

In addition to joining Burger's opinion, White filed a separate statement expressing "grave doubts ... whether orders with respect to the press such as were entered in this case would ever be justifiable."

Burger's opinion was confined closely to the facts in the Nebraska case. White said it was not necessary to issue a broader ruling to settle the Nebraska matter.

Some shakes over snakes

An Upland tow truck operator stored a drunk driving suspect's car Tuesday night after an arrest made in Claremont, not knowing that inside the auto was a bucket containing four live rattlesnakes.

"I didn't like that at all," said Paul Amers of A & M Towing after learning the snakes were inside the car in a covered bucket. "I was in that car, taking it out of gear. What if the bucket had fallen over?"

Claremont police didn't learn of the snakes until quite a while after they had arrested Kenneth Chapman, 20, of Pasadena. He was stopped at Indian Hill Boulevard south of Arrow Highway by officers who had followed him from First Street.

"What about my animals?" he asked an officer making a check of the jail. When asked what animals he was talking about he said he had four rattlesnakes in a bucket inside his car. Police quickly telephoned Amers with the information, but that was early this morning.

Amers said that Chapman arrived at 8:30 to get the car and there was a bucket containing snakes inside the car.

Police said Chapman, who is scheduled for arraignment in Pomona Municipal Court July 20, had been visiting friends in the area when he was stopped.

Sen. Goldwater endorses Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, an influential voice among conservative Republicans, has endorsed President Ford for the GOP nomination for the White House.

Red Bluff fire still out of control

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP) — A forest fire, described as the worst in five years, swept into a largely inaccessible wilderness area today and fire officials said hopes for controlling the blaze were slim.

"We cannot project containment at this time," said Bernie Bane, spokesman for the California Division of Forestry.

The fire has charrred more than 90 square miles of foothill brush, rangeland and forests.

The fire, 25 miles west of here and 150 miles north of San Francisco, devoured scenic wilderness and rangeland despite the efforts of more than 2,000 state and federal fire fighters and an armada of equipment on land and in the air.

It roared over both manmade and natural fire breaks Tuesday, jumping a fire line carved by bulldozers in its northwest corner and climbing a mountain which was expected to halt it in the southwest. The spokesman said it was started Sunday by a spark from a lawnmower.

"The fire is hard to visualize because it is so large," state Assemblyman William Campbell said after flying over the blaze. "It is 10 to 12 miles deep. It is in terrain that runs from the low foothills up into heavy timber. If the fire gets into the wilderness area up there, it will burn for two weeks because the area is very inaccessible."

The blaze was licking into the Yolla Bolly Wilderness area Tuesday. With no access roads for bulldozers or fire trucks, firemen were forced to try to hack out a fireline with picks and shovels in their attempt to save the vast region of scenic timberland.

Smaller fires shot up in nearly all sections of the state, meanwhile. Officials estimated that 50 to 75 fires were fought on Tuesday alone, including ones in Yosemite National Park, Kings Canyon National Park and the Plumas National Forest.

"Separate fires keep starting everywhere," said CDF Information Officer Dale Wierman, "and we have to fight them all. We keep having to rob crews from the big ones to keep the small ones from getting big."

"We have reached a crisis state in California where we are two months ahead of the usual fire season," said Campbell.

Bitter struggle on teacher lottery

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An attempt to prevent the Los Angeles Unified School District from using a lottery to fully integrate its teachers has become bogged down in a bitter struggle in the Senate.

With an unexpectedly strong show of opposition, the upper house refused Tuesday to send the measure by Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

But Robbins said he would ask for another vote this afternoon.

A sidelight in the struggle is the fact that Brown's sister, Kathleen Brown Rice, sits on the Los Angeles school board, which drew up the lottery system.

Some lawmakers have said that the bill is running into trouble because Brown doesn't want to become involved in the dispute. But the governor's top aide, Gray Davis, said Brown has not lobbied against the measure.

Tuesday's 11-14 roll call was 10 votes short of 21 needed to approve Assembly amendments to the bill. Several senators were absent, however.

The action came after a sometimes-bitter debate in which critics said the bill would fuel discord in Los Angeles schools. At one point, a black senator accused Robbins of sounding like George Wallace.

"I have heard George Wallace saying that," Sen. Nate Holden said after reading a section of a commentary on the lottery system that Robbins had read on a Los Angeles television station.

"I am a little bit disgusted about the whole thing," added Holden, D-Culver City. "I think it (the bill) is absolutely wrong. I would never introduce any legislation that would divide us."

In the commentary, Robbins urged Los Angeles parents to "get mad, protect your son or daughter, write to your assemblyman."

Other bill critics said a lottery was the most impartial way to transfer teachers. They also said the bill would be a blow against "local control" and would take away a useful integration tool.

Robbins, regarded as a possible candidate in next year's Los Angeles mayor's race, said the bill would not prevent the district from integrating teachers but would stop it from using a system based on "random chance."

With a lottery, teachers would be transferred "without regard to years of service, educational qualifications or place of residence," he said.

The bill would prevent any California school district, after Jan. 1, from using a lottery to choose teachers to be transferred.

The first part of the integration program is scheduled to go into effect this fall, and the district was required to submit a teacher integration plan to federal officials by today.

If his bill becomes law, the district would have to drop the lottery plan next year, Robbins said. Or school officials could decide to drop the lottery program this year and follow another course, he added.

He said the district would not lose any federal aid if it submitted an alternate plan after first filing the lottery program.

The bill originally would have taken effect immediately — on an emergency clause — if signed by the governor, but it was amended in the Assembly to remove that provision after it ran into opposition.

Removing the urgency clause cut the votes needed to pass the bill from two-thirds to a simple majority.

The bill orginally cleared the Senate on a 28-3 vote. Some assemblymen have claimed that the bill is now in trouble because Brown doesn't want to deal with it because of his sister's involvement, Robbins said.

"It was the governor's sister who helped devise the plan," he added. "Everybody knows that."

But he added that he "honestly didn't know" the reason for the Senate's opposition to the measure.

Davis, Brown's top aide, said Brown has taken no public position on the bill and did not lobby for or against it in the legislature.

"If it passes, I am confident he will consult most of the interested parties before making a decision to sign or veto the bill," he said.

Laser research comes long way to make energy

LIVERMORE (AP) — On a former cattle ranch 50 miles east of San Francisco, researchers are attempting to harness fusion — the energy source of the sun and stars — for generating clean, inexhaustible energy on earth.

"We've got a long way to go, but we've already come a long way," laser fusion research chief John L. Emmett told reporters Tuesday during a tour of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

A key tool for the research, being conducted for the Energy Research and Development Administration, is the newly completed $3.5 million Argus laser generator.

Emmett said the Argus, a third generation laser generator covering space about the size of a football field, is capable of producing twice as much energy as all the power plants in the United States combined. Argus experiments began June 1.

A fourth-generation laser, called Shiva and 10 times as powerful as Argus, is under construction now at Livermore.

Dr. Roger E. Batzel, head of the laboratory which has a $202 million budget and 6,000 employes, said Lawrence scientists are studying both lasers and magnetic confinement as methods to create fusion.

The concept is that heat from the fusion — a continuing series of tiny thermonuclear explosions — would heat a fluid, creating steam to drive electrical generators. Batzel said it appears possible that an experimental laser fusion power generating system will be operating by the late 1980s.

"My opinion is that the solution to our long-range energy problems may well depend on the success of either or both of these methods."

"We've got to pursue both options now to be sure we have one that works around the turn of the century. It's beginning to look like both will work — although we can't be certain. If both work, each may have novel complementary applications."

Emmett said advantages over present-day nuclear power plants include that fusion burns cleanly with no radioactive waste, core cooling hazards are not a problem, and the fuel is heavy hydrogen — almost inexhaustible on earth.

CHIP OFF THE OLD DOCK

A ship is docked at Port of Sacramento Tuesday as several mountains of wood chips burn. Cause of the fire is under investigation. The wood chips sit in huge piles awaiting shipment to Japan where they are processed for wrapping paper, officials said.

Indicted in baby deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A doctor, his wife and his son have been charged with multiple murder in the deaths of babies delivered at the doctor's cut-rate medical clinics.

A Los Angeles County grand jury returned an indictment Tuesday charging Dr. Joseph Emory, 55, with 17 counts of murder. He was convicted of second-degree murder 16 years ago.

The indictment also named six other persons, including Emory's wife, Harriet, 51, who is accused of 16 murders, and their son, Alan, accused of nine.

Others charged were Joseph Vargas, William Leonard, Irene Barcenas, Anna Whitacre, Aurora Silva and Maria Banda, all associated with Emory's clinics.

Emory lost his osteopath's license after a 1960 second-degree murder conviction in the death of a woman who had undergone an abortion. The license later was reinstated.

In the latest indictment, authorities said the babies died during delivery or within a few days after birth at Emory-operated clinics, which they said were not licensed for that purpose. They also said that, except for Emory, none of the clinics' employes was licensed.

Besides the murder charges, the indictment charges conspiracy to commit acts harmful to the public welfare and child endangerment.

Everything thrown into fire battles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An army of weary firefighters and an odd assortment of equipment — including spyplanes, helicopters and antifirebombers — are being thrown into the battle against an epidemic of timber and grassland fires around California.

Everything, from U2 reconnaissance planes with infrared film for locating hot spots to plain old picks and shovels, is being used to battle the estimated 50 to 75 blazes which were reported burning throughout the state Tuesday.

Fire engines were flown from Southern California to Red Bluff by California National Guard aircraft to help fight the huge blaze there which has consumed 60,000 acres and is still uncontained.

U2s, helicopters, C130 cargo planes, air tankers, troop carriers and countless fire engines and bulldozers have been thrown into the battle to stop the fire which broke out Sunday afternoon.

Firefighters were ferried to the front lines by boat at another fire in Tuolumne County. That fire, which burned 5,600 acres, was contained Tuesday evening, officials said.

Much of the equipment — especially bulldozers — has been rented from private firms, according to officials. The National Guard and local fire departments also have contributed to the huge armada of firefighting equipment.

But the most hard-sought commodity has been the crews. According to a spokesman of the California Division of Forestry, firefighters from several states are on the lines.

Crews are constantly being shuffled from fire to fire. Fresh men are becoming as scarce as fires are plentiful.

When two hand crews were sent to take on a fire in Northern California Tuesday, CDF spokesman said: "They may need more up there, but that's all they are going to get. We're short-handed everywhere.

"We keep having to rob crews from the big ones (fires) to keep the small ones from getting big."

The strain of the war firefighters have been waging against various blazes for the past month has started to tell, according to another CDF spokesman.

Information officer Harry Harp said even though the fire crews are getting regular rest periods, they are being "run ragged."

"We can't expect as much out of them anymore," he said. "We saw some federal firefighters taking a break Tuesday, and anytime you see hotshots like that — real go-getters — sitting along the road resting, you know they've had it."

Two summer camps for boys offered

Two mountain summer camps for boys 8 to 12 will be offered in July through a special program sponsored by the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department and the Old Baldy Council of the Boy Scouts.

The camps will be held July 19-21, and July 21-23 at the Holcolm Valley Scout Ranch near Big Bear Lake.

For a cost of only $9.50 per boy, each youth will be able to attend the three days of camp including transportation, meals, lodging, insurance, scout membership, and a year's subscription to "Boy's Life" magazine.

A maximum of 150 boys can attend each session of the camp. Registration will begin Thursday at Palomares, Washington, Westmont, and Kennedy Parks, the Parks and Recreation Office at Pomona City Hall, Lorberr Junior High School in Diamond Bar and Old Baldy Council office in Claremont.

For additional information, persons may call 626-3551 or 620-2321.

California Supreme Court ruling

Can't back out of marriage pact

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court has ruled that a woman could not back out of a "marriage contract" she signed before the wedding.

Former schoolteacher Betty Johnson had asked the court to strike down the property agreement she signed June 11, 1964, with engineer James Dawley, two days before their wedding.

According to the court, the woman discovered she was pregnant late in May of 1964, wanted to avoid possibly losing her job because of having an illegitimate child, and reached agreement with her boyfriend on a temporary marriage.

A baby girl was born in January of 1965 and Mrs. Dawley later resumed work. The couple continued to live together until July of 1972. In April of 1973 he filed for divorce.

Relying on the premarital agreement, the Santa Clara County Superior Court found there was no community property subject to division and awarded Dawley all property purchased with his separate income.

The woman appealed, claiming the premarital agreement was invalid because it violated public policy to foster and protect marriage.

The court reaffirmed the state rule that validity of such an agreement "does not depend upon whether parties contemplated a lifelong marriage."

The decision said the pact providing the parties will hold their earnings as separate property "does not offend public policy."

"Betty can succeed in overturning the trial court's order enforcing the agreement only if she can show that the terms of the agreements promote or encourage the dissolution of their marriage," said the court. "An examination ... however, reveals no provision which on its face might promote or encourage dissolution."

The court noted that in the past, wealthy persons often used such agreements when they feared they were being married for their money.

But it said in recent years, an increasing number of couples have made such premarital agreements "in order to structure their legal relationship in a manner more suited to their needs and values.

"Neither the reordering of property rights to fit the needs and desires of the couple, nor realistic planning that takes account of the possiblity of dissolution, offends the public policy favoring and protecting marriage," said the court. "It is only when the terms of an agreement go further — when they promote and encourage dissolution, and thereby threaten the induce the destruction of a marriage that might otherwise endure — that such terms offend public policy."

Officer to answer charge in shooting of private detective

A Los Angeles policeman has been ordered into Pomona Superior Court to answer the charge of assault with a deadly weapon in the wounding May 10 of a private detective.

He is Victor Lee Denham, 30, of Walnut, a veteran of eight years on the Los Angeles Police Department.

Denham was arrested shortly after Robert Lee Petrasich, 26, a Monterey Park private detective, was shot at 19381 Springport St., Rowland Heights, the residence of Sandra Broussard, 26-year-old girlfriend of the policeman. Petrasich was wounded in his lower chest and for a time was confined at County-USC Medical Center. The woman was not injured.

Denham fled to his apartment after the shooting and was arrested there by sheriff's deputies accompanied by his supervisor from LAPD, investigators said.

The suspect was bound over at his preliminary hearing in Citrus Municipal court in West Covina. Commissioner David Baxley scheduled his arraignment in the Pomona court for July 12. He is free on $3,000 bail.

She shoots self in foot

A Pomona woman told police Monday that she wounded herself in one foot when a pistol belonging to her boy friend discharged as she was attempting to unload it.

The victim, Bobbie Lee Demison, 24, went to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment but left, Pomona police said. She later appeared at Doctors Hospital in Montclair where she was referred to a foot specialist, they reported.

The shooting occurred at Ralph Welch Park, the victim said. Police said she refused to identify the gun's owner.

Pomona oldtimers sought for book on Centennial history

The Pomona Bicentennial Committee is looking for stories about longtime residents of the city for inclusion in its book "Pomona: A Centennial History," which is to be published in August.

The committee would like to contact families that have had three or more generations attend Pomona high schools; prominent persons born in Pomona; and people who went to high school here more than 20 years ago and are still active in local businesses.

Persons are asked to contact Marsha Warren at 622-3634 or Nancy McCracken at 622-3112 as soon as possible.

The book is scheduled for release on Aug. 8. Prepublication price is $10 through members of the Bicentennial Committee or by contacting Tony Navarro at 620-2385.

91 years' service, 5 school district workers to retire

Five Claremont Unified School District employes with a combined 91 years in service will retire today.

The five were honored by the Claremont school board and each received a certificate of appreciation.

Miss Ingrid Peterson, with the district since 1954, has taught at Sycamore, El Roble, and Claremont High.

Since 1963 she has taught art, and expects to continue her creative art work professionally. She will teach part-time at Citrus College.

Mrs. Madge Kamm is a 20-year veteran, and has taught grade three at Vista, grades three through six at Sycamore, and since 1965 instructed reading and music at Chaparral.

Planning to travel extensively after putting in 17 years with the school district is Mrs. Hazel Hinman who taught at Condit from 1959 to 1963, was district psychometrist from 1963-1966, and became district psychologist in 1966.

A teacher who has spent all her district time at El Roble Intermediate School is Mrs. Lois Collins, who taught reading from 1957 to 1964, business since that time, and was department chairman from 1967-1969.

Mrs. Collins said she and her husband Milton have bought a mobile home at Irvine.

A teacher who has spent all of her 15 years with the district at Mountain View School is Mrs. Evelyn Mauer. She has taught grades one, two, and three, and learning assistance since 1967.

She said that she and her husband Robert plan moving to the beach.

61 Americans physically abused in Mexican jails, U.S. claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixty-one Americans arrested in Mexico this year have been physically abused, some with cattle prods, the State Department says.

Deputy Assistant Secretary William H. Luers said Tuesday that the State Department has been unable to obtain an end to the mistreatment of the American prisoners.

He said the situation was a "serious problem" complicated by Mexico's sensitivity about U.S. criticisms of Mexican jails.

"Mexico's very proximity and involvement with the United States makes her government officials particularly sensitive to indications of U.S. encroachment on Mexican sovereignty and independence."

As of June 1, 603 Americans were confined in Mexican jails, including 490 arrested on drug related charges, according to Leonard Walentynowicz, administrator of the State Department's bureau of security and consular affairs.

The number has risen since the start of the year. Between Jan. 1 and June 27, 334 Americans were arrested in Mexico and 249 were released from Mexican jails, Walentynowicz said.

The 334 include the 61 who were physically abused, he said.

Luers and Walentynowicz testified before the House International Relations subcommittee on international political and military affairs, which has been pressuring the State Department to use its influence with Mexico to improve conditions in the prisons and the treatment of the Americans held there.

"Neither Mexican concern for human rights nor our vigorous protests have put an end to physical abuse of arrestees during interrogation," said Luers, who directs the department's bureau of inter-American affairs. "We also remain dissatisfied with the fact that many of our citizens imprisoned in Mexico continue to exist in deplorable conditions."

Congressional investigators have reported that U.S. citizens in the Mexican jails have been beaten and subjected to other forms of torture, and have been exploited by their Mexican lawyers. Many of these reports eventually were confirmed by the State Department.

When Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger visited Mexico in early June, he spoke with Mexican leaders about the jail problems. Discussions focused on the possibility of reaching an agreement to allow U.S. citizens arrested and convicted in Mexico to serve their sentences in the United States, and Mexicans arrested and convicted here to serve their sentences in Mexico.

Luers said State Department staff members are engaged in preliminary work on such an agreement but that no negotiations are underway.

President's signature needed for tax measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's signature on legislation rushed through Congress would prevent payroll tax witholding rates from increasing at midnight tonight.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford will decide today whether to sign the bill, but there was no indication the President would allow withholding rates to increase.

Ford's signature would protect workers from a $3-$6 increase in weekly withholding from their paychecks. The freeze would remain in effect through Sept. 1, giving Congress more time to complete action on a long-range, catch-all tax revision measure.

Without Ford's signature, withholding rates would increase when tax cuts enacted last year expire at midnight tonight. The Senate passed the stopgap freeze on withholding rates Monday, and the House followed suit with unanimous approval on Tuesday.

The Senate, meanwhile, continues debate on the over-all tax revision bill. On the agenda today was an amendment expected to pass easily that would impose tax withholding on income from interest and dividend in the same way that taxes are deducted weekly from employes' pay checks.

Such a system would catch millions of dollars worth of taxes that are lost when recipients of interest and dividends fail to report such income, experts say.

If the tax cuts enacted last year were allowed to expire, it would mean a $445-per-year tax increase for a four-member family earning $6,000 a year. The yearly tax hike for a typical four-member family earning $15,000 or a single person making $25,000 would be $180. A couple with no children and earning $10,000 would face a $204 tax increase.

The multibillion-dollar tax-revision bill being debated in the Senate would extend the tax cuts, at least until July 1, 1977, with strong indications they may be made permanent. The complexity of the bill made it impossible for Congress to pass it by tonight, thus necessitating the two month extension of existing withholding rates.

The big bill includes more than 200 different tax provisions, ranging from a crackdown on tax shelters used by wealthy investors to a liberalized tax credit for child-care expenses of working parents.

Most of the two weeks the full Senate has spent on the bill has been used by liberals in mainly unsuccessful efforts to reduce or eliminate tax benefits for wealthy investors or business.

These efforts, which the liberals call tax reform, have been resisted by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, and a majority of the Senate.

Typical of the liberal efforts were a series of votes Tuesday night in which the Senate refused to reduce a tax advantage for owners of oil and gas wells and to repeal special tax treatment accorded corporations that do business abroad.

Sen. William Hathaway, D-Maine, was defeated 57 to 33 in his bid to deny owners of oil and gas wells a lower tax rate when they sell the wells if they had previously taken advantage of a quick tax writeoff when the wells were developed.

This amendment, which would have saved the government $5 million a year, was attacked by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., as a heavy burden that could destroy some independent petroleum producers, who find most of the nation's new oil and gas deposits.

Also defeated, 47 to 43, was an amendment by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., that would have repealed the right of U.S. firms to defer paying taxes on income earned by their foreign subsidiaries until the money is returned to the United States as dividends.

The tax-deferral provision, long under attack by labor unions, was described by Hartke as "a strong incentive for U.S. companies to locate plants abroad," causing a loss of American jobs capital and tax revenues.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., called those claims "poppycock" and denied that U.S. firms set up operations in foreign countries to find lower taxes and lower wages.

County mayor plan on ballot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County voters will be able to turn thumbs up or down on whether they want a county mayor and nine supervisors instead of the present five.

The county Board of Supervisors took final action Tuesday on ordinances which will put the two charter amendments on the November ballot.

Supervisor James Hayes was absent from the votes on both ordinances.

The four remaining supervisors voted unanimously to put the possible creation of a county mayor position into voters' hands. Under the plan, the elected chief exective would take over the supervisors' administrative duties.

With only Supervisor Peter Schabarum dissenting, Supervisors Ed Edelman, Kenneth Hahn and Baxter Ward voted to iet county residents decide if they want four more supervisors on the five-member board.

Viking scientists study Mars surface

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Like students cramming for a final exam, Viking scientists are studying 18 to 20 hours a day in an effort to understand the strange ups and downs of Mars' surface.

They will know their grade when the Viking unmanned laboratory touches down safely — or else is dashed against an unforeseen cliff — on one of three sites being studied.

With the original landing place currently considered too hazardous, the space craft took pictures Tuesday of an area referred to as the Northwest site that is just beginning to be explored.

Depending on what they see, the scientists will decide on Thursday whether that site looks like the best bet or whether they should focus on an alternative site halfway around the planet.

Dr. Harold Masursky said the northwest site — so-called because of its direction from the original landing point — appeared in the latest pictures to be an ancient basin where water had once gathered. Masursky believes that at one time in the past, massive flood waters, perhaps from the melting of ice beneath the surface, cut large channels that flowed down from the original landing site into the basin.

He said the area was not as dramatically etched by ancient torrents that seemed to have made the higher plateau of the original site too rough for a safe landing. The northwest site is, in effect, downstream of the first site, so the entire surface is now dry.

"The water must have been much lower and much sparser here" at the Northwest site or Chryse Phoenicia, said Masursky. "We're moving in this direction because we think we're getting farther downstream (from the original site), and we think this is a very strong indication that we are moving out of the area that has been heavily flooded and heavily modified."

The planned July 4 landing of the Viking 1 automated laboratory was postponed last weekend because of the suprisingly rough terrain in the proposed touchdown area. But no one was prepared to say Tuesday that the northwest site was definitely an improvement, although Masursky said some of the features in the new area may have been softened by desposits of wind-blown sand.

It may be that neither Chryse Phoenicia nor the distant alternate site, designated A2, will be used in the end. The original landing site, called A1, may be chosen if neither of the other sites appears clearly safer.

The landing-site scientists, mainly geologists, are using every clue they can find to guess what the surface will look like when the lander arrives. Viking officials said their minds were still open on where to put the 7-by-10-foot lander down.

"At this point, I am considering anything I can find that looks like a landing site," said project manager Jim Martin.

For the northwest site, Viking would release its lander unit for a touchdown attempt July 22. The landing would come on July 21 if a decision is made to try the A2 site, also called Tritonis Lacus.

Officials at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the Viking continued to work well. Its sister ship, Viking II, is to arrive near the planet in August and to land Sept. 4.

Motorcyclist hits dog; he's hurt, dog dies

An Ontario man suffered cuts and bruises Tuesday when his motorcycle struck a dog near Chino.

Andrew Scott Rynsburger, 18, 1785 Edison Ave., was riding north on Cypress Avenue when a sheep dog suddenly bolted across the roadway, said highway patrolmen. The accident occurred near Edison Avenue.

The motorcycle ran directly over the animal, causing the driver to fall onto the roadway. The dog was killed.

Rynsburger was treated at Chino General Hospital for cuts and bruises to his arm, back, side and leg. He was later released.

Truck blaze may be arson

Fire of suspicious nature Tuesday heavily damaged a van truck parked at the curb by owner Bill Marino of 1324 Singingwood Ave., Pomona.

Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said loss estimates were $2,000 to the vehicle and $1,000 to contents. Carpet sample cases and clothing inside the van were destroyed, Fowlkes said.

Marino told firemen he had parked the van at his home at 10 p.m. with the windows down. He said he heard no noise outside.

Fowlkes said the fire had been set on the driver's seat and flames gutted the interior. An arson investigation is underway.

Greasy-handed man robs Ontario bank of $1,869

A greasy-handed man with a bad comlexion is being sought by Ontario police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation in connection with a $1,869 robbery of the First National Bank branch at 1322 E. Fourth St. Tuesday afternoon.

The robber, according to Ontario police, entered the bank about 1:30 p.m. and stood in line in front of teller Janet Sevilla. When he approached the teller's cage he handed the woman a note saying he had a gun in his waistband and would use it unless she filled a dark shaving kit he handed her.

The teller hesitated for a moment and the robber verbally threatened her with harm unless she did as he said. Mrs. Sevilla complied, filling the robber's shaving kit with small and large denomination bills, police said.

He told her, "You better give me a minute," and walked out of the bank.

The robber, wearing a floppy green fatigue hat and a long curly black wig, ran across Grove Avenue, entered the Tender Trap Lounge with the wig in his hand and asked the bartender if there was a back door.

The bartender and customers at the bar said the man walked out the back door and disappeared.

Another young witness told police that the robber was joined by another man described as a white, about 40, 190 pounds wearing an orange and white shirt and blue Levis in an alcove towards the rear of the Tender Trap.

Police made a store to store search of the area, assisted by the San Bernardino County sheriff's helicopter but were unable to locate the suspects.

Police said in their search of the area they recovered the green hat believed worn by the robber and found a door to several upstairs offices above the Tender Trap pried open. Fresh footprints were found in the upstairs offices but no suspects.

One officer canvassing the area said that the robbery "was extremely well-planned." The robber or robbers managed to elude police units that arrived within two minutes of the alarm.

The robbery was the third at the First National Bank branch in the past five years. All four of the previous robbers have been apprehended by police and FBI agents and are now in prison.

The bank robbery investigation was turned over to the FBI as bank robbery is a federal offense.

Drug robbery

A POMONA pharmacist was tied up by two men who robbed Pomona Center Drug, 3294 N. Garey Ave., of a small amount of cash and all the store's drugs, police reported.

The victim, Justin J. Venetucci, 51, said he was working in the pharmacy department Monday night when he was confronted by one man at the counter and another who entered the enclosure through the door and crouched on the floor so he would not be seen by other employes. The latter man showed a pistol.

The men demanded all the drugs and forced Venetucci to place them in a paper sack. Then they took money from the cash register and ordered the victim to lie on the floor while they tied him up with a piece of electrical cord.

Among the drugs taken was Dexedrine and Demerol.

The gunman was white, 20 to 25, 5 feet 9 weighing 150 pounds. He wore a blue, cloth cap, blue shirt and denim trousers.

The pair fled without four other store employes being aware that a robbery had occurred.

Couple robbed

UPLAND police this morning are searching for two youths armed with nickle plated pistols who forced their way into an elderly couple's home at 430 Central Ave., held them at gunpoint for a moment and fled, taking nothing.

Mrs. Ila Foote called police about 12:30 p.m. to report the incident. Mrs. Foote said the two youths confronted them with guns and ordered her husband G. C. Foote, 94, to lie on the floor. The youths apparently became frightened and fled out the back door taking nothing of the Footes, police said.

The Footes could only describe the youths as being in their late teens. One about 6 feet tall with shoulder length hair and a blue shirt and the other of medium build and shorter than the other.

Store robbery

A man entered Lou's Liquor Store at 9666 Central Ave., in MONTCLAIR Tuesday night, pushed a gun in the clerk's stomach, and demanded he hand over the cash from the register and safe.

The gunman, according to police took a "large amount" of money from the safe and register pushed the clerk into a back room and fled on foot.

The clerk, unidentified by police, described the gunman as a white, 25 to 27, 5 feet 10, 175 pounds with reddish brown shoulder length hair and a bushy mustache. He held a small caliber snub-nosed revolver and wore a brown shirt and dark pants.

Brown again heads Joint Chiefs of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. George S. Brown has won approval of the Senate Armed Services Committee for a second term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff after reiterating his belief that American Jews assert undue influence on Congress.

The vote Tuesday was 13 to 2.

Opposing reconfirmation of the Air Force general are two senators who called for his resignation in November 1974 for saying that Jews own the banks and newspapers and exert too much influence on Congress on behalf of Israel.

Brown acknowledged under committee questioning Monday that "in all candor" he still believed the Jewish community in the United States constitutes a powerful lobby, but said he "never implied anything sinister, wrong or illegal."

Recalling that Brown was rebuked by President Ford for his 1974 remarks at Duke University, Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., said Brown's responses Monday "clearly indicate no substantive change in his attitudes."

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said Brown's remarks about the Jewish lobby "was not a big factor" in the committee's deliberation after questioning Brown for another two hours Tuesday.

"He has served two years," Stennis said. "We don't have to guess what type of officer he will be. We pretty well know."

Taft said Brown's remarks about the Jewish lobby "jeopardizes his ability to participate in national decisions relating to the Middle East."

Offshore oil drilling starts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first exploration for oil and natural gas in federal offshore areas leased last December was to begin today in a site six miles off Los Angeles Harbor, a Shell Oil Co. spokesman says.

Federal officials said the company moved a 344-foot floating drilling rig, the Ocean Prospector, operated by Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. of New Orleans, to the site late Tuesday night.

The rig will be submerged 70 feet when drilling begins at the site, which is 650 feet below the surface.

The Shell spokesman said about six wells would be drilled in the new lease area.

Christians gaining in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Christians appeared to be gaining today in the fierce battle for two Palestinian refugee camps on the eastern side of Beirut.

The right-wing Christians claimed Tuesday night that their militiamen had captured the administrative headquarters of the Jisr el-Basha camp after eight days of bitter fighting and were closing in on the neighboring Tal Zaatar camp.

The Palestinians admitted that the Christians had taken "a small part" of Jisr el-Basha. They said they had launched an attack on Ein Rummanneh, a densely populated Christian area two miles north of Tal Zaatar, and would "storm the whole of it unless rightist attacks on Jisr el-Basha and Tal Zaatar stop."

Tall ships honored

Newport society throws a bash

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — In the imitation palace where "The Great Gatsby" was filmed, Newport society threw a black tie bash to honor the tall sailing ships in its harbor. It was one splashy anachronism saluting another.

And with 1,200 attending — political figures and sailing officers as well as bluebloods — it ranked as one of the biggest parties here in years.

Barclay Warburton III, principal organizer of the tall ships events here, showed up in formal dress, his lapels bearing the crest of the Philadelphia Corinthian Yacht Club.

Capt. Hans von Stackelberg, master of the West German bark Gorch Fock, did an energetic Charleston beneath the ballroom's cyrstal chandeliers.

Crown Prince Harald of Norway and his Princess Sonja were there, as was the British ambassador, Sir Peter Ramsbotham, and Lady Ramsbotham, John Nicholas Brown of the family that founded Brown University, and Mrs. Brown. But Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis, who was on the organizing committee, was in England for the funeral of her sister's former husband, Stanislas Radziwill.

Men from the 230-year-old Artillary Company of Newport, resplendent in plumed cocked hats and 18th Century uniforms, served as ushers.

The setting Tuesday night was Rosecliffe, an ornate 75-year-old, 40-room, terra cotta mansion, modeled after the Petit Trianon, one of the buildings at Versailles. It is said to be the place where Cole Porter was inspired to write "Night and Day."

It is also one of 20 such ornate mansions which served as the heart of the summer colony here in the days when the superwealthy could keep up with each other. Today, however, rising taxes and inflation have put virtually all of the houses into the hands of institutions. Rosecliffe and five others are owned by the Newport Preservation Society and most of the time are opened to tourists.

The ball, with tickets priced at $80 each, was to benefit the tall ships organization, which this week has turned Newport into a spectacle of tall masts and spars, sailors and tourists, as a fleet of classic sailing ships prepares to sail for New York Thursday and a Bicentennial parade of sail there July 4.

Throughout the city, there were parties of every degree Tuesday, from formal receptions on the decks of square riggers to the more simple celebration of an Argentine sailor walking down the waterfront with a girl on one arm and a bottle in his free hand, joyfully intoning, "U.S.A., U.S.A."

At Rosecliffe, it was different. Great sprigs of flowers adorned the veranda. Pink striped tents surrounded the fountain, guarded by statutes of cherubs, where a famous Gatsby party scene was filmed. The fountain was circled with the flags of the nations taking part in the tall ships event.

At one point, Capt. von Stackelberg pronounced the bash, "a typical warm party — and wealthy."

Owners get license bite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county Board of Supervisors is putting the bite on dog owners again.

On Tuesday, the board voted to raise license fees for unaltered dogs from $7 to $10.

The fee for spayed or neutered dogs will, however, remain $3.50.

Supervisor chairman Baxter Ward said the increase was necessary because of the current fiscal crunch.

Six awards won on Youth Safety Run

Valley competitors won six awards in the recent Youth Safety Run to Yosemite National Park, the sponsoring Police Advisory Council for Car Clubs has announced.

The winners, including one all-girl crew from Ontario, accounted for three observer awards and three class titles — a pair in the compact division and one in the intermediate.

Approximately 150 young men and women competed in the three-day, 800-mile round trip. There were 30 valley residents among them.

The purpose of this year's 23rd annual edition was to instill safe driving habits in young people, to promote a better relationship between them and law enforcement officers and to determine the economy of today's new cars, the sponsoring PAC-CC said.

Those who won observer awards were Timothy Romero, 17, of the Pomona Police Department Explorer Scout program, and Craig Walters and Stephen Spurlock both La Verne Explorer Scouts.

The all-girl crew won the six-cylinder compact D class and consisted of driver Lorie Cole, 16, and co-driver Sherry Sullivan, 16. They drove a Starfire provided by Graydon Murphy Oldsmobile of Ontario which recorded 22.872 miles per gallon.

Another Ontario crew, driving a Cutlass also supplied by Graydon Murphy Oldsmobile of Ontario, won the intermediate G class for eight-cylinder cars with 18.187 miles per gallon. Jim Deaton, 17, was the driver and David Lee, 17, the co-driver. Both crews of the Ontario entries were members of the Ontario Police Department Explorer Scout program.

The third class won by valley residents was the compact Class F for eight-cylinder cars. The winning car was a Nova supplied by Chadbourne Chevrolet of Upland which got 19.994 miles per gallon. The driver was Anthony Byrnes and the co-driver was Dennis Hanon, both Upland Explorer Scouts.

The overall winner was a Chevrolet Chevelle driven by Reno, Nev., Explorer Scouts Ken Rederford and Mark Osloond. The vehicle recorded 40.658 miles per gallon per ton in a formula based on the car's weight.

DR. THOMAS MOORE of Upland recently completed a 150-hour block of post-graduate courses required for maintaining membership in the American Osteopathic Association.

The association, representing some 15,000 physicians nation-wide, requires its members to stay abreast of medical developments by acquiring 150 hours of continuing medical education over a three-year period.

The 1961 class of CLAREMONT HIGH SCHOOL will hold a 15-year reunion on July 24 at Griswold's Innin Claremont.

Betty Howard of DIAMOND BAR is 1976-77 president of the Hope Country Chapter for the City of Hope succeeding Phil Schaarsmith.

The free, nonsectarian City of Hope in Duarte combats catastrophic diseases. Since no patient pays, support is derived through activities sponsored by auxiliary chapters.

Truckers who enjoy talking with young people and are enthusiastic about their careers are needed to serve as EXPLORER POST advisers, according to Gordon Brown, Exploring executive with Old Baldy Council, Claremont.

They should be adults who know about trucks and trucking, preferrably drivers, Brown said. They should expect to help organize a post and assist students in running its programs.

Anyone interested in serving as an adviser may contact Brown at 626-3551.

The AZUSA HIGH SCHOOL CLASS of 1966 will hold its 10-year reunion Aug. 28 at Griswold's in Claremont.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Karen Bullock Agronovitz at 213 331-2571, Sue Graham Rogers at 213 332-6497 or Pat Peterson Hawley at 213 334-2683.

The CALIFORNIA CHRISTMAS TREE GROWERS will hold a tree farm equipment fair in San Dimas Sept. 24-25 in conjunction with their convention in Anaheim.

Robert Sturrock of San Dimas is a member of the association's board of directors.

THE UPLAND RECREATION DEPARTMENT has discount coupons to Sea World available to the public.

The coupon, which is good for the entire family, is valid July 1 to 31. It offers savings of more than 25 per cent.

Coupons are available at the department office, 404 N. Second Ave., Upland.

DR. DAVID A. YOUNG has returned to Pomona and opened a new dental office.

The dentist's new office is at 1524 N. Orange Grove Ave. His previous address was 586 N. Main St. He moved his practice from the valley four years ago.

The first convention of the DESTROYER-ESCORT SAILORS ASSOCIATION, formed in 1975, will be held Aug. 26-28 in Orlando, Fla.

Purpose of the association is to preserve the remembrance of the ships and their crews, said chairman Frank R. Crawford of El Cajon.

More than 400 destroyer-escorts were built during World War II. They also were used in Korean and Vietnam wars. Their primary mission was anti-submarine warfare.

Former officers and crewmen interested in joining the association may contact Crawford by writing him at P.O. Box 1280, El Cajon 92022.

An 850-mile PACIFIC COAST BICENTENNIAL BICYCLE TRIP will be made in August by 22 students from the Don Bosco Technical Institute in Rosemead.

Teacher Jerry Wertz will be in charge.

The students will leave Los Angeles July 31 for Brookings, Ore., and begin peddling south on U.S. Highway 101 Aug. 2.

Stops are scheduled at Russian Gulch, Manchester State Beach, Sunset State Beach, Big Sur, San Simeon and Morrow Bay.

The students expect to return home Aug. 22.

THE CLASS OF 1966 from Pomona's Garey High School is planning a 10-year reunion Sept. 11 at Henri's Restaurant in Montclair.

Deadline for reservations is July 10. Price is $10 per person. Further information may be obtained by calling Alice Rodriguez Gomez at 626-3841, Connie Karns Martinez, 629-4672 or Terry Ortiz Ayala, 623-3994.

Minerals

Arkansas, the leading state in the country in the production of bauxite, bromine and vanadium, had a mineral output in 1975 valued at $414.4 million, a record high, according to the Bureau of Mines.

Candidates' campaign costs aired

Forty-four candidates for City Council offices throughout the valley spent more than $40,000 on their campaigns last spring, figures compiled today indicated.

Candidates in seven cities spent an average of $909 in their bids for election. Of the 44 aspirants to offices, a total of 16 succeeded.

Three candidates in Claremont had no opposition, and spent less than $100 each.

All candidates for public offices must file statements of income and expenditures, according to provisions of the 1974 state Political Reform Act.

A compilation of those records show that the largest amount of money, $7,135, was spent in Chino, where nine aspirants sought two positions.

Walnut with its six candidates vying for three posts, spend the least, $1,398.

Under the law candidates who spend less than $200 do not have to give details and there were a total of nine candidates — three in La Verne, two in Chino and four in Walnut — using such short forms.

The records also showed that those who spent the most were not always the successful candidates. In 11 cases the biggest spenders failed at the polls.

In fact, Clyde E. Bartman who at $3,096 spent more money than any other candidate in the valley, failed to gain a seat on the San Dimas City Council.

In a bitter contest there, voters also unseated incumbents Keith Brogan, who spent $400, and Ray Miracle, who spent $323, and elected Terry Dipple who spent $1,748, and Phil Wax, who listed his expenses at $1,118.

In Upland, Councilman George Gibson, the second largest spender at $2,413, apparently managed his money well in unseating Mayor Abner Haldeman, who declared his expenditures at $1,847.

But Isabelle Contreras who spent $907, the most in the race for the council seat vacated by Gibson, did not fare that well. She lost her bid to William Bottin who spent $745.

Bottin also beat out Jerry L. Morris whose expenses ran $338, and Howard McGarry whose costs amounted to $243.

In Chino, Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilman Pete Garcia both spent more money than their opponents in retaining their positions.

McLeod reported spending $1,987 in turning back Robert Bertschinger who spent $732, Nick Medina, whose expenditures came to $322, and Henry Van Dyke, who reported $480 in expenses.

Garcia spent $1,904 in beating Russell Folds, $206, Louis Monsiavais, $370, and Richard Marlo and Kenneth Main each of whom reported spending less than $200.

In Ontario, one of the lowest amounts was spent by the top vote getter. But the biggest spender also made it to the City Council.

The most popular candidate, Homer Briggs, a retired school superinten-

BIDENTENNIAL MONUMENTS — Upland city workers raise one of four flagpoles being placed with a fountain and time capsule in the City Hall plaza as a Bicentennial project. Larry Dilley, kneeling, and Councilman John McCarthy, right, are members of the Bicentennial Committee planning dedication ceremonies Saturday at 4 p.m.

Four flags will be raised on newly installed 30-foot poles in the courtyard of Upland's City Hall during Saturday afternoon dedication ceremonies observing the nation's Bicentennial.

Representatives from Upland's sister cities in Mexico and Australia will join with state and federal officials in 4 p.m. ceremonies which include the dedication of a new fountain and the sealing of a time capsule.

The rites are being coordinated by the Upland Bicentennial Committee and are open to the public, according to Councilman John McCarthy and Larry Dilley, committee members.

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., will present a U.S. flag to city officials and State Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., will present the California flag.

Assemblyman William McVittie, R-62nd Dist., will place a resolution in the time capsule.

Sen. John Tunney has been invited to present the Bicentennial flag although his appearance has not yet been confirmed.

Representing Upland's sister city, Caborca, Mexico, will be Professor and Mrs. Herberto Hinojosa, who will give their nation's flag to city officials.

The Australian flag will be presented by Miss Enid Borchmann, representing the City Council of Mildura, Australia.

Refreshments will be served.

dent, spent $300 on his campaign. In contrast, Beecher Medlin said he spent $1,969 to get elected to the council. The third successful candidate, incumbent Faye M. Dastrup, listed $529.

Other candidates listed the following expenses: Joe Espinoza, $925; L. Harlan Lee, $1,184; Allen Kinnaman, $539; Gustavo Ramos, $699; Anthony Rizzo, $293, and Marie Sharp, $203.

Comparatively quiet campaigns in La Verne, Walnut and Montclair were reflected in the low expenses incurred by candidates there.

In Montclair, challenger Javier Lopez failed to unseat two incumbents even though his expenditure of $776 was higher than theirs. Councilman Paul Jones spent $750 and Councilman Tom McClure $256 to win re-election.

In La Verne, there was a somewhat more spirited contest but the results turned out the same. With no incumbents running for a council seats, Robert Neher, who spent $425, and Melvin Belcher whose costs came to $417, polled more votes than James Hayslip who spent $589. A fourth candidate, Robert Garcia, said he spent less than $200.

For the mayoral race, in which Mayor Mike M. Morales was opposed by write-in candidate Craig Walters, both candidates said they spent less than $200.

And in Walnut, Paul Williams, a newly elected councilman reported that most of the $529 he spent on the election came out of his own pocket. Charles Richardson, an unsuccessful contender, said he spent $473 of his own money in search of a post.

Four other candidates, including two winners, William Cotten and Joe Hahn, as well as challengers Paul Sackin and Joe Dyer, declared expenditures amounting to less than $200 in Walnut.

ROBERT ZUNDE

D.B. boy gains high scout honor

Robert Zunde, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Zunde of Diamond Bar, has attained scouting's highest rank, that of Eagle Scout.

It was conferred upon him recently during Court of Honor ceremonies held at the St. Denis Catholic Church in Diamond Bar by Boy Scout Troop 734.

Zunde is a senior at Ganesha High School in Pomona. He is studying architectural drafting and recently represented his school in drafting competition for VICA at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut.

Zunde began his scouting career as a Cub Scout in Illinois. He earned the Webelos Arrow of Light award and advanced into Boy Scouts. After moving to California he joined Troop 734. He has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, assistant senior patrol leader and scribe.

In 1973 he earned the Buckskin award.

Zunde worked with the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association circulating petitions to obtain bus transportation as his Eagle project.

Designed to promote downtown area

Businessmen want tax dropped

Downtown Pomona businessmen petitioned the Pomona City Council Monday night to eliminate a 13-year-old special business tax designed to promote the downtown sector.

The tax, which generates about $30,000 per year, is used to partially maintain the downtown parking lots and promote the area — generally under the direction of the Central Business District.

L. A. Shelton, a local attorney representing many of the downtown businessmen, told the council that the tax is no longer fair since fewer and fewer merchants are left to pay the needed assessment.

"The people are asking that the tax be withdrawn," said Shelton.

He added that the downtown merchants would be willing to leave the tax on the books if it could be suspended until such time it is again needed.

The problem that will confront the council in considering elimination of the tax will be finding alternative revenues for maintaining the parking lots in the downtown area.

Jack Booth, chairman of one of the Vehicle Parking Districts downtown, told the council he would not support the repeal of the tax until some guarantee is given the parking lots would be maintained.

"The parking lots are one of the best assets we have," said Booth.

On the advice of City Attorney Patrick Sampson, the council set a public hearing for July 26 to officially consider the request to repeal the tax.

Dance, costume contest planned in Diamond Bar

Diamond Bar Sertoma Club and Bicentennial Committee will sponsor a dance Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Costumes will be optional, said dance committee chairman Bob Wallor, but a contest, with judging in three categories, is planned for intermission to encourage costuming.

The dance will be built around a Bicentennial theme, with costume judging in California Heritage, American Revolution and Historical Personages categoriesallor said.

Music will be provided by "Atlantis," a group from the Claremont area.

Tickets are $3.50 each and are on sale at businesses in Diamond Bar, with club and committee members and may be purchased at the door.

Proceeds will benefit community youth activities, Wallor said, and underwrite cost of a Diamond Bar history to be published by the Bicentennial Committee.

Wallor is president of the Diamond Bar Sertoma Club. Serving with him on the dance committee are John McDonough and Fred Litle. Vicki Nelsen is in charge of planning and decorations.

House bill lifts lid on highway spending; veto threatened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defying threats of a presidential veto, the House has passed a $5.3-billion transportation appropriations bill that would lift the lid on spending from the highway trust fund.

The final vote was 376 to 21 on Monday. The amendment to lift the spending lid was approved 251 to 146.

The House defeated three other amendments aimed at preventing the British-French supersonic jet Concorde from landing at U.S. airports.

The removal of the ceiling on the highway trust fund might make possible the spending of $1 billion to $5 billion more from the fund than congressional planners originally contemplated, Budget Committee Chairman Brock Adams said.

But Adams, a Washington Democrat, said he expects efforts in the Senate to restore the ceiling.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, warned Congress in advance that he and Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. would recommend a veto if the bill reaches President Ford's desk without the ceiling.

The highway trust fund receives the revenues raised by the federal 4-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline sales. States receive allotments automatically if they meet federal matching fund requirements for road projects. These allotments are separate from the regular transportation appropriations.

The Appropriations Committee, with the backing of the Budget Committee, wrote into the bill ceilings on disbursements from the trust fund. An amendment by Rep. James J. Howard Jr., D-N.J., deleted them.

Adams said that without the limitations, it would be impossible to determine exactly how much will be spent from the trust funds in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Bicentennial celebration

Chino queen contest a highlight

Dedication of Chino's long-awaited Civic Center, a queen contest and a huge fireworks show will highlight the city's Bicentennial Celebration Saturday.

A memorial pancake breakfast for the families of two slain Chino church leaders, Ignacio Padilla and Manuela Cortez, will be the first of the day-long series of events. Breakfast is scheduled for first servings at 7 a.m. in the Community Building.

Local entertainment, including a new Mexican cowboy group called "Asociacion De Charros Aguas Calientes," will get underway at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center site, west of Central Avenue between D street and Chino Avenue.

The dedication of the 11-acre site will begin at 10 a.m. Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., State Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., Assemblyman William McVittie, D-65th Dist., Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino and Chino Mayor Bob McLeod are expected to participate.

The two-story county building housing the Municipal Court will be opened after the dedication. The new city hall and police station also will be dedicated.

Others expected to join in the dedication are Chino City Council members, San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, and the city-county Civic Center Authority.

Five finalists will vie for the title of Miss Chino starting at 11 a.m.

The finalists, chosen Monday from 11 original contestants, are Marie Berterretche, 20, a bank clerk; Lori Collins, 17, a Chino High student; Teresa Escobar, 19, a Chaffey College student; Lynette Lubak, 19, also a Chaffey student; and Laura Ormonde, 19, an Ontario High School June graduate.

The Miss Chino contest is being sponsored by the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Bicentennial festivities will shift to the Chino High School on Saturday afternoon, with the school grounds being available for picnics from 2 to 6 p.m.

The evening program starting at 7 p.m. will featurea large fireworks show at Chino High's football stadium. A performance by the 50-voice Pomona Valley Carousel Group will precede the fireworks display.

Prepaid tickets for the show will be $1 for children 12 and under and $1.50 for adults. Tickets at the gate will cost 50 cents more.

A traditional Independence Day parade around the football stadium will kick off the evening's events. Miss Chino will ride in the parade, sponsored by the chamber. It will also feature ROTC units from the high school, drill teams, Boy Scouts and other local organizations.

Claremont okays 5% pay hike for employes

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night approved five per cent salary increases for most of the city's 114 employes, with police receiving four per cent pay hikes, effective July 1.

The pay increases will total about $96,000 and are the result of negotiations between city representatives and employe groups.

The council also approved a tentative budget of $4,610,000 which City Manager Norman King said could be implemented without a tax increase.

"Tonight the council approved a balanced budget for 1976-77," King said, "with the tax rate staying at $2.54 (per $100 assessed valuation)."

In May the council was given a proposed budget which was $85,000 out of balance.

Increased assessed valuation will help bring it into balance, King said. He noted that the city's estimated projected balance for 1976-77 is only $9,550.

As to salary increases, Local 122 of Association of Federal, State, County and Municipal Employes settled for an across-the-board increase of five per cent for 44 employes who work in the Public Works, Parks and Sanitation divisions.

The city also agreed to a change in the grievance procedure to require that an immediate supervisor receiving an informal grievance shall respond within five days.

The Claremont Police Officers Association agreed to the following package:

—An across-the-board salary increase of four per cent for sworn police personnel and two per cent for communications officers.

—The pay range for the new police agent position (an intermediate level class with two years of experience as a police officer) will start at $1,171 per month with $1,428 tops. Agents working in the detective division will receive overtime if authorized.

—An additional $5.36 and $6.29 per month for single and family health insurance, respectively.

—Employes placed on call during regularly scheduled time off will be eligible for $8 per day if not called to report to court.

—An additional $5 per month will be paid in uniform allowance to agents working in the investigation section.

—A job-related physical fitness program that will be voluntary and covered by workers compensation will be developed by the city.

—The tuition reimbursement plan now in effect will not be changed during the next year.

Supervisory, confidential and other employes were given across-the-board five per cent salary hikes, effective July 1.

Effective Oct. 1 building custodian leadman, maintenance foreman, sanitation foreman, park leadman, maintenance craftsman leadman, and senior recreation leader will get an additional one per cent hike.

Management employes were granted five per cent increases, and increase in city-paid health insurance, and a $15 per month fringe benefit compensation, which an individual may apply either to a portion of city-paid health insurance or to deferred compensation.

Besides the basic raise, the City Council approved top-of-the-range increases of one per cent, effective Oct. 1 to the following positions: deputy city manager, director of public works, director of parks and recreation, director of community development and police chief. The top salary range of the human resources coordinator was increased two per cent.

The maximum salary for the assistant to the city manager was changed to $1,595 a month, which includes his present maximum plus the five per cent hike plus $50 a month. The job also now includes being supervisor over the civil defense coordinator.

The city manager's salary was hiked nine per cent from $27,775 to $30,500; the city treasurer from $2,772 to $2,920; and the city attorney from $10,000 to $11,000.

In addition to the $96,000 in salary hikes, the city must pay additional costs for retirement and workers compensation.

Such additional costs will total nearly $60,000.

In other actions the council approved an agreement to pay the Claremont Chamber and Convention Bureau $38,500 over the next fiscal year.

Drought hiking cost of water

California's two-year drought is forcing an increase in basic water costs in the San Gabriel Basin.

Water agencies in the Upper San Gabriel Valley Water Association, which includes the cities of La Verne and San Dimas, will have to begin purchasing considerably more imported water soon, according to Walker Hannon, president of the association.

The association represents some 70 members, including municipal water companies, mutual water companies, public utilities and other producers in the area which also takes in such cities as Alhambra, Azusa, Duarte, El Monte, Glendora, La Puente, South Pasadena, West Covina, Temple City and Whittier.

Increased expenses for the Upper San Gabriel Valley Water Association involve imported water and pumping costs.

"It is impossible to forecast at this time what the increase will mean to the average consumer in the San Gabriel Valley," Hannon said. "Communities in the area are serviced by many different agencies. Each agency calculates its water charges by different formulas. In some localities the increase may not be passed on to the consumer right away. In others, there may be a small percentage increase."

Most municipal water companies will have to have their rate increases approved by their local city councils, as would be the case in La Verne and San Dimas. Whether other cities in the valley will face such rate hikes isn't certain.

James Lundie, assistant manager of the City of Pomona's Water Department, reported that Pomona uses very little imported water at the present time. During the last year only one to two per cent of the water supply was imported. The majority of the local supply comes from local ground water in the Chino,Claremont Heights, Pomona and Spadra basins.

Lundie said the basins are presently in an overdraft status, but studies and adjudication have not yet been settled to determine solution to the problem. If the settlement required additional importing of water from outside sources, it could mean an increase to consumers here.

The adjudication is in the latest stages of negotiation, said Lundie, and hopefully will be settled within the near future.

Pomona post office offers special July 4 collectors' postmark

The Pomona main post office, 580 W. Monterey Ave., will offer a special service Sunday for those collectors who wish to obtain a July 4, 1976, postmark.

According to Postmaster Warren Lynch, the post office will be open from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Lynch said that commemorative stamps as well as stamped envelopes will be available.

No other services will be available except the sale of stamps and the hand cancellation.

A survey of other area post offices indicated that they will not be offering such a service July 4.

Board pays tribute to late school chief

The Ontario-Montclair school board paid tribute to Allan G. Smith, superintendent of the Chaffey Union High School District, who died of a heart attack Sunday.

"Mr. Smith was a man among men, loved by all in the community," said board President Richard Pearson. "He did a tremendous job for the community and touched everyone's life. He was tremendously influential." Board members observed a moment of silence in Mr. Smith's memory.

The principal action at the meeting was the second reading and adoption of revisions of 29 district policies covering such issues as employes holding elective office, age limits of certificated personnel, assignments and transfers, sabbatical, health and accidental leaves, substitute teaching and other items. None of the revisions offered major changes in district policy.

Supt. Jack Jones said, "We made these changes to sharpen the policies, to remove redundancies and to clarify them for the advent of collective bargaining."

The trustees also approved on second reading the deletion of 10 other policies touching on vacations, holidays, personal leave and other matters.

The board voted to recognize the California School Employes Association and its chapter 108 as the exclusive representative of the classified employes in relationships with the district, and named the Ontario-Montclair Teachers Association to similar status.

The board awarded a contract of $50,000 to M. R. Bracey Construction Co. of Ontario to seal the windows of Euclid School, Ontario and install air-conditioning and increased lighting. The move was made because the wooden-sash windows of the old school are deteriorating and the school lies in the traffic pattern of Ontario International Airport which makes soundproofing imperative.

The work will be done first on the south side of the school and continued in other areas as building fund budget permits.

Faces Chino city, schools

Heavy influx a problem

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Can the Chino Unified School District survive the influx of more housing tracts in the city without facing an overloading of students?

Increasing concern was voiced over that question at a joint meeting of the Chino City Council and Planning Commission Tuesday night.

One planning commissioner, Emil Torkar, claimed that he has received no information that there are problems with overloaded classrooms. "There has not been one single idea advanced that there is any problem in the schools," he said.

The vision of commissioners continually approving new subdivisions in the city with no thought to impact on the schools was indicated by Torkar.

"Schools apparently have reached capacity, and yet we approve tentative tract maps that are before us," Torkar declared. "They (city officials (have been telling us the schools could take care of it."

City and school district information on the schools' situation contradict each other, he noted. "I'm completely confused. The city and school district apparently have different statistics."

Torkar's comments followed a report by Schools Supt. Royce Lapp indicating the district may be facing a classroom shortage in the future.

Lapp said that generally the district has been "getting by" on enrollments, but in the past six to eight weeks "we've been having trouble."

He warned that in future unspecified periods, the district may have to put students in multipurpose rooms or go on double sessions.

If new elementary schools are completed, this would alleviate the problem, he said. There are some being planned, but they may not be built in time to counteract the growing influx of pupils from housing tracts.

Community Development Director Gale Carr said "We have not received any information from the schools saying there is a shortage of classrooms."

Torkar said the city should take some action to insure there would be no worsening impact on the schools, from the new tracts.

A tax on developers to provide money for schools was also discussed at the meeting, but no decision was reached by the two panels.

Three methods were advanced by Carr to pick up money from developers. One would provide $30,000 to the schools, another $100,000 and a third $200,000.

Councilmen and planners indicated that they could not move on the fee unless cooperation was achieved with the county and city of Ontario. Much of the school district lies in the county and some in Ontario.

The staff was directed to continue discussions with the schools and county on the tax proposal first advanced about a year ago.

Finalists for queen of fair

Five Southland coeds today were named as candidates for the title of queen of the Los Angeles County Fair.

With the preliminary judging completed, one of the coeds will be chosen queen the latter part of August, but her name will not be announced until opening night of the Bicentennial edition of the fair Friday, Sept. 17.

She will be crowned by the reigning queen, Beth Redinius of Azusa Pacific College.

Selection from their respective colleges are the following:

— Teri Pepping, 21, a green-eyed, chestnut-haired beauty from Azusa Pacific College. The Whittier coed is majoring in education and student development.

— Pati Lynn Osborne of Covina, 19, a Cal Poly Pomona sophomore. An avid horseman, Pati's major is agriculture business management.

— Red-haired, 21-year-old Laurie Roberts of Azusa, a business-political science major at Citrus College planning a career in real estate or law.

— Mary Frances Douglas, 18, brunette from Pomona, and a student at La Verne College. She plans to become a pediatrician or to go into biological research.

— Blonde Patricia Hartley of Hacienda Heights, majoring in political science and law enforcement at Mt. San Antonio College.

During the summer, the contestants will be kept busy posing for pictures, giving interviews and serving as public relations representatives of the fair.

Band is city's finest asset

For many years one of Pomona's greatest cultural assets has been the Pomona Concert Band.

Organized in 1947 the band has maintained a high standard of excellence year after year, providing the community with a musical organization of which it can be most proud. Over the years the band has performed throughout the Southland, spreading goodwill not only for itself but for Pomona as well.

The band has always been blessed with topnotch instrumentalists, serious-minded musicians who take pride in making good music.

The man who has made the band what it is today is Stanton Selby, who started with the band 29 years ago as its first conductor and has been with it ever since. Selby is a superb bandmaster, a stickler for perfection, and authoritative in the selection of concert music.

When Pomona's Mr. Music Man raises his baton Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Ganesha Park Band Shell the band will be starting its 29th summer season of concerts under the stars.

We have seen the printed program for the 10-week series and it contains one of the finest collection of martial and light classical music ever arranged. We would expect no less from one of the finest bandmasters anywhere.

We salute the Pomona Concert Band and its conductor, and urge all residents of Pomona to avail themselves of a musical bonanza on Thursday evenings this summer.

Judge Carter

The passing of Federal Judge Oliver J. Carter removes from the scene one of California's truly great sons. It is, in a sense, unfortunate that his greatest fame was the result of a notorious trial involving a tragic happening in another great California family. For Carter will now be remembered by most as the judge who presided over the trial of Patty Hearst. A lifetime of achievement will be overshadowed by that one case.

It was, of course, fitting that Carter should be the judge for such a trial. For he brought to that difficult role 25 years of experience as a trial judge. But he brought far more than that. He brought unimpeachable integrity with an innate back country humor and wisdom, along with an overwhelming balance of fairness and self-deprecation.

Although born in San Francisco, he was reared in the backwoods of Shasta County in the town of Redding where his father, Jesse W. Carter, practiced law. He attended Stanford and graduated from Hastings College of Law to return to Redding and join his father's firm. Shortly thereafter his father was elected to the State Senate only to be named soon after to the State Supreme Court by Gov. Culbert L. Olson where he served until his death.

The appointment opened the door to a political career for Carter who, at 29, became the youngest state senator to serve up until that time. He was also one of the few legislators ever elected to directly succeed a father, family dynasties not being well received in this state's politics.

His election was to be a test of his mettle. Thrown into a forum where the average age was near 60, he was viewed as somewhat of an upstart, best seen and not heard. Another obstacle was that of being a Democrat in a house long dominated by Republicans. As such his views weren't likely to be welcomed regardless of his age.

But Carter, constrained though he was by age and party affiliation, was to develop fast, winning both the respect and friendship of his elders. For he had an affability that was hard to reject and when he did rise to speak his fairness, logic and sound expositions of the law earned him the attention of his peers. In the torrid battles which ensued in the late 1940's over the gasoline tax proposals to finance the freeway programs proposed by Sen. Randolph Collier, it was Carter who was chosen by the Senate as the mediator between opposing forces. While Collier gets the credit for launching California's modern highway system, it was Carter's equaniminity which made it possible, a fact duly recognized at the time by Gov. Earl Warren.

Because legislators were paid only $100 a month in those days, financial pressures forced Carter to retire from the Senate after two terms. He had planned to devote his full attention to his law practice but he was prevailed upon to take the chairmanship of the State Democratic Central Committee. It was the year of 1948 and President Truman was seeking election in his own right. Thomas Dewey had already been elected by the polls, the media and almost everyone else except the people. Carter had much to do with Truman carrying California and defeating Dewey.

As a result, Truman, who had intense loyalty for those who helped him, named Carter to the federal court.

Judge Carter served on the federal bench for 26 years and handled many important cases. But, like his contributions as a state senator, those decisions will be blotted from public memory by his last case. Fortunately, then, his conduct in that exemplified a lifetime of honor and ability.

Hurray for the helicopters

Dear Editor:

In response to J.E. Adams letter written to "THE PUBLIC FORUM" on June 23, 1976.

Mr. Adams or is it Mrs.? Why are you afraid of a helicopter flashing lights over your back yard? Do you have some thing to hide?

You stated that our city is not a slum and the families here are good and fine people. I agree, most of them are. But, I ask you, don't you ever read the newspapers about the crimes in our fair city? Apparently we have people living here who are not so fine and good. I've lived here over 30 years and can remember when I never locked my doors, "this use to be a lovely and safe town" and I emphasize on the word SAFE. Personally I would rather have a helicopter wake my children, instead of an intruder in my home. I feel very safe when I hear the helicopter flying over. I know the police are protecting our city.

You worry about it crashing into your home. What about the man flying that plane. He is risking his life for you and your family. You never said any thing in your letter about the chance they take. They have families and loved ones too.

You wrote that our "HELICOPTER ON PATROL" flying over our town declares to the world that we are a failure as free people. Let us not bury our heads in the sand or close our eyes trying to block out the crime around us. I tell you that being aware & taking preventive action is what its all about. Therefore I say "HURRAY" for the Helicopter and the Police for the fine job they do. It's too bad we don't and can't afford more of them.

Grateful for 'copters

Dear Editor:

I am glad someone lives where they feel safe and wished the helicopter did not invade their lives. Whenever I hear the 'copters I am very grateful for their protection. Day or night I am glad to hear them. They help track down criminals on their mischief bent. They perhaps have not had their house robbed and everything left in a mess after the owner was seen driving up.

Instead of complaining let's be thankful there is something being done to curtail the crime. Not long ago a friend was knocked down and her purse and everything in it was stolen. Later her car was found a total wreck. This happened in broad daylight in Pomona on a parking lot. I AM GLAD FOR THE 'COPTERS.

Finishing Don Bolles' story

WASHINGTON — Somebody wanted Don Bolles, investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, out of the way. He was blown up by a remote-control bomb, which had been attached by magnets to the bottom of his car.

Before he died 11 days later, Bolles gasped out the only clues to his murder. "Mafia . . . Emprise . . . They finally got me," he whispered. "John Adamson, find him."

The Phoenix police had no trouble finding John Harvey Adamson, a local dog track figure. He was booked last week for the murder. But the stocky, tough-talking hoodlum was merely the hit man. He had boasted, according to sworn testimony, that he would collect $10,000 for killing the reporter.

Who had put out the contract on Bolles? Was the Mafia behind the bombing? What was Bolles trying to say about Emprise? We sent one of our own investigative reporters, Larry Kraftowitz, to Phoenix to seek the answers.

It would be wrong, we decided, for the crusading Bolles to die in vain. Someone should finish the story he intended to write. Kraftowitz has now succeeded in retracing Bolles' moves up to the hour he stepped into his bomb-rigged car.

Bolles had written about the influx of hoodlums into the Phoenix area, about the growing influence of the crime syndicates. He had taken a special interest in Emprise Corp., a shadowy sports enterprise controlled by Buffalo, N.Y., operators.

Bolles had followed the twists and turns of Emprise operations in Arizona, where it dominated horse and dog racing. Emprise was convicted in federal courts of failure to disclose an interest in a Nevada casino. This led to some complex manipulations, with Emprise stock winding up in Ramcorp Metals, Inc. Both Ramcorp and Emprise later became subsidiaries of Sportsystems, which handles concessions of major sporting events.

But whatever the corporate front, the same interest maneuvered to keep control of the racetracks. Bolles wrote, for example, about their "cozy relationship" with prominent Arizona politicians.

His stories produced some sensational headlines but failed to bring any significant reforms. In frustration, he asked to be taken off the investigative beat about a year ago. He was reassigned to the more humdrum world of the state legislature.

But eight days before his death, Bolles received a confidential call from a Phoenix businessman named Fred Porter Jr. It was the same old story again. Porter had vainly sought dog racing permits from the Arizona Racing Commission, which seemed to be in the clutches of the old Emprise gang.

Bolles responded like an old prize fighter hearing the bell. He arranged to meet Porter for breakfast on May 28 at the Ramada Inn across from his newspaper offices. Porter described the runaround he was getting from racing officials.

Later the same day, Porter received a mysterious phone call from Walter Cheifetz, an attorney for the Emprise-affiliated Ramcorp Metals. The attorney accused Porter of giving the newspaper derogatory information and threatened to sue.

Alarmed, Porter called Bolles who swore he hadn't said a word about their breakfast meeting to anyone. He advised Porter to hurry home, pick up his files and bring the information to him.

There was one problem, said Bolles. He had given up investigative reporting and was now covering the legislature for his paper. He asked Porter, therefore, to testify at a legislative hearing. This would give the reporter an excuse to dig into the story.

Carter's funding is broad based

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — So many people have asked me of late "Who is backing Jimmy Carter — where's his money coming from?" that I went over to the Federal Election Commission to see what reports were on file.

Here, too, the anwers were vague. The Carter reports, like those of other leading presidential candidates, contained few donors listing their specific business connections. Many were listed only by name, address and size of donation. Most others were too vague to be of much use.

Nevertheless, an interesting pattern developed. To one reading through the lists of $100-and-up donors, the number of attorneys giving sizable amounts seemed extradordinarily large in comparison with other candidates. There were noticable numbers of publishers, operators or owners of newspapers and radio stations. Stock brokers, real estate developers. Contractors and builders.

There was an interesting sprinkling of college professors and some obviously well-heeled students on the big donor lists.

There seemed to be a scarcity of donors, who, for the record, classified themselves as businessmen or business executives. Or small independent oil operators, a listing which showed up frequently among Reagan Texas donors.

As might be expected, a considerable chunk of the early Carter money came from Gerogia, with emphasis on Atlanta.

A spot check indicated that various members of the law firm of Lipshutz, Macey, Zusman and Sikes, of Atlanta, and their families, gave upwards of $9,300 to the campaign. Robert J. Lipshutz was listed in the reports as the Carter campaign treasurer.

Jimmy Carter and his immediate family gave upwards of $32,000 in the early reports, the latest figures not being in, including a donation of $17.70 from small daughter Amy, $13,000 from wife Rosalynn and $18,200 from Carter himself. Later reports, when they came in, could raise these figures, of course.

On the $100-and-over lists available, which, as noted above, are not up-to-date, there was a singular paucity of well-known names. There were some, of course. Dean Rusk, former secretary of State, was there. And C. D. Dillon, former secretary of the Treasury and under secretary of State: Henry Luce, vice president of Time, Inc.; Cyrus Eaton, the controversial financier of Arcadia Farms; Burt Lancaster, the actor; Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, James Latham, president of the Transcontinental Oil; Joseph F. Cullman, 3rd, chairman of the Board and chief executive officer of Phillip Morris, Inc; Irving Shepard, president of Chromalloy American; James D. Maddox, of Rome Ga.; Ted Ashley, a motion picture executive with Warner Brothers; Robert Wise, producer of "The Sound of Music," "West Side Story" and "The Andromeda Strain"; publisher Bernard Geis. A University of Connecticut student gave $1,000, a union organizer $500.

A number of political funds were represented — the Olin (chemicals) Political Fund, the Southern Railway Good Government Fund, the Non Partisan League of Machinists and political funds sponsored by Pacific Lighting (utility), Chevron and Conoco (petroleum), the Committee of Quality Government, the Better Government Committee of New York City, the AFSCME.

A routine check of the Carter dollar sources thus reveals no sinister or even worrisome pattern of financial backing. On the surface, at least, it would appear that those giving to the campaign represent a fairly widespread and representative section of the voting population.

There's power in seniority

By EARL G. WATERS

At a time when the general concensus has it that Congress ranks low in public opinion, there is something encouraging in knowing that some Californians are reaching a pinnacle of power in Washington.

Under the seniority system which largely controls leadership selections, Californians have not had the power in Congress which might be expected by reason of its population. Part of this is because of the proclivity of its voters to yield to the chant of "it's time for a change".

This type of thinking has permitted the chairmanships of the major committees to stay in the hands of congressmen from the southern states who long ago learned how best to use the seniority system. They elect young men to Congress and keep them there, regardless of their performance, to ultimately gain positions of power.

But time has operated to overcome that at least for some California congressmen and the state now stands to gain greater influence in many Congressional decisions of vast importance in the immediate future.

For Congressman Harold T. "Bizz" Johnson, making his bid for a tenth term, is in line to become chairman of the House Interior Committee, which has jurisdiction over federal lands, parks, water projects and Indian programs, all of major importance to this state.

Although he got there earlier than Johnson, Congressman John E. Moss' rise on committees has been slower. But some deaths and retirements have now moved him to second places on both the Government Operations and the Interstate and Foreign Commerce committees. He may soon have to choose between the two for a chairmanship.

Congressman John J. McFall, who was elected in 1956, while not progressing so well on the Appropriations Committee has risen in the House leadership to the No. 3 spot and now stands to succeed Massachusetts Congressman Tip O'Neill as Majority Leader.

What is inspiring about all this is that it serves to restore a measure of confidence in the overall integrity of Congress.

For while one may differ at times in political philosophy with the three congressmen, they are all honest, sincere and dedicated men. You couldn't taint any one of them with a ten foot pole.

All three gained early experience in the California Legislature. Both McFall and Moss served in the Assembly while Johnson served in the Senate. McFall and Johnson also gained experience in local government as mayors of their hometowns.

Also nearing a chairmanship is another stalwart, Congressman B.F. Sisk who is moving up on the important House Rules Committees. If Johnson, Moss and Sisk gain chairmanships it will result in a tremendous shift of power from the South to the West. For, of the 15 major House committees, all but 3 of the chairmanships have been held by members from the South, mostly Texas.

It would make McFall's selection as majority leader just so much icing on the cake. Even if McFall should stumble the prospects are that the spot might still go to a Californian. For Congressman Phil Burton looms as his chief competitor. Burton, however, deals from a weaker position, having less seniority and being more closely identified with the "young Turks" who have been battling the seniority system. McFall, on the other hand, has backed the leadership and is respected as a "team player".

Not since the days of Clare Engle, Harry Shephard, George P. Miller, and Chet Holifield, has California's chances of gaining power in the Congress been so bright. Of course, if the voters listen to the campaign rhetoric of "it's time for a change" this November and defeat any of the four, that opportunity will be diminished.

Giant fuchsia for temperate area only

Would you please help me find a giant fuchsia plant?

I have called the nurseries around here but none of them have it.

I would appreciate it if I can buy it in a small pot because I'm flying up north with it.

It's a birthday present for my dear mother. — C.S., Ontario.

You should look for a giant fuchsia in temperate coastal areas.

You should look for a giant fuchsia in temperate coastal areas.

If your mother doesn't live in an area where the weather is temperate year around, pick another gift.

Don Woodburn of B & B Nursery and Garden Supply, Chino, says giant fuchsias are almost impossible to grow in this inland region and therefore are not sold here.

They freeze in the winter and burn up in the summer.

Small fuchsias can be grown here but they should be planted in protected locations.

Last February we sent a $20 check to the Complimentary Vacation Club in Tarzana for two vacation packages, one for my father and one for us.

We thought we were getting a package for a vacation in Las Vegas. We had obtained one before through a similar deal and had a real nice time.

When we received the package, it turned out to be a dinner club membership on the basis of a two for one price. That's a fine arrangement for people who do those things but for us it just wouldn't work out.

We sent the packages bacy by first class mail and asked for the refund of the $20 we had sent.

The letter which sold us on the deal stated: "30-day unconditional deposit back guarantee! If you are not satisfied upon inspection, simply mail the entire casino package back to us and we will return your money immediately!"

We sent for the refund March 2. On April 12 we sent a second letter asking about the refund and on May 11 we sent a third letter.

To date, we have not received one word from these people except for our canceled check showing the $20 check had been cashed. — Mr. and Mrs. C.T., Ontario.

We pointed out to the Complimentary Vacation Club that a promise had not been kept.

Julie Marquette, secretary to the club's president, replied by return mail with an apology and a $20 refund for you.

Ann Landers

Not senile, just disorganized

Dear Ann Landers: Attached to this letter is my personal check, made out to you for $4,000. Let me explain.

Several years ago I had a small business and I did something many small businessmen do — cheated on my income tax. I forgot all about it, until I became friendly with a Christian brother who akakened in me a sense of decency and integrity I never knew existed.

Lately God has been reminding me that I have a score to settle with the Internal Revenue Service. Although I don't know exactly how much I owe, I feel certain $4,000 would more than cover it.

I talked the problem over with my wife and she became upset when I told her I wanted to send my check directly to the IRS. She was afraid I'd be prosecuted, my reputation ruined, etc.

I then went to my certified public accountant. He advised me to send my check to Ann Landers, ask you to deposit it in your personal account and write your own check to the IRS for $4,000.

Enclosed is a separate check made out to you for your trouble. Thanks and God bless. Sign Me — Straightening Out The Books

Dear Mr. Straight: I admire you for wanting to right an old wrong, and I'd like to help, but I, too, must answer to the IRS and keep my skirts 100 per cent clean.

My CPA would have to know what $4,000 is doing in my account. Next, the IRS man would want to know about that "stray" $4,000 check from me to IRS. Your cover could be easily blown, my friend, since your name is on the check.

So I herewith return both checks (I don't accept gratuitites, but thank you very much) and suggest that you use a more anonymous transmittal agent, perhaps a Christian brother. See you in heaven!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm only 58, in very good physical condition and everyone tells me I look much younger than my years. I feel great but something has been bothering me.

Lately, my mind seems to be playing little tricks. I find myself forgetting things I've known for years — telephone numbers, addresses, names of close friends and even relatives. It's embarrassing. This afternoon I went into another room and forgot what I went in there for. Can it be that I am becoming senile?

I become terribly annoyed with myself when I misplace things. It seems I am always hunting for my glasses, my favorite pen, my desk scissors or the current book I happen to be reading. Any Advice? — Slipping A Little

Dear Slipping: Move over. You have plenty of company. I'm exactly your age, feel fine, am far from senile (I think) — and I forget plenty.

Being organized can eliminate many of the small annoyances. If you put things where they belong, you won't have to hunt for them. It takes a little longer, but it's well worth the extra few seconds. Try it. It works.

CONFIDENTIAL to Where Are They Going?: I don't know, but I am optimistic. Setting a good example is important. I don't believe the younger generation is going to hell just to be near their folks.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Joe Firman

If it is clear, re-phrase it

Having attended two colleges and two universities in my prime time, I felt reasonably prepared in the intricacies of educationese until a local school district recently asked the National Institute of Education this question:

"Are taxonomically structured and sequenced teaching units, keyed to specific teaching strategies, learning skills, levels of critical thinking and problem solving, more effective in the instructional process than the same units without taxonomic structure and sequence and not keyed to specific teaching strategies, learning skills, levels of critical thinking and problem solving?"

The first problem to be solved would be to translate the question into English.

Why are so many groups in our society today dedicated to jargonspeak, a method of mindless obfuscation and incoherence? And they are the groups that lead the country, that shape the tastes and influence the thinking of the nation — politicians (self-actualizing, counterproductive, viable solution); parameter, overview, on-going, slippage); educators (phenomenological psycholinguistics of multilingualism); MadAvenue (a facilitator of interpersonal discourse and a communicator who verbalizes the interface of media filtration).

Edwin Newman, veteran NBC correspondent and anchorman (anchorman?) says the keys are pomposity and mystification. In his new book, "Strictly Speaking: Will America Be the Death of English?" Newman charges that the social sciences are "the great focus of infection" in the matter of pretention and confusion of meaning.

"One of the keys is pomposity," he writes. "Another is the use of jargon to create the impression that what you're doing is somehow hard to understand and requires special training. And the smaller the idea, usually the more grandiose the language in which it is clothed."

The use of nonsensical language, Newman says, often leads to the advocacy of nonsensical ideas. Nobody merely talks to others anymore; they have "dialogues." You don't ask opinions; you seek "input." One doesn't ask if the new product will sell; he examines the "economic feasibility and financial effectiveness."

"English can be a tremendous amount of fun," Newman says. "And we're not having it for two reasons. One is that we're using this deplorable jargon. The second is that phrases become popular so quickly. People speak in slogans, trick phrases. People want to use whatever the latest slogan or phrase happens to be. They want to be up with the fashion, whatever it is."

In short, we must all examine, or take an overview of our taxonomically structured and sequenced communication to ascertain that it is viable and self-actualizing and not merely on-going interpersonal discourse that may prove phenomenologically counterproductive.

Dr. Lamb

Don't mix diabetes, booze

DEAR DR. LAMB — Should diabetics drink alcoholic beverages?

DEAR READER — I don't think so. Diabetes may cause liver damage anyway because the liver can't use glucose normally and tends to become a fatty liver. Also, alcohol can cause low blood sugar by literally using all the enzyme in the liver that would normally be used to convert proteins to glucose. This can make it difficult or impossible to regulate insulin dosage. Finally, for those diabetics who have a mild disease that can be controlled by weight control, alcohol makes it difficult to diet and eliminate or prevent obesity. I can't think of a single good thing alcohol does for a diabetic.

To give you more information on how alcohol affects the body I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer. DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please tell me what can be done for a person who falls asleep as soon as she sits down. This person is in her late 50s. It makes no difference how many people are sitting around visiting, in no time she is asleep. Is this called narcolepsy? Will it get worse as she gets older? Can anything be done for it and is it serious? She can work all day and appears well. One time she just passed out and fell. We are very worried about this. She has been this way for several years now.

One doctor prescribed pep pills but her eyes looked terrible so she quit taking them. I think it was Benzedrine.

DEAR READER — Yes, you are describing narcolepsy. There is, of course, a dividing line between normal drowsiness and constant severe sleepiness which is classified as narcolepsy.

The cause of narcolepsy is unknown but it does occur in both men and women and it often begins in adolescence although it can begin later in life. Once it starts, the individual will continue to have excessive drowsiness throughout life unless it is treated. In some individuals it is progressive. They may start out just having trouble with being drowsy during lecture periods and during social events or when they are presumably visiting with friends. The episodes may become more frequent and longer to the extent that some individuals sleep a good part of their life away.

These people often are able to avoid danger such as a car wreck because they can feel the sensation of drowsiness occurring and can pull to the side of the road if they are driving or stop any other activity they might be doing which would be hazardous.

There are no significant physical findings or other symptoms in individuals who have narcolepsy. The diagnosis is usually made on the basis of the story of the illness plus the absence of any other important medical findings.

It is not at all surprising that this lady was given pep pills. That's a standard treatment. Perhaps the two best forms of treatment are Dexedrine and Ritalin, both of which stimulate the brain.

For mild forms, some individuals do well by drinking lots of coffee during the day. The caffeine in coffee is a cerebral stimulant and has actions similar to Dexedrine.

Barbs

If he asks you for "car tickets" instead of bus fare, he's over 40.

Some women get their hair done every week — and we know one whose locks are just about finished.

When someone says he's getting a CB, does he mean a cheeseburger or a citizen's band radio?

I reason with others, you argue, he's a dictator.

Perfect technique in dummy play is something all experts strive to attain. Forty-five years ago no one had it. But Hal Sims came mighty close.

Today's hand shows Hal at work. Most players would simply go down one and complain about their misfortune in the diamond suit. Hal made the hand without any ceremony at all.

East's ace and king of clubs held the first two tricks. He led his last club.

Hal ruffed and promptly cashed all his trumps while discarding a diamond from dummy. West had to make two discards and was smart enough to chuck two hearts.

This didn't do him a bit of good. Hal simply cashed dummy's king and queen of diamonds and ace of hearts. Then he led dummy's last club. Poor West was on lead and had to lead a diamond up to Hal's ace-10.

Ask the Jacobys

A Georgia reader wants to know the correct response to a one-diamond opening bid with:

♠KQxx ♥x ♦10xx ♣Axxxx.

This is a tough one. You prefer to respond in your longest suit, but with only nine high-card points you don't want to go to the two level.

Hence, your correct response is one spade.

Hoodlums of San Francisco

Everybody knows the word "hood" comes from the word "hoodlum." But nobody knows where "hoodlum" comes from. Except that it was first used to describe thugs in San Francisco. One of the vile hoodlum pastimes there, according to historical footnotes, was the stoning of Chinese immigrants.

On the photo department door at the Jackson Daily News in Mississippi is the sign: "Please keep darkroom door closed. If it is left open, all the dark leaks out."

That actor of world renown Clint Eastwood reportedly never has smoked a cigarette or any portion thereof.

HAIR REMOVER

Q. "That chemical hair remover known as a depilatory supposedly can remove the fuzz on a woman's legs. Why can't a man use it instead of a razor for shaving?"

A. Too irritating. A daily dose on the face would make welts. The women don't need it that frequently. Besides, men's whiskers are so much tougher than leg hair that the stuff would have to be hyped up to an intolerable strength.

Question arises as to which of our presidents knew the least about music. Nominate U.S. Grant. Was his claim that he knew only two songs. One was "Yankee Doodle" and the other wasn't.

If those two artichokes are as fresh as they should be, they'll squeak when you rub them together.

SMOKERS AND DRINKS

A bartender of extensive experience contends his years of observation indicate that cigarette smokers tend to down their drinks quickly. Cigar smokers, not so quickly but methodically. Pipe smokers, much more slowly. And the non-smokers, he says, usually just sip, rarely finishing one drink before accepting another.

Some surveys show that 90 per cent of the people who go to movies would rather be made to cry than to laugh. And no film character is said to be more popular than the one unjustly caught up in a lot of trouble so as to arouse in the audience great sympathy.

Surveys repeatedly indicate that few women object to baldness in men. They cite with large approval such personalities as Joe Garagiola, Telly Savalas and Yul Brynner. Still, a remarkably high number of balding men remain unconvinced. Never before have the toupee makers, the hair weavers and the surgical transplanters done better business. Lord Chesterfield would have frowned on the whole thing, sure enough. He's the fellow who said, "Any affectation in manner or dress indicates a lack of understanding."

Awards will be presented to winners in each of the divisions.

On July 10, the Upland and Ontario recreation departments will conduct a hunter safety class. The class is cosponsored with the California Department of Fish and Game and the National Rifle Association.

The free course will be held at John Galvin Park on Fourth Street and Grove Avenue, Ontario. Registration will be from 7 to 8 a.m. and the course will run from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Persons 8 and over may enroll, but those under 12 must be accompanied by an adult. Firearms are not to be brought to the class.

U.S. banning dozen pesticides containing deadly kepone

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is banning a dozen Allied Chemical Co. pesticides containing kepone, the roachkiller suspected of poisoning production workers and polluting the James River in Virginia.

The Environmental Protection Agency said Monday that Allied Chemical already has stopped making the kepone pesticides and did not object to the agency's ban.

The action has no immediate effect on 37 other products containing kepone made by 25 other companies, the EPA said. But the agency ordered these companies on March 25 to prove that kepone does not cause cancer or other illnesses, or face a total ban on the chemical.

That action is still pending.

Last month, Allied Chemical and the now-defunct Life Science Products Plant in Hopewell, Va., which manufactured kepone for Allied, were indicted on federal charges of polluting the James River with kepone. The companies pleaded innocent.

Parts of the river are closed to commercial fishing because of kepone contamination.

Former Life Science Products workers have filed lawsuits totalling $150 million, alleging physical ailments from kepone poisoning.

The EPA also moved on Monday to halt the manufacture and sale of pesticides containing chlorobenzilate.

The chemical is used mainly to control mites on citrus fruits.

EPA gave manufacturers 45 days to show why chlorobenzilate pesticides should not be banned as a possible threat to human health.

Products containing this chemical are manufactured in the United States by Ciba-Geigy Corp. of Greensboro, N.C. It also is imported by several U.S. firms from foreign producers.

Headache for rear admiral

Armada of foreign warships poised for invasion of N.Y.

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP) — The last time Frank Guest took part in a naval invasion was 1943 in the South Pacific. Now he's leading one into New York.

Guest, a rear admiral, is the officer in charge of naval arrangements for a friendly invasion by 46 warships and scores of sailing vessels that will be sudding and steaming into New York Harbor on July 4. Five million people are expected to watch the armada from small boats, city skyscrapers, piers and bleachers erected by New York City and New Jersey towns across the Hudson River from Manhattan.

"Nothing can prepare you for a job like this; there's never been an event like this," Guest said at his headquarters at the Military Ocean Terminal.

These are Guest's orders: keep dozens of ships with foreign language crews from misunderstanding directives and crashing into each other; keep the ship's officers and crews happy during a three-day visit to New York City; cater to 3,000 dignitaries including President Ford; help the Coast Guard keep 10,000 spectator craft from interfering with the official ships; make sure the buffet lunch is hot. And make sure it doesn't rain.

"The chaplain has assured us it is not going to rain," Guest said with a smile. "If it rains, it goes anyway, whether there's anybody there to watch it or not."

The navy's headaches began last year when it decided to hold the International Naval Review in New York, on the day of Operation Sail, the largest gathering of wooden ships in one spot since the 19th century.

Now, in addition to a mammoth gathering of sailing ships on July 4, there will be the largest grouping of modern foreign warships in the history of the United States.

As commandant of the New York-New Jersey based 3rd Naval District, it is Guest's responsibility to host the party. The guests will be warships from Italy, Dominican Republic, South Korea, Egypt, Romania, Holland, Japan, Portugal and 17 other countries Guest described as "friendly and not always so friendly, but we're happy to have."

The Navy's first task was to settle the always-stick protocol problems, such as which ships take precedence in the parade and which ships get the best berths in the harbor.

"We didn't want to put anybody's nose out of joint," Guest said. "We chose alphabetic order, which is the next best thing to throwing darts."

To overcome possible language problems bilingual naval lieutenants will be assigned to each foreign ship to translate orders if necessary.

The warships will rendezvous 200 miles at sea on July 2, form three columns and steam toward the harbor, making two or three hopefully non-tricky course corrections on the way.

By July 3 they will be lined up in the Hudson River and upper New York Bay, ready to review the sailing ships that pass by on the 4th of July.

Guest estimated that with all the ships in the harbor, it will take 25 to 30 harbor pilots, working until dawn on the 5th to get all the ships, wooden and steel, into their assigned anchorages. The only interruption in the work will be a half-hour fireworks display that will light up the harbor like a pinball machine.

"It's impossible to describe how beautiful the whole thing will be," Guest said. "All those ships in one place will be magnificent.

'We're a maritime nation. Our whole existence depends upon the use of the sea and isn't it fitting that on the bicentennial we will honor that heritage.

"And it's fitting that these foreign nations are joining us, because seafaring is a brotherhood that transcends national boundaries."

One of Guest's job will be to help make up the 3,000-name list of people invited to see the day's events from the aircraft carrier Forrestal. It may be the best viewing spot in the harbor, and about 10,000 people who are "somebodies" or "friends of somebodies," are angling for spots on the ship.

"I know I'm not going to make everybody happy," Guest said. "Combat experience is going to come in handy; knowing when to duck."

Guest, 57, joined the Navy in 1943, after graduating from Georgetown University. Since combat duty in world War II, he has served as commander of repair ships, destroyers and has held posts in the Navy's recruiting and reserve affairs offices.

Despite his command experience, he has no qualms about enlisting as a crewman when he goes sailing with friends on weekends — when he isn't too busy.

Tax-exempt status of Teamsters Pension Fund revoked?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tax-exempt status of the massive Central States Teamsters Union Pension Fund has been revoked by the Internal Revenue Service, a Los Angeles paper reported Tuesday.

The $1.4 billion fund, that has been used for varied investments including an estimated $200 million in loans to hotel and gambling interests in Las Vegas, could be subject to millions of dollars in taxes if the reported IRS decision stands, the paper said in its Tuesday editions.

In Washington, IRS spokesmen refused to confirm or deny the reports, and Teamsters national headquarters in Washington had no immediate comment.

The paper said an unnamed IRS official in Washington told the paper that the tax-exempt status was revoked because of alleged mismanagement and questionable loans.

The paper said, however, that the action would not become final until all appeals by trustees of the fund are completed, and no official statement was issued because of the anticipated appeals.

The IRS action was not directly related to investigations into the fund by Congress or the Departments of Labor and Justice, the paper said.

Contributions to the pension fund from employers on behalf of their workers can be deductible from company taxes, and the earnings on the pension fund's investments can be taxexempt.

The IRS spokesmen, who said no comment can be made on a case until the appeal process is completed, said that as a matter of procedure a proposed revocation of any fund's preferred tax status would be based on an audit. The fund can appeal the IRS action in court.

Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons is the key member of the joint board of trustees of the fund, the paper said.

Albany beef

Sturgeon once were so plentiful in the Hudson River that steaks cut from the big fish were called "Albany beef."

State reveals numbers for Nov. propositions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California secretary of state's office has designated the Agricultural Labor Relations Initiative as Prop. 14 on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The office also announced this week that the Greyhound Dog Racing Initiative will be Prop. 13.

Prop. 14 was placed on the ballot through a petition campaign by the United Farm Workers of Cesar Chavez. It would repeal the Agricultural Labor Relations Act of 1975.

The secretary of state's office said Prop. 14 would also require new appointments to the farm labor board, access for union organizers to property of employers for certain periods, and a minimum of 50 per cent of employes to petition for decertification of a union.

In addition, the legislature would be required to provide appropriations necessary to carry out the act.

Prop. 13, the Greyhound Dog Racing Initiative, qualified for the ballot through a petition drive sponsored by George Hardie of Los Angeles, the office said.

It would establish a California Greyhound Racing Commission to license and regulate the conduct of greyhound races by qualified associations.

The office said parimutuel wagering would be permitted, with a specified percentage of the proceeds being deposited in the state treasury.

Prop. 13 and Prop. 14 were the only two of 15 ballot measures which qualified through initiatives. Thirteen others were placed on the ballot by the legislature.

Other numbers were assigned as follows:

—Prop. 1: Would provide for the sale of up to $500 million in state bonds for use by the California Housing Finance Agency to make loans for housing developments.

It was AB 1 by Assemblyman Peter Chacon, D-San Diego, of the first extraordinary session of 1975.

—Prop. 2: Would enact the Nejedly-Hart State, Urban and Coastal Park Bond Act of 1976, authorizing general obligation bonds of up to $375 million to acquire, develop and restore real property for state and local park, beach, recreational and historical resources preservation purposes.

It was SB 1321, whose principal author was Sen. John Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek.

—Prop. 3: A $25 million bond measure that would authorize the state Energy Commission to conduct loan programs and informational and educational programs respecting insulation and solar heating and cooling.

It was SB 1524 whose principal author was Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga.

—Prop. 4: Would expand the area of permissible control by the legislature over the University of California competitive bidding procedures for construction contracts, sale of real property, and purchasing of materials, goods, and services. It would also add race, religion and ethnic heritage as grounds on which a person's admission to any department of the university shall not be barred.

It was SCA 14 by Sen. John Stull, R-Escondido.

—Prop. 5: Would deal with the maximum permissible contract rate of interest by nonexempt lenders.

The same as Prop. 12 which the voters defeated in the June primary, Prop. 5 was placed on the ballot under SCA 40 by Sen. Bill Green, D-Los Angeles.

—Prop. 6: Would extend the period for consideration by the governor of bills passed by the legislature.

It was ACA 75 by Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, D-San Leandro.

—Prop. 7: Would rename the Commission of Judicial Qualifications to Commission on Judicial Performance, and give it new authority. It would also require membership to include two members of the State Bar.

It was ACA 96 by Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach.

—Prop. 8: Would authorize nonchartered counties to elect or appoint superintendents of schools. It would also authorize two or more counties to establish a joint county board of education.

It was ACA 77 by Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento.

—Prop. 9: Would provide that a vacancy in the office of superintendent of public instruction, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, attorney general or board of equalization member, be filled by the governor for the balance of the unexpired term, with confirmation by both the Senate and Assembly. If there were no action on confirmation within 90 days, the nominee would take office.

Korean War turncoat asks to return to U.S. briefly

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Veneris, an American who chose to stay with his Communist captors after the Korean War, has asked to return temporarily to the United States, State Department officials said Tuesday.

Veneris and Howard G. Adams are the last two remaining Americans of the 21 who defected to the North Koreans at the end of the war and ultimately made their way to Communist China. The other 19 have left China at various times over the past 25 years.

The State Department officials said Veneris is still an American citizen and will be issued a passport. They said he intends to visit his mother and three sisters, who reportedly live in California.

Veneris, a native of Vandergrift, Pa., intends to return to China after the visit, the State Department sources said.

No time has been set for Veneris' visit to the United States, nor is there any word on how long he intends to stay.

The sources indicated Veneris will not be charged with any crime when he arrives and that he will be allowed to move freely about the country as any American citizen is entitled to do.

They said the only document Veneris needs is a passport because he is a citizen.

The department officials said no other information was available on Veneris or his activities in China.

Cocaine importers keep customs agents hopping

MIAMI (AP) — In a Bogota, Colombia, hotel room, a Cincinnati woman dismantled her portable hairdryer and replaced its electric motor with three pounds of carefully packed cocaine.

Then she caught a plane for Miami.

The woman, arrested by U.S. Customs Service inspectors at busy Miami International Airport, was what authorities call a mule — the amateur or professional who carries drugs into this country via commercial transportation to help supply a $3 billion-a-year U.S. market for illegal drugs.

Miami is the nation's cocaine import capital, where the most seizures and arrests of mules are made. Of the 735 pounds of cocaine seized in the United States last year, 198 pounds or 27 per cent of it was taken at Miami's airport.

It's anybody's guess how much cocaine slips through undetected here and elsewhere.

Just last month, 170 pounds of cocaine were confiscated by Customs agents in Tampa who were watching a banana boat which had arrived from Colombia. Agents said the cache was worth $39 million, one of the largest seizures on record.

"Drug imports, mostly cocaine, are on the increase," said Howard Ford, director of Customs' airport operations in Miami. "We have no estimate on how much is getting by, but we could make more seizures if we had more personnel."

In the first five months of this year, Customs inspectors at Miami International confiscated 166 pounds of cocaine, a powerful stimulant which drug experts say is not physically addictive. Cocaine, made from the leaves of the coca bush, is often called the "Champagne of Drugs," because of its high market price and popularity among some rock musicians and jet-setters.

"Every conceivable way to smuggle drugs has been tried," said Bill Norsworthy, an airport supervisor for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, whose agents take over investigations after the initial arrest.

Mules have carried drugs inside fishing rods, aerosol cans, book covers, tennis racquets, false-bottomed suitcases, diving tanks and children's toys. They have carried liquified cocaine in seemingly unopened liquor bottles.

More dangerously, mules have tried to avoid detection by swallowing packets of cocaine or inserting them into body cavities.

In the last two months, four mules have died when their body acids destroyed the packets and released the drug into their system, Customs spokesman Jim Dingfelder said.

But the lure of great profit attracts many willing to take the risks.

Most of the cocaine smuggled into the United States comes from Colombia and Peru. Persons agreeing to serve as mules can earn $5,000 aside from an expenses-paid trip for several days to South America.

Those who hire the mules are playing for bigger stakes. A $10,000 investment for 97 per cent pure cocaine can be multiplied 32 times — returning $320,000 — after it has been transported and its purity reduced to about 12 per cent for street sales, a drug official said.

Cocaine users who sniff or "snort" are known as "vacuum cleaners." Others cook a small portion of the drug in a small spoon and inject it into their bloodstreams.

Customs inspectors and DEA agents say there is no stereotype for a mule. Drugs have been found on the young and old, affluent and poor, businessman and diplomat.

Officials say that arrested mules most often show little remorse or fear of prison sentences.

"Once they are caught, they accept it," said Customs inspector John Ryan. "And they seem to be well informed about what will happen to them. One man I caught wasn't a bit alarmed and said he was confident of his chances under the judicial system."

Detection is not an easy chore. At Miami International, 1½ million passengers pass through Customs checks each year — it takes an alert inspector to spot a mule and convince a superior to allow a detailed search.

Inspector Dale O'Connor noticed that a passenger carrying two air tanks used by divers was carrying no other diving equipment and didn't have a tan.

"He was very friendly and even helped me open the tanks. They were filled with drugs," O'Connor said.

Another inspector, Chuck Winwood, recalls a stranger case. "One of our men noticed that the padding on the wheelchair used by a deformed midget was thicker than other wheelchairs. When we inspected the chair's padding, it was filled with cocaine."

Inspectors and DEA agents listed these recent cases:

—Scott Wirkus, 17, of Racine, Wisc., died in an airport hotel shortly after he passed Customs without incident. He had swallowed 53 coke-filled prophylactics. Some of them burst.

—A coat worn by Carmen Rosa Benvenuto, 32, of Lima, Peru, appeared to sag. Plastic bags of cocaine were found sewn in the lining. On the same flight from Lima were five other mules. Roberto Gueudet, 57, and his 42-year-old wife, Doris, has cocaine in their luggage. So did Maria Jose Santos, 27, Rosa Mouchard, 55, and Ida Olascoaga, 51. They were all caught carrying a total of 47 pounds of illegal drugs.

HIDE AND SEEK — Bill Norsworthy, airport and seaport supervisor for U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, shows how cocaine was placed in airplane engine that was seized after arriving in Miami, Fla., for repairs. He said every conceivable way is tried.

Accelerating trend

Auto execs forecast record year for vans, light trucks

DETROIT (AP) — William and Sandra Susick, like most of their neighbors in suburban Sterling Heights, used to be a two-car family. But last year they traded in their 1971 station wagon for a van. Now they're hooked on trucks.

"The van is a 100 per cent better for traveling, it has more room than the car, it has a better ride, it's more comfortable and more versatile," says Susick, 38, a Chrysler Corp. employe. "It's definitely our No. 1 vehicle."

The Susicks' are not alone in that belief.

Americans in droves are shunning cars and turning to light trucks as their primary mode of transportation in an accelerating trend that has revolutionized the truck market and made it the fastest growing facet of the auto industry.

Auto executives forecast a record year for truck sales in 1976. They attribute the boom to the growth of a recreation-oriented public and the emergence of the light van or pickup as an all-purpose vehicle that offers everything a car has, and more.

A decade ago, the light truck market was dominated by ranchers, small-business men and construction workers who needed a low-priced, no-frills utility vehicle mostly for work-related activities.

Today light trucks — often as plush as any car — appeal to the full spectrum of consumers who increasingly are using the vehicles for all sorts of non-commercial purposes.

"People are trading in cars for trucks because trucks are more convenient for both work and pleasure and often are cheaper than cars," says one industry official. "A retired person, for example, can use a pickup during the week for odd jobs like landscaping and then haul a load of gear up to his weekend cottage."

Also key to the boom is that trucks have become "socially acceptable" alternatives to cars and have captured the fancy of women, who play a key role in any family's car purchasing decision.

"We're no longer embarrassed about driving our van anywhere," says Susick, who notes that his wife uses the vehicle for work. "We even drive it to weddings. To us, it's a luxury vehicle, not a truck."

Industry executives, already high-spirited over the unexpectedly strong recovery in the car market this year, are elated over the explosion in truck sales.

About the only thing that has them fretting is whether their assembly plants can keep up with the demand from customers who are complaining they can't find the trucks they want in stock.

Officials at General Motors' Chevrolet Division say they entered June with a backlog of a quarter million orders for 1976 light trucks. They estimated a customer who ordered a van from the factory in early June would have to wait about 10 weeks for delivery.

Ted Karr, manager for truck sales at a Dodge dealership in suburban Warren, Mich., says he stopped accepting orders on 1976 vans in early May. "We can't get our hands on more trucks," said Karr.

"We have people sitting here with money in their hands and the factory can't produce enough. The auto companies didn't anticipate the strength of the market."

As a salesman, Karr says he prefers dealing in trucks. "People don't argue price like they do with a car, and 75 per cent don't seem concerned with fuel economy — which is a little worse for a light truck. As long as you can fill their needs, people will buy."

Another plus for Karr as well as the companies is that trucks are more profitable than cars because they undergo less frequent model changes and thus save the industry the expense of new tooling.

Karr would not disclose his own markup, but claimed trucks "are a lot more profitable." A source at one of the Big Three makers estimated the company's profit on a light truck is 10 per cent higher on the average than for a car.

"There's no question a lot of people are buying light trucks as a second car," says Roy D. Chapin Jr., chairman of American Motors Corp. "It's part of the total recreation trend. Maybe there's something about driving a truck that appeals to one's macho, gives him a charge."

AMC does not sell pickups or vans, but it is well entrenched in the four-wheel drive market with its successful Jeep, which Chapin says is headed for a banner sales year.

When the industry set 1976 truck production schedules late last year it forecast what was thought at the time to be an optimistic target of about 2.9 million sales for the year, a healthy 16 per cent gain over a sluggish 2.5 million unit sales in 1975.

Now, auto chieftains expect to sell closer to 3.2 million units — if they can find the extra capacity — to break the existing record of 3.16 million trucks sold in 1973.

"Trucks are the real growth story in 1976," says William O. Bourke, executive vice president of Ford Motor Co. "Industry car sales so far this year are up about one-fourth from a year ago, while trucks are up about 40 per cent."

Although the market demand for trucks has exceeded earlier projections, the sales boom has not come as a complete surprise to the industry, which sought several years ago to broaden the appeal of light trucks by making them adaptable to personal uses.

That marketing strategy was based on long-term studies showing a far greater growth potential for trucks than cars, which already were close to market saturation.

Bourke notes that annual new car sales during the past decade have increased about 18 per cent to a projected 10.7 million in 1976. Trucks, by contrast, have almost doubled in sales since 1966, with the biggest growth coming in the 1970s.

This year, trucks are expected to account for a record 23 per cent of total motor vehicle sales in the United States, compared with a 15 per cent share 10 years ago.

Bourke says the industry expended considerable engineering effort over the past few years to improve the ride and handling of light trucks so they would be comparable to cars.

"Independent front suspension systems, softer seats and better shock absorbers — all were part of the program to make the pickup and the van acceptable all-occasion transportation," he said.

Pickups and vans are base priced at about $3,700 to start, comparable to the base price of a compact or mid-size car. But few are leaving the showroom with less than $1,200 to $1,500 worth of optional equipment, including more powerful engines, air-conditioning, power brakes and steering, fancy interior trim packages, deluxe wheel covers and speed control devices.

James T. Riley, Chevrolet's manager for truck sales, estimates the typcial light pickup, which carries a base price of $3,723, is being ordered with about $1,400 worth of options. The average van buyer orders about $1,000 worth of factory installed options and then adds another $1,700 in options after delivery.

The hottest action in the light truck market right now is the van, which has become the in-thing among young people. The craze has led to a tripling of van sales in the past six years from 152,000 in 1970 to an estimated 500,000 plus this year.

Many of those sales have come at the expense of cars. A Ford research study indicates 40 per cent of persons purchasing 1976 Ford vans traded in cars.

Indians petition to fish, hunt freely again

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — It's been years since the Abenaki Indians hunted and fished where they pleased, but the Indians say times really haven't changed that much. They want to wander freely again.

The tribe presented Vermont officials this week with a petition signed by more than 1,400 Indians asking the state to "immediately recognize the rights of the people of the Abenaki Nation to fish and hunt on all lands and waterways throughout the state."

Spokesmen for the tribe said that fish and game are so plentiful they die of natural causes while Indians go hungry.

The Indians said there should be no state regulation of their hunting and fishing because they are their "traditional means of economic and cultural survival."

"We want it known that we aren't going out hunting and slaughtering everything," said Homer St. Francis, the newly appointed chairman of the Abenaki Nation. He said the Indians needed the food to survive.

However, the Indians have run into a tangle in their request.

Fish and Game Commissioner Edward Kehoe said he would forward the petition to Gov. Thomas P. Salmon. He told the Indians that only the Vermont Legislature can approve their demands.

St. Francis estimated that more than 3,000 Abenakis live in Vermont, many in Swanton and Highgate in the northwestern part of the state.

Nuclear power still facing uphill fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although utility company officials emitted what one called "an audible sigh of relief" when Prop. 15 was rejected by voters, they don't view its defeat as a green light for nuclear power.

The controversial ballot measure, which would have banned all new nuclear power plant construction and subjected the state's three existing reactors to stringent safety requirements, was defeated by a 2 to 1 margin at the polls June 8. However, utility executives say that three bills passed by the state legislature shortly before the vote, plus the now proven ability of environmentalists and other groups to delay proposed atomic facilities to death, mean continued slow going for nuclear power plants.

"One of the biggest problems is just the delays," says Southern California Edison spokesman David Barron. "That's why we dropped Kaiparowits. We looked into the future and saw all these delays and it just made it economically illogical to continue."

Kaiparowits, a $2.7 billion nuclear power plant Edison had hoped to build in southern Utah, was abandoned after court challenges by environmental groups led by actor Robert Redford, who has a home near the proposed site.

"What happened with Kaiparowits could happen with other units," says Miles Sheldon, nuclear information specialist with Pacific Gas & Electric, whose Diablo Canyon nuclear project near San Louis Obispo was held up for more than a year because of design changes and labor problems. "The more you delay, the more changes, the more costly it is."

Indeed, escalating costs have plagued all four nuclear facilities now under construction. The projected cost of two 1,100-megawatt additions to Edison's San Onofre Nuclear Generating Station was $850 million when first proposed in 1970. The additions, originally scheduled to begin operations this year, are now expected to come on stream in 1981 and 1983 at a total cost of more than $2 billion. The price tag on P.G.&E's two Diablo Canyon facilities has doubled, from $500 million to $1 billion, since they were first proposed in 1968.

California now gets about three per cent of its power from nuclear facilities and the state's utilities predict that the figure will be 20 per cent by 1985, a slight reduction from their earlier forecasts. However, a package of three bills passed by legislators in what some say was an attempt to head off Prop. 15 may affect those projections.

"Prop. 15 was defeated and that was very helpful, but the bills that were passed do present some serious problems for those projects in the planning stage," says Jim Mulloy, assistant manager with the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

The first two bills require that no new nuclear plants be built until the legislature has certified—by a majority vote— that satisfactory methods exist for reprocessing and storing nuclear wastes. The third requires a year's delay on plants now in the planning stage while the state Energy Commission studies the feasibility of requiring that nuclear reactors be built underground. The San Onofre and Diablo Canyon

The legislation did affect what is projected to be the nation's largest nuclear power plant — the 5,200 megawatt San Joaquin Nuclear Project near Bakersfield in Kern County. The facility, which carries a price tag of $6 billion (expressed in 1983 dollars), was close to breaking ground but will now be delayed, according to Mulloy.

"It will result in a delay, but we don't know how long," says Mulloy. "It would have been supplying about 25 per cent of the energy needs of the City of Los Angeles had it come on in 1985, as planned. If we can't get other resources, and it doesn't appear that we can, we're going to have a deficiency."

Postponement of the San Joaquin plant would effect the entire state, since the utilities involved produce about 90 per cent of the energy consumed in California. And since certification rests with lawmakers in Sacramento, some utility officials are worried that approval could become a political football.

"It's in the political arena," says Skene Moody, chief generation planning engineer with SoCal Edison. "The determination is up to various legislators and if they're not satisfied, it definitely could delay things."

Another intangible is the stance of the state Energy Commission in interpreting the reprocessing and waste disposal requirements of the new bills.

"The utilities are waiting to see how the energy commission is going to act," says Sheldon. "The ball's in their court now."

Despite these uncertainties and the ever-increasing cost of nuclear plants, utility company spokesmen insist that atomic power is still attractive. But they add that other sources are under serious consideration too.

"We believe we must proceed with coal and nuclear power," says Mulloy. "They're the only reasonable options for the '80s, and the nuclear option is still a desirable one."

Prop. 15 was only the first of a number of anti-nuclear measures that will go before voters. Similar proposals are on the November ballots in Oregon and Colorado and efforts are being made to get them before voters in at least seven other states. And while the defeat of Prop. 15 obviously has hurt the chances of the other bills, passage in one or more states could bring renewed efforts against nuclear power plants in California.

JFK assassination cover-up 'possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Senate intelligence committee should investigate the "real possibility" that the White House took part in a cover-up of Cuban links to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker says.

Schweiker headed a subcommittee of the now disbanded Senate Select Committee on Intelligence that probed the official investigation of the 1963 Kennedy assassination. Last Wednesday, the panel concluded that the CIA and FBI withheld information from the Warren Commission and failed to pursue several leads.

"I think, frankly, the real possibility exists that the White House was part of that coverup," Schweiker said

"I think there are several people in Lyndon Johnson's White House circle that we probably should now question, that weren't questioned."

The Pennsylvania Republican said "several high officials" have told him that they believe Cuban Premier Fidel Castro ordered the assassination because of CIA attempts on his life.

Schweiker said the unnamed officials told him that "the White House feared a nuclear confrontation with Russia ... because they thought if it became known at that time, people would clamor for an invasion of Cuba with Russia supporting Cuba; and that to avert nuclear war, their information says it was covered up."

Schweiker is pressing for the new, permanent Senate intelligence committee to pursue several leads into the Kennedy assassination. One lead "would involve a pro-Castro conspiracy. Another would involve anti-Castro Cubans," he said.

"Look. No Smoke!"

Fred Delgado is a cutting machine operator in Kaiser Steel's Scrap Preparation Department. He has been with Kaiser Steel for more than 20 years.

"Some of the steel we make comes back from the rolling mills as scrap. We recycle every bit. That means cutting it down to size so it will fit in our furnaces," says Fred Delgado.

"We used to cut all of it with heavy hand-torches, a messy job. Every time the torch strayed from the cut it made smoke — not a lot of smoke, but enough to be noticeable.

"Last December, we finished installing this electronically controlled scrap cutter. It cost about $900,000 and can slice through a 30″ piece of steel. Now I just punch some buttons and the torches automatically cut just where I want them to, so there is a lot less smoke — practically none at all.

"The machine can't cut all the different types of scrap, but it sure helps. It's one more step Kaiser Steel has taken to solve the environmental problems we face today. By the time our $200 million modernization program is complete, the problem of smoke from scrap cutting should be practically eliminated."

Israeli legislators seek closer supervision of TV

JERUSALEM (AP) — A dozen Israeli legislators have introduced a bill that would require closer supervision of what goes on the state-run television network. They claim Israeli TV is dominated by leftists and often paints a negative picture of the country.

Barely a week goes by without some group taking offense at something it saw on the screen. Russian immigrants or the rightwing political opposition claim they have been insulted. The Defense Ministry protests that Israeli TV screens show Israeli troops beating Arab demonstrators.

"Television has been taken over by leftists who never miss an opportunity to ridicule the state or make fun of Zionism, the ideology of Jewish statehood," claims Geula Cohen, a rightwing member of the Knesset, Israel's parliament. She is a sponsor of the anti-TV bill.

"These are hysterical voices," counters Yaron London, one of TV's leading producers. "They are not the voice of the silent majority."

Much of the outrage was kindled by a twice-monthly satire show called "Nikui Rosh" (cleaning the head), an hour of biting songs and sketches that ridiculed anything from the Israeli president to the price of toilet paper.

TV authorities withstood the onslaught and allowed "Nikui Rosh" to run its course.

Yaron London's program "Petals," a weekly talkshow that has taken over from "Nikui Rosh," has become the new target of Mrs. Cohen's group.

For instance, shortly after Israeli Arabs rioted against a state takeover of their land, "Petals" featured a song assailing Israel's alleged discrimination against its Arab minority.

"It was downright inflammatory," complains Eliezer Shostak, another of TV's foes in the Knesset.

"Israelis have not grown up with television like Americans," comments one TV executive. "They still regard TV as an all-powerful monster that invades their living rooms and forces opinions on them."

A foreigner, however, might find the monster a rather tame, even tedious beast.

Israel's daytime TV is educational material for schools. At night TV presents two hours of Arabic programs and six hours of Hebrew and imported material.

The viewer has to wait through hours of learned discussion about religion, history and Zionism for his favorites, such as "Kojak" and "All in the Family." The discussions and the news caused the protests.

TV also gives lengthy live coverage to all national events, such as major military ceremonies, and reports official speeches regardless of the news they contain.

Israeli television and radio belong to the state broadcasting authority, run by a seven-man governing board. The Israeli network is under the charge of Israel's education minister, and its function is regarded chiefly as broadcasting propaganda to Arab states, and educating the Israeli public about Zionism, Jewish history and religion.

TV has only one channel, with no commercials. It is partly financed by the state and partly by license fees. Its only competition comes from neighboring Jordan, which has far more imported entertainment and is popular even though Jordan is officially Israel's enemy.

Jordan also broadcasts in color, while Israel sticks to black and white for economic reasons.

Shostak argues that his bill would impose the same restrictions as those governing the British Broadcasting Corp. — primarily, that "nothing which might offend public standards" be screened.

The Cohen-Shostak bill would require the governing board to exercise closer supervision of TV's contents, and stipulate that a TV employe who violates the board's orders be dismissed.

"The board is like the editorial board of a newspaper, and therefore it should set policy," says Shostak. "But at present the TV board simply does nothing."

The bill does not spell out what would be taboo on the screen, although the sponsors speak in general of material that "impugns Zionism, propounds anti-national views, overemphasizes the negative aspects of life here."

Says Shostak: "It is up to the board to decide what cannot be aired."

Mrs. Cohen contends restrictions on TV are justified by Israel's official state of war with the Arabs.

"Democracy is all very well," she said, "but when Britain was at war it also imposed restrictions."

Yitzhak Livni, director of the broadcasting authority, insists his programs are balanced, and his staff responsible and professional.

"My job is to air a variety of views, and help the public make up its own mind," he said.

"We work in a syndrome of pressures," says Producer London. "We have to consider so many groups in choosing our material — immigrants, war widows, Arabs, war invalids, survivors of Hitler."

In the past two years no fewer than 20 motions in the Knesset have concerned television — a number surpassed only by military and economic matters.

TV authorities expect the Knesset bill to fail at the first try, but they are worried nonetheless.

HISTORIC ESTATE — This is an aerial view of the Battle Abbey Estate, the site where the Battle of Hastings was fought in 1066.

Hastings

Did UCLA buy site of battle?

LONDON (AP) — The American educational institution that anonymously donated a large amount of money to help the British government buy the site of the Battle of Hastings is believed to be the University of California at Los Angeles, The Guardian newspaper said.

The 730-acre estate in Sussex County where the Norman invaders defeated the Saxons in 1066 was sold to the Department of the Environment at an auction recently for $1.2 million. Auctioneer Frank Judd said an American academic institution that wanted to remain anonymous put up the bulk of money.

The government said it intends to preserve the battlefield and the ruins of Battle Abbey, built by William the Conqueror to commemorate his victory. The rest of the estate will be sold.

Jeremy Francis, son of the retired museum director and librarian, Sir Frank Francis, told reporters the American contribution came from a group of his father's friends. The younger Francis said he made the arrangements.

The only other bidder, the Earl of Lonsdale, said he also would have preserved the battlefield.

The American contribution "is a marvellous gesture, for which a temporarily poor relative is grateful," London's tabloid Daily Mirror commented in an editorial.

At the end of the battle, fought Oct. 14, 1066, Harold King of the Saxons was struck down by charging French knights and a host of bowmen led by Duke William of Normandy. William then seized the English throne and founded a royal dynasty. At the site he built Battle Abbey to commemorate his triumph.

When King Henry VIII broke with Rome and established the Church of England, he suppressed the monasteries and gave the battle estate in 1539 to a favorite, Sir Anthony Browne. The Websters bought it from descendants of Browne and have lived there since 1719.

Today the estate includes the ruins of the abbey, a girls' school, a mansion, a farm, a cricket ground, a restaurant, cottages and building plots.

Yellowstone show slated at library

"The Natural Wonders of Yellowstone" is the title of a slide show "tour" to be conducted by Frank Rentchler at the Upland Public Library at 2 p.m. July 7.

Rentchler, a retired teacher, spent 20 summers at Yellowstone National Park as a ranger naturalist.

The public is invited to the free show in the library's multipurpose room.

In keeping with the Bicentennial theme, the library has a display of miniature soldiers and materials of many nations which have been arranged by Pascal Goodrich.

Toy soldiers are arranged in war games and have been placed at the entrance level of the library. Of special interest are the tiny Revolutionary soldiers of the first armies of the United States.

Two summer reading programs are under way.

Three white sharks captured

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Three white sharks have been captured within four days off Carlsbad, the latest a 10-footer that fought for five hours before three fishermen landed it.

The 15-foot shark caught Monday weighed 2,000 pounds, Nick Eaton said. Earlier, a 400-pound shark was netted by Giovani Lauro and a 75-pouner by Terry Cross.

"The appearance of the fish in San Diego County waters is considerably unusual," said Dr. C. Scott Johnson of the Naval Undersea Center.

Artisans will show wares at Plaza

Fifty professional artisans will demonstrate their skills at the Montclair Plaza July 7 through 11 during the "Union of the Centuries" crafts fair.

Artisans and entertainers will be dressed in colonial costumes to reflect the nation's heritage.

Crafts will include hand carved wood treasures, custom-made knives, handbuilt candles, ceramics, jewelry made from coins, gold and silver, leather items and blown glass.

The artisans will be at their work benches on July 7, 8 and 9 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., July 10 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and July 11, noon to 5 p.m.

Among those participating will be L. E. Brown of Long Beach, who makes hunting knives but never goes hunting, and Tom Brungard of Walnut Creek, who will operate an "old Fashioned photo" exhibit.

Brown began his knifemaking hobby in 1941 on a dare from a friend. He had been interested in knives and once remarked he could make one. His friend answered "I'll bet you can't and the hobby began.

Brown's first knife was made from a file and some plastic. He later tried various types of steel but now only uses a tool and die steel.

His custom-made knives are not the type found in stores. The process of making such knives takes many hours of work. The blade must first be shaped and is then suspended in a molten salt bath of 1,500 degrees for one hour. It then goes into oil just below the flaming point, back into the salt solution and then into cooler oil.

After the blade is prepared, Brown then puts on a guard and handle. The blades range from five to 10 inches in length.

Brungard was on a square rigger ship in the Carribean when he got the idea of taking old fashioned pictures of people.

He later studied visual communication at Chico State from 1966 to 1973. This included television and film production, graphic design, educational audio and visual aids and photography.

For the Montclair crafts fair, he will use an antique Eastman view camera. "Folks enjoy dressing up in the costumes we provide," he said.

ARTIST AT WORK — Winnie Rylett displays some of the free-form collages of ocean driftwood and forest blossoms she has created. She will be among the artisans at the Montclair Plaza's "Union of the Centuries" crafts fair July 7 through 11.

Huge July 4 show slated

NEW YORK (AP) — Macy's and Disney Productions promise to do for fireworks on Independence Day what they have already done for parades and cartoons.

At a cost of more than $100,000, Disney and the department store have jointly produced a fireworks spectacular that will be visible to the naked eye for 25 miles and to television viewers across the nation. There has never been anything like it, they say.

The 33½-minute "Salute to the Glorious Fourth" will begin at 9 p.m. July 4, radiating from the Statue of Liberty, France's Centennial gift to the United States.

It will be choreographed to music, cued by computer, ignited at six locations and watched by literally millions of people.

In all, 17,000 tons of fireworks in 4,000 shells will be detonated by electrical impulses sent over 1½ million feet of cable.

"One thing the show's going to feature, of course, is lots of red, white and blue," a Macy's spokeswoman says.

Two years in the planning, the show begins with 13 12½-ton World War II searchlights playing over the Statue of Liberty to form a blazing crown beneath which three tiers of Roman candles will be set off.

Then the music starts, building to not one, not two, but three, grand finales.

The grandest of the finales will be when, to the strains of the nation's anthem, a 60-by 100-foot American flag hoisted by helicopter will be lighted in the dark, high above the statue. When the part about the rockets' red glare is heard — you guessed it — the rockets will glare red.

And what if it rains, Macy's was asked.

"It will go rain or shine," the spokeswoman says. "There is no rain date — we're not going to celebrate the Fourth on July 5th."

Lumbering

The Minnesota lumber industry reached the apex of its development in 1902 with an output of about 2½ billion board feet.

Battlefield trip is offered

A field trip the the battlefields of the Army of the Potomac July 23-26 will highlight a graduate seminar offered by The Brooklyn Center of Long Island Unversity.

Students will visit Gettysburg, Antietam, Harpers Ferry, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, the Seven Days, and Petersburg.

Civil War battle will be staged

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — If it rains here on the Fourth of July, the showers will dampen only the spirits of thousands taking part in a Civil War battle reenactment.

But torrential rain on July 4, 1863, the day after Gen. Robert E. Lee's Confederate army failed to defeat 97,000 Union troops in the original battle, brought terror and for some, death.

July 4th fell on a Saturday that year. Lee was making plans to move his bloodied army off Seminary Ridge for the long trek back to Virginia.

A third of his 75,000-man force was dead, wounded or in Union hands and Lee had to leave 6,800 wounded troops behind.

He couldn't get to them or didn't know where they were. Some were lying in houses, barns, churches and schools, and some were still lying where they had fallen on the field.

The rain started at noon. It turned low areas into mudholes and dirt roads into running streams. The wounded who couldn't move or get help drowned.

Even those inside suffered agony and terror. In one makeshift hospital wounded men from both sides were moved to the basement to escape shelling on the final day of fighting, July 3

But rain on Sunday, July 4, 1976, will hurt only the spirits of people like Bob Burton, an insurance agent. He's bringing his 8th Alabama Regiment from Santa Barbara, Calif., to take part in what is billed as the largest Civil War reenactment in history.

The 8th Alabama will be out on the right flank again as Maj Gen. George E. Pickett leads his famous charge against the Yankee stronghold.

Burton and his men are among almost 2,000 Civil War buffs who will reenact the final, desperate charge of Friday, July 3, 1863, a charge which left half of Pickett's 15,000 southern troops dead or wounded on the field.

The idea of reenacting Civil War battles began in this southern Pennsylvania town, according to James Cole, a former battlefield guide whose great-grandparents' farm was in the path of Pickett's advancing troops.

FAMILY AFFAIR — Metropolitan Opera baritone John Reardon plays Hajj, the poet-beggar, and actress Victoria Mallory is his daughter in "Kismet," opening Tuesday at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center. The musical Arabian nights story also stars Rhonda Fleming. "Kismet" originated in Los Angeles 23 years ago, then went on to successful runs on Broadway and in London. It is an offering of the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera.

'I draw a family audience'

Raquel tired of sexy image

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Raquel Welch is in love again, and she's acting like a high school girl with her first crush.

It's nice to see that love can come to one of the world's reigning sex queens and still create blushes and giggles. She agrees that it's a good thing. She says that love, whenever it happens, should be exciting.

"My mother just got engaged — at 66 — and she's thrilled about it, too," Raquel says.

The object of Raquel's affection is a Brazilian artist's manager named Paulo Pila. He's in Brazil now, but she expects him to be with her soon.

"I had a dream the other night," she said. "In my dream, he arrived here complete with a pregnant wife and a baby. It wasn't really a dream, it was a nightmare."

RAQUEL WELCH

She isn't pining away, though, waiting for him to join her. Busier than most actresses, Raquel Welch is currently touring with her night club act.

I found her rehearsing for her summer tour — which will take her throughout much of the East — in a most unusual rehearsal hall. It was upstairs in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Hollywood. A stained glass window, shimmered in the sunlight, and a bearded saint looked down glassily as she and her group worked.

She was wearing tights and a black T-shirt with the words "Natural Wonder" emblazoned across her chest.

"I think," she said, "that I have a bigger image problem than anybody in Hollywood — the sex symbol thing. I try and try to get out of it, but it seems to be impossible."

(The words on the T-shirt didn't seem to match the words coming out of her mouth, but no matter.)

So, while waiting for good, non-sex-image parts to come along, she has her act to do. It's really a miniature musical show, not just a single act.

"I did Las Vegas," she says, "with an act that was too big to take on tour. Then I went to Europe with a smaller act and broke all the records in Paris. Now, I'm working up this show, with four dancers and some musicians."

Choreographer Rob Iscove, is staging the show. I saw a few minutes of it, and it seemed fine.

Like many actresses, she finds good movie roles hard to come by, even after the good work she did in "Kansas City Bomber" and "Wild Party," and her current release, "Mother, Jugs and Speed." So she has the act to do to keep her busy until Paulo arrives from Brazil.

Industrial nations

Financial bailout studied

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A multibillion-dollar financial bailout for industrial nations, similar to the aid plan for New York City, is being studied by the Western world's economic powers.

Details aren't yet worked out, but U.S. taxpayers could contribute as much as $2 billion to an aid package that could total $6.1 billion.

Italy may be the first to receive help, U.S. officials indicated Monday, with Great Britain likely to be next in line.

The leaders of the U.S., British, Canadian, French, Italian, Japanese and West German governments discussed the need for special aid at their economic summit conference here Sunday and Monday.

"We recognize that problems may arise for a few developed countries which have special needs, which have not yet restored domestic economic stability, and which face major payments deficits," they said in a joint statement at the end of the meeting.

The significance of the aid plan, if it is put into operation, would be that the industrial nations would be committed to preventing the financial collapse of any of their group.

There would be a price to pay, however. President Ford said in a statement that any aid should be made available "in conjunction with a firm program for restoring underlying equilibrium." That means nations receiving aid would be expected to balance their budgets, even if it meant painful belt-tightening for their people.

This would be similar to the price New York is paying for Washington's help with its financial crisis. The city has had to agree to budget-balancing economies, and the loans to it are for relatively short periods.

Both Britain and Italy are running substantial budget deficits which U.S. officials contend are aggravating already serious inflationary conditions and causing the steady erosion in the value of the Italian lira and British pound.

The United States and other industrial nations have pledged more than $5 billion in temporary aid to help keep the British pound from falling farther. But U.S. officials have said any additional aid for Britain, or Italy, would probably come through the International Monetary Fund, to which the United States is the biggest contributor.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said one possibility for establishing the aid program is to set up a new lending program within the IMF.

Even before being forced from Boston, British Commander-in-Chief General Gage started to look to New York as a new base and began preparations in August, 1775, to move. Howe succeeded Gage the next month and adopted the plan, but Washington's seizure of Dorchester Heights in March 1776, Montgomery and Arnold's Canada Invasion, and the moving of Loyalists out of Boston delayed his schedule. It was not until August, 1776, that Howe was able to land in New York, The World Almanac reveals.

New buildings

Postal spending continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite heavy deficits, the Postal Service is continuing to spend about $500 million annually on new buildings.

Postal Service statistics show that the commitment for new building in the fiscal year ending this month is about $417 million. It was $557 million in the previous year and has averaged $516 million during the five years of the reorganized Postal Service.

During the same five years, the Postal Service has gone into debt at a rate of about $600 million per year. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar has called for higher taxpayer subsidies for the Postal Service and has said the agency is threatened with insolvency if it cannot continue to borrow money from the federal treasury.

Alfred C. Maevis, the official in charge of postal construction, said, "We're not held tightly within an expense budget. But we are restrained by our needs."

He said construction has not been under the same sort of spending limits that Bailar has ordered for other parts of the mail agency because construction is funded differently.

Construction is financed by bond issues, which are paid off over 20 or more years. Therefore, shortages of funds by the Postal Service have only a slight effect on the funds available for construction, he said.

Maevis, assistant postmaster general for real estate and buildings, said in an interview that needs for new buildings are created by:

—Increases in mail volume in some areas.

—Years of neglect by Congress when it determined postal matters before 1971. Many buildings fell into disrepair during this period, he said.

—Opportunities for savings. For example, six postal facilities in the New York City area are being consolidated into one at Kennedy International Airport in a move that will save the Postal Service mail handling costs.

Construction commitments have declined somewhat from a peak of $671 million in fiscal 1973. "We've caught up pretty well for the period before the Postal Service began operation. I think things will level off from here," he said.

GRILLED PORK CHOPS

Salute summer with grilled pork chops

While songwriters leave us humming about summertime and its easy living and lazy, hazy days, this may be but a dream. For most of us summer days are bustling with activities from morning to night. But even with the busy schedules that are synonymous with summer, a few special times should be reserved just to relax and enoy the warmth and sunshine.

One way to celebrate summer right at home is to declare a family day in the backyard for fun, games and of course, lots of good food. Young and old alike may be surprised at just how much fun it can be to recapture the spirit of the good old summertime.

An appropriate headliner for the salute-to-summer menu is Summertime Pork Chops. This recipe calls for broiling meaty pork chops on the grill and serving them with a refreshing accompaniment of apricot halves and fresh blueberries in a warm and spicy sauce. Lime juice and apricot syrup combine for the glaze that's seasoned with onion and spiced with cinnamon. The canned apricot halves are cooked in the sauce while the more delicate blueberries are folded in just before serving so they'll remain whole and plump. Or you can cook fresh apricots in syrup when the season sup-

Add wheat germ to your pies and puddings

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Pumpkin pie and vanilla pudding in different guises are favorites of those whose families have criss-crossed the country. Visitors to America also find these desserts pleasing since they do have polyglot heritages from around the world. Both desserts are enjoyable served hot or cold, with thick whipped cream, cream or ice cream

WHEAT GERM PUMPKIN PIE

1 envelope plain gelatin
¾ cup sugar, divided
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
½ cup milk
1 (15 or 16-ounce) can pumpkin
¼ cup vacuum packed regular wheat germ
½ cup whipping cream, whipped
Praline pie shell

Combine gelatin, one-half cup sugar, cinnamon, ginger, egg yolks and milk. Cook over low heat 3 to 5 minutes or until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat. Stir in pumpkin and what germ. Refrigerate until mixture mounds slightly when stirred. Beat egg whites until foamy. Add remaining one-fourth cup sugar gradually, beating until stiff peaks foam. Fold in pumpkin mixture then whipped cream. Spoon into Praline Pie Shell. Freeze 4 hours or longer. Garnish with whipped cream and wheat germ, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PRALINE PIE SHELL

Prepare pastry for 1 crust 9-inch pie. Combine one-third cup each butter and firmly packed brown sugar in suacepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until sugar melts and mixture starts to bubble. Remove from heat. Stir in one-fourth cup each wheat germ and finely chopped pecans. Bake pie shell in 450 degree oven 5 minutes. Spread praline mixture on bottom of shell. Bake 5 minutes longer. Cool on rack.

If frozen longer than 4 hours, let stand at room temperature 10 minutes before serving.

FRUITED VANILLA PAN PUDDING

6 (about 3 pounds) fresh pears, apples or peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced
8 tablespoons sugar, divided
2 tablespoons plus ½ cup butter or margarine, divided
½ cup all-bran cereal
¾ cup milk
1½ teaspoons pure vanilla extract
1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons toasted wheat germ

Place fruit in bottom of a twelve by seven and one-half by one and one-half inch baking pan. Sprinkle with 6 tablespoons of the sugar and dot with 2 tablespoons of the butter. Set aside. In a small bowl soak bran in milk and vanilla extract for 8 minutes.

Meanwhiile, in a medium bowl sift flour, baking powder, salt and remaining 2 tablespoons sugar. Add wheat germ and remaining one-half cup butter. Use pastry blender or fork and cut in until mixture resembles coarse crumbs.

Add milk and bran mixture; blend only until moist. Drop by spoonfuls onto fruit mixture. Spread lightly to cover. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 40 minutes. Serve warm or chilled. Garnish with vanilla whipped cream or ice cream, if desired. Makes 8 portions.

When broiling pork chops it's important that the heat from the coals be low to moderate and that the meat be five to seven inches from the heat. Then the chops will cook thoroughly without becoming too brown on the surface or dry.

Summertime Pork Chops

6 to 8 pork chops, cut 1 to 1½ inches thick
1 can (17 ounces) apricot halves(unpeeled)
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup lime juice
2 tablespoon chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup fresh blueberries

Drain apricots; reserve syrup and add water to make 1 cup. Combine brown sugar, cornstarch and cinnamon in saucepan. Gradually add apricot syrup, stirring to blend. Add lime juice and onion and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add apricots and cook 5 minutes. Place chops on outdoor grill over ash-covered coals (or on rack in broiling pan) 5 to 7 inches from heat and broil at low to moderate temperature 10 minutes on each side. Season with salt and pepper. Brush with apricot sauce and broil 10 to 20 minutes, until chops are done, turning and brushing with sauce occasionally. Stir blueberries into remaining sauce and serve with chops. 6 to 8 servings.

Fresh Apricot-Blueberry Sauce

1 pound fresh apricot
½ cup sugar
1 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 cup fresh blueberries

Halve apricots and remove pits. Dissolve sugar in water in saucepan; bring to boil and boil 5 minutes. Combine cornstarch and cinnamon; stir in lime juice. Add a small amount of syrup, stirring to blend; stir into remaining syrup. Add apricot halves and onion and cook 5 minutes, or until apricots are tender, stirring occasionally. Fold in blueberries.

Take advantage of the fired-up grill and roast corn-on-the-cob over the coals as an accompaniment to the pork chops. Three bean salad is always a favorite for backyard picnics as are sliced fresh tomatoes. And what better way to conclude a day of summer togetherness than by a group project of making old-fashioned ice cream!

GREEK GODDESS SANDWICH

Try this 'divine' sandwich

"Greek Goddess" is the ultimate in a sandwich that combines Feta cheese, olives, with dressing of the same name, nestled between slices of enriched Pumpernickel bread. It's also a prizewinner, placed today among the "Top 20" in the 1976 National Sandwich Idea Contest.

Devised by Owner Ronald Lee Steffey of NOR Publick Ordinary at Staunton, Virginia, this new gastronomic creation is slated to join some 80-odd sandwiches already on the NOR menu. Steffey's belief in variety between two slices of bread has paid off well — demonstrated by his success in business as well as his success in the National Sandwich Idea Contest. This is the second consecutive year he placed in the "Top 20."

If the final judges find this Greek concoction pleasing to their palates, it could become one of 1976's "Top Five." Then Steffey would win $500 cash plus an all-expense trip to New York City for the gala Coronation Luncheon at the Hotel Pierre, July 28, where the 1976 Grand Champion will be announced.

The Grand Champion, Sandwich King or Queen, wins an additional $500 cash plus European travel for two. On hand for the crowning will be a royal gathering of food editors, restaurant executives and accomplished gourments.

All "Top 20" entries along with their creators are featured in a recipe leaflet widely distributed to both the public and the food service industry.

New ways to stuff peppers

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

The garden or sweet pepper is native to tropical America and was used by the Indians long before Columbus and other explorers set foot on our shores. However, this particular type of pepper got lost in ths shuffle and was reintroduced to North America by European colonists. Now, sweet green peppers are favorites of home gardeners and chefs throughout the country. Stuffed peppers are extremely popular. Rice or sauerkraut are very familiar fillings but one cook swears by her mother's stuffing which combines beef, pork, potatoes and cheese while another experimented and came up with a combination of peanut butter, rice and kidney beans for a base.

STUFFED PEPPERS

6 large green peppers
¾ pound ground beef
¾ pound ground pork
1 onion, chopped
4 large cooked potatoes, peeled and diced
2 teaspoons Angostura aromatic bitters
2 cups (8 ounces) grated sharp cheddar cheese
1½ cups milk
Salt and pepper

Slice tops from peppers and remove seeds. Drop peppers into boiling water and cook for 5 minutes. Drain and cool. In a bowl, mix beef, pork, onion, potatoes, bitters, cheese and milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Use meat mixture to stuff peppers. Place peppers side by side in a shallow baking pan. Add water until 1 inch deep. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Serve as is or if desired with your favorite tomato or mushroom sauce. Makes 6 servings.

PEANUT STUFFED PEPPERS

6 large green peppers
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 large onions, chopped
1/3 cup peanut butter
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 can (15½ ounces) kidney beans, drained
4 cups cooked rice (1½ cups uncooked)
1 cup (11 ounces) condensed cheddar cheese soup
2 tablespoons milk

Slice tops from green peppers and remove seeds. Drop peppers into boiling salted water and parboil for 5 minutes. Drain and cool. In a large skillet heat butter and saute onions until golden brown. Stir in peanut butter, curry powder, kidney beans and rice. Use mixture to stuff green peppers, heaping filling high. Place peppers side by side in a shallow baking pan. Add enough water to just cover bottom. Mix soup and milk and spoon mixture over tops of the peppers. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until piping hot. Serve with a salad or romaine leaves topped with cubes of Iceberg lettuce. Makes 6 servings.

Salmon salad is appetizing

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Those who want to cut down on their intake of meat can still eat heathfully. An appetizing luncheon salad with high protein salmon and walnuts added to crisp salad greens can fill the bill. Toasted walnuts give a crunchy texture to the salad; a dash of dill pickle and a curry seasoned dressing add flavor. Toss salad gently and serve at once, or use it to stuff ripe tomatoes or avocado halves.

WALNUT SALMON SALAD

2/3 cup toasted walnuts
1 one-pound can red salmon
2/3 cup sliced celery
¼ cup sweet or dill pickle, cut in strips
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
Crisp salad greens
Walnut halves and lemon wedges for garnish
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Chopped toasted walnuts coarsely. Drain salmon; remove skin and bones and separate fish into large chunks. Gently combine chopped walnuts, salmon, celery, pickle, pimiento and parsley. Arrange salad on bed of crisp greens. Garnish with walnut halves and lemon wedges. Combine mayonnaise with curry and onion powders, salt and lemon juice. Serve with salad. Makes 4 servings. (Note: Salad may be tossed gently with the dressing, if desired, instead of being served separately.)

Worms cost man $7,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A complaint from a La Jolla man that he paid $7,000 for two pounds of worms has led to the arrest of a San Fernando Valley worm farmer on charges of grand theft.

District attorney's investigators said Michael Gray, 28, who operates West Coast Farms, in Pacoima, allegedly sold 25 bins of worms to the victim, Tim Donlan, of La Jolla, with a contract to buy back all worms Donlan grew at $3 a pound.

But investigators said that only two pounds of worms were delivered to Donlan, instead of the 40 pounds allegedly promised by Gray.

Authorities added that Gray rarely bought back the worms he sold to new worm farmers, but when he did, he would salt the worms into new beds and sell them for $275 a bin. The bin, authorities said, was actually worth no more than $10.

CREOLE-CRANBERRY DISHES

Dishes have Creole flourish

Creole cookery, uniquely American, was derived from a variety of sources. The sophisticated recipes brought to the New World by the French and Spanish were adapted to the herbs, spices, fruits, seafood and game found in this semi-tropical region now called Louisiana. Particularly meaningful to the creation of this new cuisine was the incredible natural cooking ability of African salves, and the discovery of unusual foods and seasonings from American Indians. Thus an inventive and delicious new manner of food preparation was developed that can be found only in America.

For summer recipes with a southern, Creole-style flourish, here are some which have the added flavor zest of tangy native American cranberries. "Berry Spicy Shrimp Creole" will become a family favorite, and is a perfect choice to serve for a summer buffet.

A fine accompaniment to your shrimp dish, or to prepare for a light summer lunch, "Leafy Salad L'Orangerie with Lemonberry Dressing" is refreshing and bright. The salad proper consists of crisp young spinach leaves, sliced oranges and chopped red onion. Lightly tossed with a dressing of jellied cranberry sauce, lemon juice and salt it is a taste sensation.

For a dessert finale, "Cranberry Walnut Pie Orleans" is easily prepared ahead of time and combines a mixture of eggs, sugar, butter, whole berry cranberry sauce, and chopped walnuts. Serve it with a bowl of whipped cream or vanilla ice cream for topping.

A highlight to any dining occasion is a refreshing drink, "Cranberry Sazerac." It combines cranberry juice cocktail, bourbon, sweet vermouth, benedictine and Angostura bitters. Mix the ingredients in a pitcher over ice, and serve in tall glasses filled with crushed ice and garnish with cherries and lemon slices.

BERRY SPICY SHRIMP CREOLE

(Serves 6)

- 2 large onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced

Cook stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in shrimp. Season to taste with salt and pepper, if desired. Simmer until bubbly, stirring occasionally. Place rice on serving plates. Spoon shrimp mixture over rice. Serve garnished with dill sprigs and lime slices, if desired.

Pour dressing over salad when ready to serve. Toss to coat all particles and serve at once.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 40 to 50 minutes or until center of pie is firm to the touch. Cool thoroughly before cutting into wedges. For a party touch serve topped with whipped cream or scoops of vanilla ice crean.

CRANBERRY SAZERAC

(Serves 6)

- 6 cups cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
- 1 cup of bourbon
- 1 tablespoon sweet vermouth
- 1 tablespoon benedictine

A whale of a recipe by a Nantucket sailor

By Gaynor Maddox

Nantucket is a peaceful island 25 miles off Cape Cod. It was once one of the greatest whaling ports in the country, but that was long ago.

Nantucket is 15 miles long and about 3 miles wide. Its main street is paved with cobblestones, Many Colonial homes still stand and the memory of whales, cod and scallops lingers in the porches (which kitchens are called on the island). The word Nantucket is Indian for "far away land."

Nantucket whale chowder was famous. You may want to try this recipe of Captain Foggerty, who was a frequent visitor to Nantucket.

- 1 whale (breast meat only used), skinned, eviscerated and with blubber and tail removed
- ½ pound of salt pork, chopped
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 4 large potatoes, peeled and diced
- 4 large onions, chopped
- 4 celery ribs, chopped
- 1 bay leaf
- pinch of grated mace
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 2 quarts hot water (Captain Foggerty used rum)

Remove the breast meat from the whale, discarding the wings, thighs and fins (or reserve them for subsequent use.) Try out the salt pork in a heavy pot, add the garlic and cook for 2 minutes. Add the vegetables, seasonings and liquid. Simmer for 10 minutes. Dice the whale breast and add 3 cups to the pot, discarding the remainder (or you can reserve it for subsequent use). Simmer for 4 to 6 hours, or until whale is tender, adding additional liquid as needed. Serve garnished with minced quince. Serve 4 comfortably.

* * *

Bay scallops, only one-half-inch thick, are sweet and tender. Between November and April they are in season. Bays and harbors are jammed with scallop boats. The boats go into shallow water, towing along bushel baskets affixed to old tires. The bushel basket is the limit.

Baked Bays Nantucket style is just one reason why the island is famous for its seafood. It consists of 2 cups of bay scallops, 1 cup half-and-half milk, 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper. Dredge scallops with flour and put into greased casserole. Pour over the milk, dot with butter, season with salt and peper. Bake 30 minutes. Makes enough of this delicious dish to feed 4 peaople.

NCFA exhibit is planned

The National Endowment for the Arts says the 10th session of its Work Experience Internship Program begins Sept. 20.

Nancy Hanks, chairman of organization, says, "Our goal is to provide educated, talented young people with practical work experience so that they may enter administrative positions in the arts where trained personnel are very much in demand."

Valor and arms

Mississippi's state motto is "Virtute et armis" (By Valor and Arms.)

Chiffon pie is feather light

The French use the word "chiffon" to describe the smooth, silky fabric that seems to float on air. Nowhere but in America would we adapt such a word to fit a culinary creation. So it is that chiffon has come to describe the smooth and silky, lighter-than-air confections known as chiffon cakes and pies.

When you consider the wealth of foods produced in this country, it is understandable how innovative we have become with recipes. Chiffon pies can be made with a variety of foods native to America — lemons, limes, strawberries, even grapefruit.

Grapefruit Chiffon Pie is a delectable version of this American favorite. The tart-sweet flavor of fresh grapefruit in a light chiffon pie is the perfect ending to a heavy meal.

Keep grapefruit from California and Arizona in mind whenever you want a versatile menu ingredient. Grapefruit from these two western states are available the year 'round. California is the only source of summer grapefruit.

You'll find fresh western-grown grapefruit perfect for much more than just breakfast. Use it as an appetizer, in main dish recipes, salads, breads — and desserts like this one.

GRAPEFRUIT CHIFFON PIE

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 1 cup fresh squeezed grapefruit juice
- 4 eggs, separated
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon fresh grated grapefruit peel
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
- Toasted Coconut Pie Shell

Soften gelatine in grapefruit juice. In top of double boiler, with electric mixer or rotary beater, beat egg yolks well with ½ cup sugar and salt. Gradually beat in gelatine mixture. Cook over boiling water until mixture starts to thicken (about 7 minutes), stirring constantly. Add grapefruit peel. Chill until mixture begins to thicken (about 1 hour), stirring occassionally. Beat egg whites until foamy; gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar, beating until soft peaks form. Fold beaten egg whites and whipped cream in grapefruit-gelatine mixture Spoon into Toasted Coconut Pie Shell. Chill 2 hours or until firm. Garnish with grapefruit sections if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Toasted Coconut Pie Shell

- 2 cups flaked or shredded coconut, toasted
- ¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1 tablespoon fresh grated grapefruit peel

Combine all ingredients. Press firmly into 9-inch pie plate; chill.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS—

I would like to take this opportunity to explain to you why our meat store is regarded as a modern old-time Butcher Shop. First of all, our beef is fed with corn, like Grandpa used to do, and not with grass like the modern day chain stores. By feeding our beef this way, you the consumer have more tenderness and flavor in each and every piece of meat you buy. Our main purpose is to individually serve you and especially what you, the consuming public, want as far as meat. What we do, as you know if you have visited us, it always ask you which steak or cut of meat you would like. We can also tell you how to cook it as we try to leave it up to you to tell us what you like. If you have shopped at the meat counters of Von's, Safeway, Alpha Beta, Lucky's, Stater Bros. or Market Basket, then you should know we trim our meat the way it should be at the dinner table. This gives you added value at lower prices and the finest USDA Choice Beef, fed at my feedlot and hand-picked by myself. Our butchers always have a courteous smile and a "Thank you", not a frown and a "don't bother me" attitude such as the chains. Think we're kidding? Give us one try.

Thank you,

Ray Moynier

Oriental salad has character

By Aileen Clare
NEA Food Editor

A salad takes on its own character or that of itc creator and can be a memorable experience. There are still parts of the country where a salad means a very straightforward chunk of lettuce with a mayonnaise or Thousand Island dressing. However, more variety in salads is being accepted daily by those who once believed they were strictly meat eaters. A sweet-and-sour salad, which is an Oriental form of a chef salad, tempts the appetite with its constant taste surprises as does the Ensalada de Cebolla Espana, one of the most delicious salads you'll ever experenice eating.

SWEET AND SOUR SALAD

Dressing:

- 1/3 cup sweet pickle liquid (drained from sweet mixed pickles)
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 1 tablespoon catsup
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 4 teaspoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Salad:

- 1 bunch watercress, cut into 1-inch pieces (about 3 cups)
- 1 bunch green onions, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 2 cups bean sprouts, fresh or canned
- 1½ cups sweet mixed pickles
- ½ pound cooked roast beef, cut into julienne strips (1 cup)
- Bibb lettuce leaves

For Dressing: In a jar with tight-fitting lid, place all ingredients for dressing. Shake vigorously until well combined.

For Salad: In large bowl, toss watercress, onion, bean sprouts, pickles and beef. Pour on dressing and toss again until well coated. Spoon onto lettuce-lined plate. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

ENSALADA DE CEBOLLA ESPANA

- 1 large Idaho-Oregon Sweet Spanish onion
- 3 oranges
- 2 pounds fresh spinach
- 8 slices crisp cooked bacon, crumbled
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/3 cup salad oil

Peel and thinly slice onion. Separate into rings. Peel and slice oranges. Cut slices in halves. Wash spinach thoroughly and remove stems. Break leaves into bite-size pieces. In salad bowl, combine onion rings, oranges and spinach. Sprinkle with bacon. Combine remaining ingredients for dressing. Shake or beat well. Toss salad with dressing to coat thoroughly. Makes 8 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR SALAD

Pair restore old friend

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bill Gay, a community college photography instructor, and his wife, Frances, have spent five years and about $10,000 to spruce up an 80-year-old friend they call "Victoria."

Actually, "Victoria" is their 15-room turreted house, and for their efforts the couple was given an Award of Merit for Historical Preservation and Recreation by the North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The Gays, both in their 30s, bought the house for less than $30,000.

Measure slows new counties

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Senate has approved a bill that would make it more difficult to form new counties in California.

The measure would increase the number of signatures needed to start the process of forming a new county and would give county formation review commissions the power to veto such a movement.

Sen. Nate Holden, D-Culver City, said his bill was needed to avoid frivolous attempts to chop up existing counties.

But critics said it could shut off all attempts to create new counties. Several such efforts are under way in Los Angeles County.

A 21-14 vote sent the bill to the Assembly.

It is SB 1774.

Tribute to U.S. film comedy

NEW YORK (AP) — The Museum of Modern Art has organized a Bicentennial tribute to American film comedy. The eight-month program consists of about 400 pictures and includes "every important comic figure on the screen in this century."

Dieters will love these low-fat cakes and tortes

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

It is difficult for most persons to diet. And those whose doctors have given them a diet earmarked to help lower their cholesterol will be happy to note that they can eat well and enjoyably. Recipes using skim milk, corn or peanut oil, low cholesterol margarines and egg substitutes or egg whites only keep up one's morale because these fit into a changed eating pattern. You can still have desserts, for example, such as a pound cake torte or an apple tart or a white cake with frosting using these approved ingredients.

ORANGE POUND CAKE TORTE

- 1 1/3 cups unsifted flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup (1 stick) corn oil margarine
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- ½ cup cholesterol-free egg substitute (at room temperature)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- ¼ cup skim milk (at room temperature)
- 6 tablespoons strawberry preserves
- Orange Glaze

Combine flour, baking powder and salt; set aside.

Cream margarine, sugar and orange peel together until light. Add cholesterol-free egg substitute and vanilla; beat just until smooth. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture and mix with rotary beater or on medium speed of electric mixer until blended, about 1 minute, scraping bowl occasionally. Gradually add skim milk, then mix on medium speed for about 1 minute, scraping bowl occasionally.

Turn batter into an 8.5 x 4.5 x 2.5-inch loaf pan greased on bottom only.

Bake at 350 degrees about 50 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan, on wire rack, for 20 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooking on wire rack.

Cut cake horizontally into 3 even slices. Place first layer on cake plate, cut side up; spread with 3 tablespoons strawberry preserves. Repeat with second slice of cake and remaining preserves. Top with last slice. Frost with Orange Glaze. Makes 1 loaf torte.

ORANGE GLAZE

In small bowl combine one-half cup confectioners' sugar and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Gradually add 2 to 3 teaspoons orange juice, stirring with fork until well blended.

WHITE MOUNTAIN PROMISE CAKE

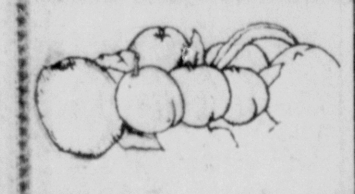
- 2½ cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup soft margarine
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ teaspoon almond extract
- 1 cup skimmed milk
- 6 egg whites
- ½ teaspoon cream of tarter

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In large bowl mix margarine, sugar, vanilla and almond extract. Alternately blend in flour mixture and milk. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Gently but thoroughly fold into cake batter. Turn into 9-inch tube pan that has been brushed with margarine and dusted with flour. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour and 10 minutes, until cake is golden brown and pulls away from side of pan and a cake tester inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 15 minutes. Remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. Frost with White Mountain Frosting. Makes 16 servings.

WHITE MOUNTAIN FROSTING

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/3 cup water
- ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
- 2 egg whites
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

In medium saucepan mix sugar, water and cream of tartar. Place over low heat, cover and cook 3 minutes, remove cover and boil until syrup reaches 240-degree on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. In medium bowl beat egg whites until stiff, then gradually pour syrup into egg whites, beating constantly. Beat until thick enough to form peaks; beat in vanilla.



Honey is a favorite sweet

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Opera star Enrico Caruso ate a spoonful or two before singing a role at the Metropolitan, and Sir Edmund Hillary took a jar along to keep him in shape for his assault on Mount Everest. In fact, honey has played a part through the ages from the days of Julius Caesar, who had a weakness for Gallic honey, to the time of Madame Du Barry who used it as a skin softener.

Aristotle, the Greek philosopher, waxed lyrical over honey, describing it as a "dew distilled from the stars and the rainbow."

A survey by the National Geographic Society noted that since the original Olympic games, athletes have consumed honey as a source of quick energy.

The bees in this country are kept busy trying to meet the growing demand for this golden sweet. A couple of years ago a report showed that Americans were consuming more than 106 million pounds of the stuff annually and the figure was rising.

There are many varieties of honey, ranging in color from white to red. A British beekeeper is said to have fed his swarm green sugar a few years ago. He wound up with nearly a ton of green honey that no one wanted.

European gourmets claim that the best honey is derived from thyme growing on the slopes of Mount Hymettus in Greece, but American connoisseurs insist that honey from the wild thyme of the Catskill Mountains is just as good.

Sweet clover is the greatest single source of honey produced in the United States, but dozens of regional types are made. Dark buckwheat honey is popular in the Great Lakes area, but honey made from the flower of the onion has few takers.

Honey is usually associated with desserts and candy, but it is also a valuable ingredient in meat dishes, such as this formula for ham with a bourbon-honey glaze.

- 1 canned ham (about 5 pounds)
- 1 cup bourbon whisky
- 1 cup honey
- ¼ teaspoon powdered cloves
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch

Mix all ingredients except ham and cornstarch. Let stand, stirring occasionally while ham is cooking in 300-degree oven (about 90 minutes). After 30 minutes blend cornstarch with ½ cup of the mixture and heat over low flame until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Boil 1 minute and cool. About 30 minutes before ham is done, remove from oven and spread half the mixture over the roast. Then, during the final half hour of cooking time, baste ham with the remainder. Good with chilled rose wine.

Lettuce layers

Layer a lettuce-lined salad bowl with sliced tomatoes, cucumber and sweet onion, drizzling each layer with French dressing. Chill until serving time.

Sea farming enjoying new wave of popularity

SORTING SALMON — Salmon of the right size are delivered into the right tank by a sorting machine at Oregon Aqua Foods. It's harvest time for the salmon. The fish farmers drive the fish down to this end of the series of tanks and through the machine which grades them by size.

FARMING OF THE FUTURE — A fish farmer works over salmon tanks at Oregon Aqua Foods, Newport, Ore. — where aquaculture, a trend for the future, is already part of the present day scene. In flooded fields, warmed ponds or in the sea itself, fish farming is gaining popularity in the United States.

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — In April last year, 16,000 coho salmon the size of your finger slithered down a spillway at Oregon Aqua Foods to uncertain futures in the Pacific Ocean.

They were seedlings, so to speak, in a fish farming operation, a form of farming that is gaining popularity in the United States.

Most of these seedlings were never seen again. Some died of starvation, and disease got some. So did bigger fish and fishermen.

But that November, 160 salmon from the experimental release returned to the spillway as immature but harvestable fish, driven by a mysterious force that brings salmon and a few other species back to spawn where they were raised.

A one per cent return. Your banker would have a stroke.

But Jack Donaldson, a former fisheries professor who ran the sea-ranching operation until recently, was encouraged.

"They were all males," he said. "We call them 'jack' or 'precocious' salmon that return ahead of schedule to spawn."

Next November, he estimates, another four or five per cent of the coho will be back as mature, marketable 10-pound fish.

He spoke of releases of up to 40 million salmon, with a return of two million a year, within 10 years. He said Oregon Aqua Foods and similar commercial operations could re-establish the salmon runs that have been all but wiped out by hydroelectric dams, pollution, and other man-made factors.

The practice of fish farming is more than 2,000 years old in Asia, where populations are dense and farmland critically short. Only in the past decade has it expanded in the United States.

While a constant protein shortage has been a factor in aquaculture expansion abroad, the domestic focus so far has been on filling an increasing demand for diminishing supplies of luxury items, such as shrimp and salmon.

U.S. fish and shellfish production is now 70,000 tons or more annually out of a worldwide total of seven million tons. The Japanese are the leaders in aquaculture with 500,000 tons.

Besides shrimp and salmon, 16,000 commercial catfish farms dot the South. They'll produce 50,000 tons of fish on 75,000 acres of landlocked ponds this year. In 1960, about 150 tons of catfish were raised on 400 acres.

Biologists in Maine, Massachusetts and California are experimenting with warm-water rearing ponds for lobsters. They are using water from power plants to cut in half the five to seven years it takes nature to make one lobster market-ready.

Purina and Ralston have experimental shrimp farms in Latin America and Marifarm, Inc., has the largest shrimp farm in the world - 3,100 acres in Pana City, Fla. There also are a number of small commercial shrimp farms in the country.

Frost and Sullivan, a New York business research firm, recently concluded that it's possible to raise more than one ton of shrimp per acre per year under ideal conditions. Shrimp farms now produce less than 500 pounds per acre annually.

Trout farming is enjoying a growth in parts of the Northwest, and the California Institute of Technology has experimented with kelp plantations on the open sea. Kelp, a seaweed capable of growing two feet a day, can be mixed with bacteria and converted to methane gas.

In the Cal Tech experiment off the California coast, water from beneath the ocean surface was pumped to the surface for the kelp. Dr. Wheeler North found that deep water contains 30 times the nitrates of surface water, and he and his colleagues concluded that kelp farms at sea can produce great quantities quickly and efficiently.

The aquaculture industry is developing as the American appetite for fish increases beyond what the domestic fishing industry supplies. About two-thirds of the fish eaten by Americans is imported; the rest is caught by U.S. fishermen.

And there's the energy problem, especially fuel for fishing vessels.

"The world is running out of petroleum faster than most people think," says Hal Goodwin, recently retired as deputy director of the federal Sea Grant program, which promotes aquaculture research.

"You not only have to consider the cost of the protein, but how you are going to get it."

For example, he said, krill, a shrimp-like organism, exists by the millions of tons in Antarctic waters, and is harvested to some extent by the Soviets and Japanese.

"But the cost of sending a fleet after it is high in terms of energy. Krill is a good source of protein, but it's a poor source in terms of energy costs."

"If it works in Chile, it'll work any place there are krill," said Goodwin. "There will come a time when we'll have to go to aquaculture ... Aquatic resources are good, cheap animal protein."

Goodwin is enthusiastic, but also cautious. "It's not going to feed the whole world," he said. Optimists say it might provide 20 per cent of the world's protein when fully developed, he added.

For now, it's a capital-intensive industry, and many of the experimental operations are owned by large companies. Oregon Aqua Foods, for example, is owned by Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., one of the world's largest wood products firms.

To the north, in Washington's Puget Sound, Domesea, owned by Union Carbide, raises salmon to pan size in huge net pens in

Tapas are tempting

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Those who travel in Spain always return to comment on the mixed up dining hours they encounter. Even as the Spanish become more urbanized and take less time at noon for lunches at home followed by a siesta, the sophisticated hour for dinner is rarely before 10 p.m. More normally in Spain you'll find guests gathering for their aperitifs of sherry and tapas (hors d'oeuvres) at that hour and dining at midnight. Fish or seafoods are included as part of a several course meal for lunch or dinner, which always is topped off with fresh fruit and a delectable dessert, with the fine Spanish wines and sherries served throughout the meal.

SPICY STUFFED MUSHROOMS

18 medium size mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 shallots chopped
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1 package (8 ounces) imported cream cheese with herbs and garlic
1/3 cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup coarsely chopped pecans
2 tablespoons Fino Sherry Salt
Additional pecan halves

Remove stems from mushrooms. Wash caps and dry thoroughly. In a small skillet, heat butter and saute shallots until golden. Cool. Mash cream cheese in a bowl until fluffy. Stir in sauteed onions and their drippings. Stir in cream cheese with herbs and garlic, bread crumbs, pecans and sherry. Season to taste with salt. Use mixture to stuff mushroom caps. Decorate with pecan halves. These mushrooms can be eaten cold or then can be heated in a 400-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes until golden brown. They also can be broiled for 5 minutes or until cheese is melty. If broiled, garnish with pecan halves after boiling. Makes 18 stuffed mushrooms.

FILLETS A L'ORANGE

1/3 cup olive oil
1 large onion, chopped
½ cup finely chopped celery
2 ripe tomatoes, cored and chopped
1 cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup Fino Sherry
1½ cups orange juice
¼ cup flour mixed with remaining oil
6 flounder fillets
Salt and pepper

In a skillet, heat one-fourth cup of the oil and saute onion and celery until soft, about 5 minutes. Stir in tomatoes and simmer until tomatoes are mushy. Stir in bread crumbs and one-fourth cup of the sherry. Cool. In a saucepan, mix remaining sherry and orange juice. Stir in flour mixed with remaining oil. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Season sauce with salt and pepper, if desired. Sprinkle fillets with salt and pepper. Spread bread crumb mixture evenly on fillets. Roll up fillets like a jelly roll and place seam side down in a greased shallow baking pan. Spoon half of the sauce over fish rolls. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes and becomes white. Remove fish rolls to a serving platter with a slotted pancake turner. Heat remaining sauce and spoon over fish rolls. Garnish with orange slices and sprigs of parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Legislature asking for veto power

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California voters will act on a constitutional amendment in November that would give the legislature veto power over a governor's appointment to fill a vacant constitutional office.

The measure would require confirmation by both houses of anyone named as lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction or a member of the Board of Equalization.

The measure by Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, D-San Leandro, won final legislative approval Thursday on 27-7 Senate vote.

It is ACA 94.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

Stick-to-your ribs sauce

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Barbecue meats are part of the summer scene although there are those who use their grills throughout the year, indoors or outdoors. Among the favorites for family dining or entertaining guests who know how to relax are finger-lickin' ribs. Barbecue spareribs take on a special flavor when they have been marinated or precooked and spread with a special sauce before being cooked over charcoal.

FINGER-LICKIN' RIBS

- 2 racks pork spareribs (about 6 pounds)
- Salt and pepper
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed chicken broth, undiluted
- 1 jar (12 ounces) pineapple preserves
- ½ cup chili sauce
- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- 4 cloves garlic, minced

With a sharp knife, trim off all excess fat from spareribs. Trim carefully to remove fat as cooking fat drips on charcoal and causes flares. Sprinkle ribs on all sides with salt and pepper. Place ribs in a shallow pan. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over ribs. Let stand at room temperature 2 hours or refrigerate overnight.

Drain ribs well, reserving marinade. Place ribs on grill rack 8 inches above moderately hot coals. Grill one to one and one-half hours depending on thickness of ribs. Turn ribs. Brush with marinade every 10 minutes. Place ribs on a serving platter and spoon remaining marinade over ribs. Cut into individual ribs to serve. Makes 6 servings.

Caucasians love their traditional food

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

From 1970 to 1975 an American anthropologist, Dr. Sula Benet, made frequent trips — some lasting as long as four months — to do field work in the Soviet Caucasus. That region of the world, a bridge between Asia and Europe, is known for the longevity of many of its people. As Dr. Benet notes, in 1974 she had the pleasure of meeting and knowing a delightful Caucasian woman 139 years old — probably the oldest woman then alive.

In a new book, "How To Live to Be 100," Dr. Benet discusses the factors that make for the longevity. She writes that this group's "rhythmic regularity of life" and their concerned family relationships seem important. In her studies she found that, "Order in daily routines and in the entire arc of life from cradle to grave contributes to the security of the individual and the group. Continuity and regulations in diet, work, sex life and leisure appear to lessen the strain on the body by avoiding sudden discontinuities and changes …

"Children, adults and old people all consume the same diet and seem to have no interest in trying new foods. It is not a matter of having no alternatives, or being confined to locally grown foods; they truly love their traditional foods and see no reason for changes or variety."

She found that the long-living persons eat moderately and have "an extremely high intake of natural vitamins" from fresh vegetables, both cultivated and wild. She discusses their wide use of beans as a high-protein food; their extensive use of spices and herbs — some cultivated and some wild; their common use of nuts and yogurt; their cultivation and enjoyment of fresh fruits as well as fresh vegetables. Their methods of cooking meat, roasting and broiling, tend to eliminate excess fat. "Candy and sweets are not common in the Caucasus, since granulated sugar is somehing of a novelty there."

Dr. Benet does not promise that people in our less relaxed and less family-oriented society, adopting the diet of the long-living people of the Caucasus, will also live to be over 100. But as a delightful bonus, she concludes her book with a chapter of recipes she gathered during her field work. An experienced cook might very well enjoy trying some of them. At our house, our adaptation of the Raisin and Honey Chicken recipe was much enjoyed.

RAISIN AND HONEY CHICKEN

- ½ cup extra long-grain rice
- 3 to 3½-pound broiler-fryer chicken
- Salt
- Wedge of lemon, if desired
- ½ cup raisins
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons honey

Cook rice according to package directions until it is tenderfirm and the water has evaporated; set aside. Wash the chicken in salted water and dry; rub inside and outside with the lemon wedge, if used. Boil the raisins, in just enough water to cover them, for 5 minutes; drain. Transfer the raisins to a small frying pan; add the butter and honey; stir over low heat until hot; add to cooked rice and toss. Stuff into body cavity of chicken; loosely close cavity with small skewers. Place breast-side up in a small, buttered, shallow baking pan; do not cover. Bake in a 350-degree oven, basting occasionally with the drippings, until tender and browned — 1½ hours. Makes 4 to 5 servings. Adapted from "How To Live to Be 100" by Sula Benet (Dial Press).

Buffalo: is it profitable?

MITCHELL, S.D. (AP) — Ralph Mahoney might advise livestock farmers who are troubled by high operating costs and low prices to raise buffalo.

"For one thing, buffalo are a lot more profitable," said Mahoney, of rural Mitchell.

Not only does buffalo meat bring about double the price of regular beef, Mahoney said in an interview, but buffalo take much less feed.

"We can feed three buffalo for about what it takes to feed one regular cow," he said, adding that buffalo gain weight at about the same rate as regular cattle.

"Buffalo is identical to beef in cooking," Mahoney's wife noted. "It doesn't have the wild taste some people expect it to have, but it is a little coarser."

Mahoney says the unpredictable nature of the buffalo is his greatest concern.

"After a while you get too used to working with them, and you let your guard down," he said. "But buffalo are not animals to be trusted."

Mahoney works fulltime with the South Dakota Air National Guard and farms the family's 1,400 acres.

He recalled that 13 years ago he read an article about a man who raised buffalo. "I made up my mind right then to make the call to buy some," he said.

His first purchase was five buffalo. The herd now totals 150 head.

Mahoney has tried crossbreeding between buffalo and other cattle.

"It is rather difficult to always get a good cross," he said, but the crossbred calves that do result are pretty interesting to study to see which traits are carried over."

He said there is more demand for pure buffalo than for meat from the crosses. Most of the buffalo he sells goes to organizations that hold special buffalo barbecues, or to restaurants in the area that feature the meat on their menus.

Does home canning really save money?

By Gaynor Maddox

We received several letters expressing resentment over the question raised in this column about the savings in money through home gardening and home canning of fruits and vegetables.

Our remarks were anything but personal. They were based on scientific studies by experts in agriculture and home finances.

Today, with so much stress on costs in money and energy, the question persists: were they economical to put up? Perhaps commercially canned fruits and vegetables were not so good in the past. But today they can be excellent.

Here is another scientific comparison between the costs of home canning and commercial products (green beans and tomatoes). It was made at Michigan State University in East Lansing. Two Extension Specialists conducted it for the University's Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition. Here follows a brief summary of the report made by Theodore Wishnetsky, Ph.D., and Jerry N. Cash, Ph.D.

There are inherent uncertainties in the calculation of gardening and canning expenses — particularly gardening costs. Variations in weather conditions constitute the major area of uncertainty, affecting total yield and cost.

Some argue that fertilizer, pesticide, and/or water are not essential to home gardening, and should be omitted as cost items. But omitting use of them would reduce yields substantially, thereby raising rather than lowering the per bushel cost of growing the commodity, the author says.

Capital costs (tools, equipment, etc.) will not apply at all to some home gardeners and canners, in part to others, and in full to still others. Two sets of values are therefore computed for capital cost items. The higher value was derived by assigning the entire capital cost to the first year's gardening-canning operation. The lower figure assumed a 20-year usage of capital items with costs prorated over that period.

The assumption that all of the harvested product will be usable for home canning is open to question, particularly in the case of tomatoes. Much of what is harvested may be in small quantities — too small to be worth bothering with in a home canning operation. That which is not canned but can be used fresh will not materially change the costs computed in this study. However,

Peanuts have real value

Peanuts have been an important part of American history and cuisine since the early settling of the New World. In fact, many delicious peanut dishes date back to colonial days when they provided basic sustenance as a common crop in the plantation garden.

Today's modern cook may not realize what a delightful source of protein the peanut can be. In addition to the peanut butter sandwich, peanuts can add elegance and flavor to any hostess' menu along with nourishing protein that our American snacking and quick eating habits so often lack. Peanuts and peanut butter are also the most economical source of protein available to the consumer today.

Peanuts have been called "Natures Masterpiece of Food Values" and no wonder. Besides peanuts carrying 26 protein grams and peanut butter carrying almost 28 grams, they contain many of the essential B vitamins (Thiamin, Riboflavin, Niacin), polyunsaturated fats and a balanced share of calories.

"Calorie balance is the important aspect to remember," according to Betsy Owens, director, Growers' Peanut Food Promotions. "Calories properly balanced with energy-giving proteins are essential as they provide quick energy. Weight watchers should not worry about eating peanuts as quick energy burns up calories and builds muscle."

Peanuts and peanut butter also contain appreciable amounts of calcium, phosphores, potassium, iron and magnesium.

The peanut can help the shopper stay within his or her food budget while giving the family plenty of protein. For somewhere around a nickle or a little more, depending on how thickly spread, you can have a peanut butter sandwich. The cheapest meat for a sandwich would probably cost in excess of 15 cents. Since the protein amounts in peanut butter and meat are about the same, the shopper is wise to choose peanut butter as an economical, nutritional sandwich.

A terrific trio is a peanut butter sandwich, a glass of milk and an orange. Nutritionally, their inherent proteins, vitamins and amino acids balance each other perfectly, giving the ultimate in nutrition for less than 50 cents.

But peanuts aren't restricted to snack items or peanut butter sandwiches in a diet. They can be added to vegetables, gravy, salads, breads, hors d'oeuvre, desserts and used in main dishes such as chili, pork, ham, pizza, beef and chicken. They can also be used in sauces, fondues, rarebit and quiche. In fact, there's no limit to the uses of peanuts and peanut butter in the American cuisine.

Foldovers flag kids down

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Children often are so anxious to run outdoors to play that it is difficult to corral them for something nourishing to eat. Flag them down, for breakfast or lunch, with banana-peanut foldovers. These are pancakes filled with sliced bananas and spread with peanut butter. Top with heated maple-blended syrup or some fresh fruit jam or preserves. Some youngsters may just grab a filled pancake to eat on the run, without syrup. A glass of orange juice and milk round out this healthful meal.

BANANA FOLDOVERS

1 cup pancake mix
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon vegetable oil or melted shortening
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup creamy peanut butter medium-size bananas
Maple-blended syrup, heated

Combine pancake mix, milk, egg, shortening and nutmeg in bowl. Stir until batter is fairly smooth. For each pancake, pour about one-third batter onto hot (400-degree) lightly greased griddle. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with bubbles and edges look cooked. Turn only once.

Cut each banana in half. Slice each half lengthwise through center. For each serving, spread one side of two pancakes with peanut butter. Place one banana piece on peanut butter side of pancakes; fold pancakes over banana. Serve with syrup. Makes 4 servings.

POTATO CHIP STUFFING

Use potato chips in new stuffing

A really versatile stuffing from New England. Us it for turkey, chicken, game hens or duckling and see if anyone can guess what gives this stuffing its unique flavor. Coarsely crumbled potato chips, of course!

NEW ENGLAND POTATO STUFFING FOR POULTRY

Makes enough stuffing for a 10 pound turkey or 2 - 4 pound roasting chickens or 8 game hens or 2 - 4 pound ducklings

½ cup butter or margarine
1 onion, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
10 slices white bread, cut into ½ inch cubes
1 cup finely crushed potato chips
1 cup chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry dressing
¼ cup chopped parsley

This stuffing may be stuffed into poultry or can be baked in a separate casserole for 1 hour long with the roasting poultry. In a skillet, heat butter and saute onion, celery and mushrooms until golden, about 5 minutes. Pour mixture with drippings into a bowl. Stir in bread, potato chips, broth, salt, poultry seasoning and parsley. Toss to blend well. Stuff poultry just before it is ready to be roasted or pile stuffing into a greased 2½ quart casserole for baking separately.

produce that spoils or is given away cannot be ignored as an additional cost factor which raises the net cost per bushel.

For home canners who buy rather than grow their product for canning, a cost comparison can be made only by use of local prices (farmers market, roadside market, or supermarket), and these will vary greatly from year to year.

the sound. It hopes to sell a million pounds of fish this year. Domesea hasn't shown a profit yet.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has found that a name change often helps introduce an unfamiliar species into the American market.

Blowfish tails, for example. The fisheries service changed the name to sea squabs. And they sold like hotcakes.

Grilled turkey for July 4

This 200th Fourth of July calls for something special in the way of a celebration.

You're likely planning on a bigger collection of family and friends than usual around the backyard grill. And you'd probably like to serve something other than hamburger or hot dogs without doing in the budget completely. It's the perfect time to introduce yourself to the delights of turkey on the grill.

Yes, turkey. The festive bird has come a long way from year-end, holidays-only eating. According to the National Turkey Federation, about a quarter of the turkeys raised go to market between July and September and most of these are barbequed in one form or another.

Not only is turkey a native delicacy, as seems only right for our national birthday party, but, it recommends itself for a number of other reasons. It will feed quite a group — and at a lower price per pound than 15 years ago. And it's high in protein, low in carlories and cholesterol. No wonder it's a general favorite!

Grilling it on a rotisserie or oven-type barbecue unit is simpler than you might think.

Check the grill manufacturer's direction for procedures and to see if you're limited as to turkey size. Thaw and prepare the turkey as usual for roasting, but don't stuff the bird if you're going to rotisserie-cook it. Fasten wings and drumsticks for a better-looking finished turkey. Place a foil drip pan under the bird, but not on coals.

Consult the turkey package to help estimate cooking time. Many variables can affect exact timing, including the type of grill and fuel, turkey size and age, distance from heat, basting procedures and, if you're using an oven-type grill, how often you lift the cover to peek.

The small pop-up gauges which come inserted in many turkeys are good insurance, because they take into account all these variables. Whatever the cooking conditions, the gauges measure only internal meat temperature. When it's right, and only then, the gauge's red center pops into view and you can be sure the birthday bird is at its best for serving.

So the chef at your house can have a glorious, and relaxed, Fourth, along with the rest of the crowd around the grill.

Have a change of pace with these frank dishes

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Good weather during summer months brings most people outdoors, if only to swing in a hammock. It usually means increased appetites and a desire for relaxed eating. The favored frankfurter or hot dog fits outdoor eating demands but it can be worked in different guises to surprise family and guests.

Frank rolls make perfect snacks or party appetizers, a sausage jambalaya goes a long way at a pitch-in cookout and franks Wellington adds a hoitie-toitie air to this American staple.

FRANK ROLL

Trim crusts from 8 slices bread (can be rye, white or both). Slightly flatten each with rolling pin and cut in 3 one-inch strips. Cut franks crosswise in thirds. Spread 8 strips of bread with mustard, 8 with cream cheese and 8 with softened blue cheese. Roll each frankfurter section in bread and secure with toothpick. Brush with melted butter and bake in 400-degree oven for about 5 minutes. Serve at once.

SAUSAGE FRANK JAMBALAYA

1 pound hot sausage, cooked and sliced in 1-inch pieces
1 pound frankfurters, sliced in 1-inch pieces
1 pound cooked ham, cut in one-half inch cubes
1 diced green pepper
1 large onion, chopped
1 clove garlic
2 cups raw rice
1 30-ounce can tomatoes
2 cups chicken broth
1 tablespoon basil
1 tablespoon parsley
1 pinch red pepper
1 pinch sugar

Saute garlic in one tablespoon oil. Add onions and green pepper. Combine, sausage and ham, in skillet and heat. Stir in rice, add tomatoes, broth, salt, basil, parsley, red pepper and pinch sugar. Cover, bring to boil and cook about 30 minutes until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Add franks during last 10 minutes. Makes 12 servings.

FRANKS WELLINGTON

1 pound ground beef
1 egg slightly beaten
½ cup bread crumbs
8 ounce can tomato sauce
¼ cup grated sharp cheese
½ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon parsley
1 pound frankfurters

Combine ground beef, egg, bread crumbs, tomato sauce, grated cheese and seasonings and mix well. Mixture should be fairly stiff. Enclose each frankfurter in the ground beef mixture to form a blanket about one-fourth inch thick. Dust each Wellington with flour and saute in fry pan in melted butter or margarine until browned on all sides, about 10 to 15 minutes. Remove to baking dish. Bake covered in 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Uncover and continue baking 20 minutes or until done. Remove from oven. Top each with whole cranberry sauce and broil about two minutes.

Hostess tells party secrets

By Cecily Brownstone

How does a person without help manage to give parties and never lose his or her cool?

Of all the people we know who entertain singlehandedly, Irma Rhode is the best organized. It's true that she is now retired and has plenty of time, but even when she worked at a full-time job she entertained with the utmost ease.

Rhode's secret is to plan ahead — and to stick to the plan. She tells just how to do this in her new book, "Cool Entertaining." Chapters are devoted to hors d'oeuvres, soups, fish and shellfish, meat and poultry, salads, desserts and drinks that may be served for cold suppers to company. Throughout the book there is a fine concern for practicality and economy.

This system may have as many rewards for you as it has had for Rhode. In his introduction to "Cool Entertaining," James Beard says that he has known Irma Rhode for almost 40 years and that "her enthusiasm, her delight in entertaining and her vast knowledge of food and drink have given her a full, rich life. She is always bubbling ... her sense of humor is a perpetual delight."

Tried at our house, we found Rhode's Herring Salad delicious to serve at a buffet supper at any time of year.

HERRING SALAD

2-pound turkey hindquarter (cooked, skinned, boned and diced), about 2 cups
3 potatoes (cooked, peeled and diced), about 1½ cups
1 can (8½ ounces) beets, drained and minced
3 to 4 small firm dill pickles (minced), about ½ cup
2 tablespoons capers
2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
1 jar (8 ounces) marinated herrint tidbits, drained and minced
Dressing, see below

Mix together well all the ingredients, adding enough of the Dressing to coat them; there should not be any liquid. Refrigerate overnight before serving to allow flavors to blend. Makes 2 quarts plus.

Dressing: Beat together ½ cup salad oil, 1 tablespoon wine vinegar and 2 tablespoons red wine. Dissolve 1 chicken bouillon cube in 3 tablespoons warm water and blend with ½ teaspoon dry mustard; beat into oil mixture.

Fruit, bran are great pair

Cereals aren't just to eat out of a bowl. And fresh California nectarines aren't just delicious fruit to slice on top of cereal. But nectarines and bran are still great go-togethers, as in this moist, naturally delicious "Nectarine Bran Loaf". As in most bran recipes, the cereal is soaked in a liquid but this time the liquid is a golden puree of fresh nectarines. With a beginning like that, the finished loaf has to be something special. Last addition to the aromatic batter is a half-cup of chopped walnuts for crunch. Then into the oven it goes to spread temptation through the air with its nectarine-bran fragrance Resist temptation until it cools a bit, then enjoy it warm, cold or toasted.

For additional recipes and serving suggestions for this and other summer fruits, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to "The Fruits of Summer", P.O. Box 255383, Sacramento, CA 95825. You'll receive a 48-page cookbooklet with luscious color illustrations of more than 100 ways to serve California fruits.

NECTARINE BRAN LOAF

2 medium-size fresh California nectarines
1 cup wheat bran cereal
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
1/3 cup shortening
2/3 cup sugar
2 large eggs
½ cup chopped walnuts

Halve, core and dice unpared nectarines into blender jar and blend until finely pureed to measure 1 cup. Combine with bran cereal and let stand while measuring remaining ingredients. Resift flour with baking powder, salt and soda. Cream shortening and sugar together well. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add nectarine-bran mixture. Stir in flour mixture until all of flour is moistened. Fold in walnuts. Turn into well greased loaf pan (8½ x 4½ x 2½ inches). Bake below oven center in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) about 1 hour, just until loaf tests done. Let stand 10 minutes, then turn out onto wire rack to cool.

Makes 1 loaf.

Ten blind men climb mountain

KOTA KINABALU, Malaysia (AP) — Ten blind Malaysians have climbed 13,455-foot Mt. Kinabalu, Southeast Asia's highest mountain.

The Sabah state government presented certificates of achievement to the successful mountaineers at a victory dinner Sunday night.

Mt. Kinabalu, on the northern coast of Borneo in the Malaysian state of Sabah, is a pyramid-shaped mountain often climbed by tourists. A worn but difficult path leads up the rocky slope, and the chief danger is sudden violent thunderstorms or radical drops in temperature.

More than 40 blind persons applied to make the climb. After physical tests and climbing smaller hills, 11 were chosen for the Kinabalu expedition.

Expert mountaineers guided the climbers, who were tied together with ropes. One man quit at 11,000 feet because he was tired, but the other 10 made it to the summit and back.

Lankasa Padat, 33, was the first to the top. Ragip Anak Mutai held the flag of Sarawak into the wind and shouted "victory" in the dialect of the Iban headhunters of his state.

"It was just like a dream," said 20-year-old Mohamed Nor.

"It proves that the blind, if given the opportunity and guidance, can do what the normal sighted individual does," said the president of the Sabah Society for the Blind, Michael Chin.

The climb was completed Friday.

NECTARINE CHEESE SOUFFLE — Cut 1½ pounds nectarines in wedges. Whir in electric blender. Remove. Whir 1 cup cottage cheese in blender. Soften one envelope plain gelatin in water. Stir over low heat until dissolved. Combine with nectarine puree, cheese, 2/3 cup of sugar, 1 cup dairy sour cream, ¼ teaspoon almond extract and ¼ teaspoon salt. Chill until it begins to thicken. Fold in 1 cup whipping cream. Turn into 1-quart souffle dish with 2-inch oiled foil collar. Chill until set. Gently remove collar. Garnish with whip cream.

Nutritional school lunches

What are the schools really feeding your children? According to the California School Food Service Association, for the most part it's what the federal government calls a Type A school lunch.

The goal of a Type A lunch is to provide at least one-third of the recommended daily dietary allowances as established by the National Reserach Council of the National Academy of Sciences.

Federal regulations require that Type A lunches include selections from each of the Four Food Groups (milk, meat, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals), as well as a specified amount of butter or fortified margarine.

The Type A lunch pattern is nutritionally balanced to provide the nutrients — proteins, vitamins and minerals and fats and carbohydrates — that children need for good health and normal growth.

Many schools offer several variations of the Type A lunch including a hot lunch, box lunch, salad lunch, combo or deli lunch.

A hot lunch could include lasagne, corn, shredded lettuce and tomato salad, buttered french roll, raw fruit in season and milk.

A box lunch need not be limited to sandwich type menus. It could include, for example, a cheeseburger with lettuce and tomato, french fried potatoes, celery and carrot sticks, canned peaches, peanut butter brownie and milk.

A salad lunch could consist of tuna salad with hard cooked egg wedges and salad greens, carrot curls and cherry tomatoes, buttered wholewheat roll and milk.

The combo and the deli lunch are offered only at the high school level. A combo lunch could include an eight-ounce milkshake, namburger with lettuce and tomato on buttered bun and french fries.

The deli lunch offers high school students a chance to make their own choices from a selection of buttered breads, meats and cheeses. The lunch also includes a tossed green salad and milk.

Singer, Campbell on different paths

The uncertain direction of professional sports is aptly illustrated in the case of three valley pitching products.

Rollie Fingers is waiting for the courts to decide whether he will play in Oakland or Boston. Bill Campbell is making up his own mind about where he will pitch next year.

Bill Singer KNOWS where he will be but isn't overwhelmed by the knowledge. Singer and Campbell, both Pomona products, are teammates with the Minnesota Twins.

Campbell is playing out his option and might not even be in the American League next year. But Singer signed a multi-year contract with the Texas Rangers and then was traded to the Twins in the deal which sent Bert Blyleven to Texas.

Talking with the two in the visitors' dugout at Anaheim Stadium recently, the difference in outlook was noticeable.

Singer, who had been smiling and greeting friends and acquaintances in the stands, sobered abruptly and appeared glum when the subject of the trade was brought up.

"It's not easy coming from a pennant contender to a team that hasn't been doing too well," he admitted. "I was very happy with the Ranger organization.

"However, I have the security of a good contract that extends through 1979."

Security is what Campbell is looking for.

"Baseball careers aren't very long on the average anyway," he said. "And relief pitchers don't seem to last as long as starters."

Playing out option

Campbell did not sign a contract this year and is playing out his option. However a managerial change on the club has made him less positive about leaving than he was before.

"I like playing under Mr. (Gene) Mauch." Campbell said. "I like the way he uses his pitchers, especially me. He has a lot of confidence in me, so I get in a lot of games which is what I prefer."

The former Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College hurler admits that any team he signed with would be one in which he would pitch often.

"I want to get in a situation like I'm in now," Campbell said. "If something happens and I don't sign with the Twins I would want to get back into the same kind of situation where I would be the number one man out of the bullpen."

If he does leave Minnesota, Campbell says he'd like to come back to California.

"I got married in the off season," Campbell revealed. "Her name is Carol (Acker), a girl from St. Paul. W've been staying there. But after the season we'll probably come out to San Diego. She likes it out here.

"I like the San Diego area. So the Padres wouldn't be a bad club to play for and they look like they're going to have a contending ball club."

Campbell was asked kiddingly if he would like to go to Oakland.

"Well, Rollie Fingers is still up there," he said seriously. "He'd be tough to beat out (as top reliever)."

Prefers relieving

Campbell started and relieved last year, but didn't like it.

"I'd rather pitch in relief," he said. "You get into more games. I'm much happier in the bullpen."

Last year was not a real good year for the 6-3, 190-pound righthander.

"I hurt my arm in spring training," he said, "and it took a while to catch up. I wasn't pitching too well and I had to start a few games to work myself into better shape.

"After a while I came around, but it was a little late . . . the last two months of the season. But I did shut out a couple of teams."

Campbell went to Venezuela and played winter ball.

"Had a real good year," he recalled. "Started all the time. Pitched a few complete games including a few shutouts. Think I was 9-7 overall, but I had a 1.80 earned run average. But I still prefer to relieve."

Bill is calling the shots now so when he signs a contract, with whatever club he chooses, it will be as a relief pitcher.

HERE 'N THERE — San Diego's Peter Graham, who ran into tough luck trying to keep the Mariners' WHA franchise afloat, is having a difficult time with the San Diego Sports Arena which he manages.

Between Oct. 1, 1975 and March 3, 1976, the S.D. Sports Arena lost $143,871 WITH the Mariners in operation. The only month the arena showed a profit was March thanks to the NCAA basketball championships.

Ironically, the NCAA executives reportedly are so unhappy with the lack of cooperation from Graham's organization, that they are unlikely to return there as long as Graham is the man in charge.

Kingman continues tear with 27th HR of year

When Dave Kingman speaks, everyone listens. When he hits, everyone watches.

The New York Mets' strongman commands attention and gets respect everywhere he goes these days, especially from National League pitchers.

"I think I'm back in the groove," says the tall, powerful outfielder. "I'm just picking up the ball good. I think I have a nice, fluid motion now."

That awe-inspiring motion has muscled out the most home runs in the major leagues so far this season, including Tuesday night's two-run blast that carried the streaking Mets to a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. It was Kingman's 27th homer, putting him on a collision course with Hack Wilson's National League record of 56.

"It's a funny thing about baseball," said Kingman. "You never know why you get out of a groove and you never know why you get back in. Home runs seem to come in bunches."

While talking freely about his upswing, Kingman shut out sports writers on one topic—the home run record.

"I don't know anything about Hack Wilson and I don't want to know anything about him," Kingman said icily after a reporter posed a question. "Don't quote me on any record, I don't want to know about it."

Kingman then stared down the writers and left them wordless in their tracks.

"Good night, gentlemen," he said, turning on his heel.

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 2-1; the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Chicago Cubs 10-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1; the Houston Astros outscored the San Francisco Giants 4-3 and the Cincinnati Reds routed the San Diego Padres 12-5 in 14 innings.

While Kingman was doing the hitting, Mickey Lolich was doing the pitching as the Mets won their sixth straight game. Lolich pitched a three-hitter to gain his first National League shutout after 39 with the Detroit Tigers in the American League.

Kingman lined the first pitch thrown to him by Pete Falcone in the first inning over the left field fence after Joe Torre had doubled. The ball landed at the 442-foot marker beyond the fence.

Kingman now has 62 runs batted in after 76 games. Of that total, 49 have come as a result of homers.

Phillies 2, Expos 1

Dick Allen scored from third on a squeeze bunt in the ninth to give Philadelphia its victory over Montreal. Allen led off the ninth with a single and went to third on Jay Johnstone's base hit. After Garry Maddox flied out, Bob Boone laid down a bunt on the first base side and Allen raced home with the winning run.

The Expos had tied the score 1-1 in the bottom of the seventh on Barry Foote's home run. It was Foote's fifth homer of ths season and came against Philadelphia starter Jim Kaat. Kaat was replaced by reliever Gene Garber, 3-1. Dale Murray, 0-6, was the loser in relief of Don Stanhouse. Stanhouse had to leave the game after eight innings because of a painful left leg.

Pirates 10, Cubs 1

John Candelaria pitched a three-hitter and contributed a two-run triple to an eight-run first inning as Pittsburgh defeated Chicago. Candelaria, 7-4, stopped the Cubs without a hit until Jose Cardenal singled to center with two outs in the sixth inning.

Only five balls were hit out of the infield in the first eight innings, and there was one out in the eighth before he gave up another hit, a single by Mick Kelleher. The only Chicago run came on Bill Madlock's ninth home run, in the ninth inning.

Astros 4, Giants 3

Cliff Johnson's two-run triple capped a three-run eighth inning rally that lifted Houston over San Francisco. All four Astros' runs were unearned, thanks to four errors by the Giants who were given a tongue-lashing by Manager Bill Rigney prior to the game for their last-place play.

Reds 12, Padres 5

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum's leadoff homer in the 14th inning ignited a seven-run rally that gave Cincinnati its victory over San Diego. Following Lum's blast and a two-run triple by Cesar Geronimo, a solo homer by Dave Concepcion finally put the four-hour game out of reach for the Padres.

Evonne to meet Chris

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., defeated Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 today to gain the women's singles final of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

On Friday Miss Evert will meet Australia's Evonne Goolagong who overwhelmed Britain's Virginia Wade 6-1, 6-2 in today's earlier semifinal.

The beefy Czech woman, who lives in Beverley Hills, Calif., fought back strongly in the later stages of the match and Miss Evert was often hustled out of her stride. The American, favorite for the title she won two years ago, had lost only 10 games in the previous five rounds, and had not dropped a set.

A packed crowd of 17,000 on the center court sat silent as Miss wade made a string of errors. Obviously nervous, she failed to get her first service in and missed volleys.

After winning the first two games Miss Goolagong dropped her service to love, and it looked as if Miss Wade might be settling down. But the Australian then won eight games in a row, which took her through the first set and to 4-0 in the second.

The match was then virtually over. Miss Wade tightened up on her forehand, which had been sadly erratic, and held service for 1-4. She led 40-0 on Miss Goolagong's service in the next game, but the Australian came back with sharp volleying and got out of trouble.

The last two games went with service. Miss Wade saved a match point with a backhand return which dropped in the corner, but she then missed badly with a forehand and a backhand and the match was over.

Miss Goolagong has twice been in the final since he 1971 victory, losing to Billie Jean King each time.

Sandoval rates favorite's role

LOS ANGELES — Unbeaten Alberto Sandoval, 9-0 with six knockouts, rules an 8-5 favorite over veteran Alberto Cabanig, 37-8-5 with 19 knockouts, in Thursday's 10 round main event at the Olympic Auditorium.

Olympic matchmaker Don Chargin says he will sign the winner to meet newly crowned State Super Bantamweight champ Jose del Rio who knocked out Young Casanova in six rounds last Thursday.

BIG SWING

Dave Kingman of the New York Mets takes a mighty swing at a pitch in game with St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night. Kingman, major league home run leader, hit number 27.

Sosa saves Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elias Sosa, in only his second appearance with the Los Angeles Dodgers, entered the game in a rather critical situation.

It was the top of the ninth inning Tuesday night, the Dodgers led Atlanta by a single run, but the Braves had the bases loaded, only one out and —get this — a 3-1 count on the batter, Rod Gilbreath.

"I've never been called into a situation like that," the Dominican-born Sosa said afterward.

He threw one pitch to Gilbreath and he grounded it sharply to third baseman Lee Lacy who fired to the plate to start a double play and the Dodgers got away with a 2-1 victory.

"It was a tough spot to bring him into the game," Dodger Manager Walt Alston said, "but when it got to 3-1 we had to have a strike and a fastball is the best pitch to throw a strike with. So I went for Sosa."

The triumph kept the Dodgers within 4½ games of Cincinnati in the National League West.

Tommy John earned the victory, his third straight and fifth in nine decisions, and it was his squeeze bunt that proved decisive.

That was in the second innings when the Dodgers scored twice against loser Roger Moret, 3-3, to overcome the Braves' 1-0 lead in the first.

Rolland Office led off the Braves' first with a double and eventually scored on Jimmy Wynn's sacrifice fly.

In the Dodgers' half of the second a walk to Reggie Smith and singles by Lacy and Dusty Baker tied the game. It was only Baker's fourth run batted in of the month and besides scoring Smith it sent Lacy to third and after Steve Yeager struck out John squeezed home Lacy.

It remained to 2-1 but Atlanta threatened in the eighth when Willie Montanez and Tom Paciorek singled after two were out. Charlie Hough took over for John, struck out Earl Williams but then got into trouble in the ninth when he walked Darrel Chaney and pinch hitter Ken Henderson and after striking out pinch-hittier Craig Robinson, Office singled to right to fill the bases.

The count went to 3-1 on Gilbreath when Alston dramatically called Sosa into the game. He threw just one pitch but it was enough.

DODGER DATA — Burt Hooton (5-8) and knuckleballer Phil Niekro (7-4) will be the pitchers in tonight's series finale at 7:30 p.m.

Tanana fastballs too much for Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Tanana didn't exactly throw the proverbial glove out on the mound to defeat the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night, but he came as close to it as possible.

The crafty lefthander, using mainly fastballs and changeups, hurled the California Angels to a 4-1 victory, although he was making his first appearance in 15 days because of a strained muscle in his left forearm.

Boosting his season record to 9-5 and holding 3-0 edge over the Sox this year and 7-1 lifetime, Tanana called the triumph "one of the most satisfying wins I've ever had."

Working without his famed curve ball, Tanana threw little more than fastballs and offspeed pitches as he turned in his eleventh complete game of the season and missed a shutout by an eyelash.

Tanana held a 2-0 lead going into the eighth inning when the Sox loaded the bases on singles by Buddy Bradford, Kevin Bell and Bill Stein.

Dave Collins' two-run homer in the ninth eased Tanana's task.

The Angels scored their first two runs on a couple of wayward doubles involving centerfielder Lemon.

Tommy Davis hit a fly ball to center in the second inning which Lemon got a bad jump on and Davis reached second for a double. Ron Jackson singled him home. Andy Etchebarren lifted a fly ball to right center in the third and Lemon, after calling Bradford off the ball, failed to make the catch. Etchebarren was credited with a double and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Jerry Remy.

Tanana admitted to throwing only five curves and none before the seventh inning.

"I threw mostly off-speed with a little heat here and a little there," said Tanana. "I was trying to save the elbow for when I need it. There was no pain. I could have thrown more curves but as long as I was getting them out I didn't have to."

Going into the eighth inning, Tanana had given up only three hits and had faced only two batters over the minimum. One Chicago runner was wiped out in a double play and another was erased attempting to steal.

"It was a gutty performance without a doubt," said California Manager Dick Willliams. "He told us before the game what he planned to do. I didn't think of taking him out in the eighth. Bell's hit was a ground ball which could have been a double play and Stein stuck his bat out to get his hit."

Sox Manager Paul Richards said he thought Francisco Barrios threw a fine game, although he suffered his third loss against one victory. Barrios was a late replacement for Rich Gossage, who came up with a tender elbow.

The two teams will meet again tonight, with Chicago's Jesse Jefferson 2-2, going against Gary Ross, 5-9.

Diane de Leeuw goes pro

NEW YORK (AP) — At 20, Olympic silver medalist figure skater Dianne de Leeuw will be facing a new group of judges who may be more critical than any she previously encountered.

Miss de Leeuw, the world champion in 1975, said Tuesday she has turned professional and will be the star of the 1977 Holiday On Ice show. She signed a two-year contract, but no figures were disclosed.

The contract was the payoff for a long, tedious development which began when she was 4, and Mr. and Mrs. Garry de Leeuw brought their daughter a pair of skates.

"I'd estimate that my parents spent approximately $100,000 since then for my skating," said Miss de Leeuw, who competed for The Netherlands in the 1972 and 1976 Olympics, although her home is in Los Angeles.

"My parents were Dutch immigrants and a lot was made of my not representing the United States this year. I think televison really made something of it," she said. "They made it seem that because of my dual citizenship I was doing something wrong.

"However, people got the false impression that I just went over to Holland to make their team. I won the Dutch Nationals six years. I have no regrets over my decision. My success in international competition proves I would have done well if I had elected to seek a place on the American team," the green-eyed skater said.

Olympic champion Dorothy Hamill, a three-time American champion, would have been Miss de Leeuw's top opponent if she had entered competition in this country. Instead, they had their competition on the international level.

Now the two women will be appearing as stars in competing ice shows. Miss Hamill is the featured skater in the Ice Capades.

"I don't figure Dorothy and I will be competing and I don't think either of us will worry about the other's performance," Miss de Leeuw said. "Each will try to do well as an individual and that's what we've been doing all along. You don't compete in figure skating on the basis of someone else's performance. You do the best you can and let the judges decide.

Being a pro will cause a few changes in Dianne's life, but she doesn't anticipate it will make much change in her social life.

"I may go out a little more. It was hard to date when you knew you had to get up at 5 a.m. But, there will be a lot of traveling in my new role," she said.

TURNS PRO

Dianne de Leeuw, world champion figure skater in 1975, announced Tuesday that she has signed a two-year contract and will star in the 1977 Holiday on Ice production.

Women cost Connors title —Bill Riordan

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The two women in Jimmy Connors' life—his mother and glamorous girlfriend—cost him the Wimbledon championship, his ex-manager, Bill Riordan, charged tuesday.

Riordan spoke to reporters as the dejected Connors drove off in a Mercedes with his girlfriend, former Miss World Marjorie Wallace, after being knocked out of the tournament.

Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., upset the topseeded Connors of Belleville, Ill., in Tuesday's quarter-finals 6-4, 6-2, 8-6.

"When you are playing tennis at this level," Riordan said, "you can't afford to be rushing around after your girls all the time. He should not have to look after anyone.

"If I was involved I would have sent Marjie home," said Riordan, who is suing the 23-year-old Connors over his dismissal last year.

"She is obviously a distraction. It is a question of him having to wait on her, she has to have tickets, and she is looked after. That is not what his mind should be on."

Riordan said he has "nothing against Marjie personally. I think she is very charming, but on this occasion she just shouldn't have been there."

Riordan added that he believed Mrs. Gloria Connors has possibly taken too big a part in her son's life and that Connors is suffering from "too much momism."

Remillard promoted

Assistant Swimming Coach Page Remillard has been elevated to the head coaching position at Claremont-Mudd Colleges. Remillard will replace Tom Grall who has resigned to accept the assignment as Acquatics Director at La Salle College, Philadelphia, Pa.

This marks the second promotion for Remillard within the past 60 days. In early May he was named head coach for the Stag Water Polo Squad.

Remillard graduated from Bonita High School in 1966 and was a 1974 graduate of Cal Poly. He is currently completing graduate work at La Verne College.

Athletic Director Dr. William Arce said today that the Colleges were fortunate to have a top assistant able to move up to the head coaching position.

"Page knows our athletes and the type of program we expect. We all expect him to carry on a fine Stag swimming tradition," Arce said.

Capra sharp in 'debut'

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Buzz Capra, shipped to the minor leagues to test his pitching arm, hurled three scoreless innings Tuesday night in his first regular season appearance in a year.

Capra, a member of the National League All-Star team two years ago, was sent to the Atlanta Braves' farm at Richmond to get needed work rather than keeping him on the major league roster where he probably would have seen little duty.

Capra went three innings against Charleston Tuesday night, giving up one hit. He fanned two and walked three.

The right-hander, who last spent time in the minors in 1973, said the decision to return was partly his.

"I almost went on the road trip, but I figured instead of going out and pitching more batting practice, I might as well get going," Capra said. "I feel good and I'm ready to get in a game situation."

Gilmore price tag set

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago Bulls, coachless and without a general manager, must now decide if they want to spend 1.1 million to obtain the contract of former American Basketball Association star Artis Gilmore.

That's the price tag which went on Gilmore Tuesday when the National Basketball Association announced procedures to handle the drafting of former ABA players, whose teams did not join in the NBA as part of the recent merger agreement.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced the value of Gilmore and 19 other players declared eligible for the draft, which will be held in July after expansion agreements are signed and a district court gives preliminary approval to the proposed settlement with the ABA players and the ABA Players Association.

Gilmore's price represents more than one-third of the $3.08 million value placed on the 20 players. The Bulls can make the decision on whether they want to spend the money for the 7-foot-2 Gilmore since they have the first pick as a reward for compiling the worst record in the NBA last season.

Other draft prices include $500,000 for center-forward Marvin Barnes of the Utah Rockies, $350,000 for center-forward Moses Malone of Utah and $300,000 for center-forward Maurice Lucas of Kentucky.

Kentucky's Louis Dampier, whose 13,726 points made him the league's all-time scoring leader, is available for $20,000.

Fred Lewis, an original member of the league as was Dampier, also is available for $20,000.

Each of the 22 teams in the expanded NBA will have a chance to pick, and if every player isn't selected in the first round the drafting will continue for up to three rounds. The value of each player will be reduced by a specified percentage if he isn't picked in the first round.

There is no doubt the Bulls, who have lacked a strong center for some time, could use Gilmore. He averaged 24.6 points per game and led the ABA in rebounding for a fourth consecutive year with a 15.5 average last season.

However, after agreeing to pay the price for Gilmore, the Bulls would be responsible for his contract. The merger agreement requires the NBA team selecting a former ABA player to assume his contract. In Gilmore's case, it is in six figures for one year. And although there is time remaining before his ABA contract runs out, his agent has let the Bulls know some renegotiating is desired.

In addition, the Bulls have drafted All-American Scott May, the Assocated Press' College Player of the Year last season, and they will have to pay a big sum for his services.

The final decision on selecting Gilmore probably will rest with Arthur Wirtz, one of the Bulls' principal owners. Wirtz, also owner of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, recently obligated some $3 million for hockey star Bobby Orr.

The decision of Wirtz is one of several he is currently facing. He also has to find a replacement for Dick Motta, who left as head coach and general manager after last season.

"I think Artis is cheap at $1.1 million for the Bulls," said Herb Rudoy, Gilmore's attorney. "He's exactly what the Bulls have been waiting for. I think people will be standing in line to purchase season tickets."

Rudoy already has met with Bulls' representatives, but no agreement has been reached.

After Chicago picks, the order of selection will be Atlanta, Kansas City, Detroit, Portland, New York Knicks, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Indiana, Los Angeles, Houston, Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Antonio, Cleveland, New York Nets, Boston, Denver and Golden State.

Other players available and their prices are: Ron Boone, $250,000; Bird Averitt, $125,000; Steve Green, $100,000; Jan van Breda Kolff, $60,000; Randy Denton and Wilbert Jones, $50,000 apiece; John Neumann, $40,000; Allen Murphy, $25,000; Mike D'Antoni, Mike Barr, Barry Parkhill, Jimmy Dan Conner, Jimmy Baker and Ron Thomas, $15,000 apiece.

Money obtained in the draft will be used to pay off the franchises of Kentucky and Utah, which were not included in the merger agreement.

Clubs selecting a player will not have to pay the entire amount immediately. The NBA has a specific timetable which says how soon the money must be paid, depending on the value of the player.

Four former ABA players have been left out of the draft for legal reasons, according to the NBA. They were center Caldwell Jones, who has signed a contract with the Philadelphia 76ers for the 1977-78 season; forward M.L. Carr, who signed with Detroit prior to the merger agreement; guard Don Chaney, a former member of the Boston Celtics, and center-forward Lonnie Shelton, who was drafted by the Knicks in the second round of the NBA's college draft.

Members of the former Virginia Squires were not included in plans for the draft since their team became defunct prior to the merger agreement.

Marinaro moves for running room

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — It is a simple axiom of football that for a running back to be effective, he must be allowed to run. Ed Marinaro never quite understood why the rule didn't apply to him.

"I got to the National Football League as a running back," said Marinaro, "but then, I didn't get the opportunity to run."

Marinaro spent his first four NFL seasons in Minnesota, where the offense is spelled Chuck Foreman running and Fran Tarkenton passing. He left that routine behind Tuesday when, after playing out his option with the Vikings last season, he signed a one-year contract with the New York Jets.

He comes to the Jets after his most productive NFL season. Given a regular starting job for the first time, he caught 54 passes for 462 yards as Foreman's backfield partner. But he had only 101 carries for 358 yards. That is about seven attempts per game, not nearly enough for a running back to prove anything.

"To be effective, a running back has to be given the ball," he said. "Unless you establish yourself as a runner, your position in the starting lineup is always threatened. You never have the opportunity to relax as a football player."

Marinaro considers 15 carries per game the kind of diet a running back should be fed.

"As you become tired as a ball carrier, you relax more," he said. "You do things more naturally. You're not tight. You're not pressing. You move more instinctively."

Marinaro never had to worry about getting the ball at Cornell, where he set an NCAA rushing record by gaining 4,715 yards in 27 varsity games.

"In college, I ran from the I formation," he said. "In that, you run to an area and find what's there. In the pros, I had to adjust to the split backfield. At first, I was not disciplined enough to run to the hole. In time, though, I learned."

Coach Lou Holtz, delighted with the acquisition of Marinaro after losing free agent running back John Riggins to Washington earlier this month, said the Jets might try the I with Marinaro as the tailback.

Riggins, a fullback, had complained about the Jet offense, which he claimed was pass-oriented because of quarterback Joe Namath. Marinaro was asked if that criticism and the continued presence of Namath had given him any second thoughts about coming to New York.

Toros officially changed to Bulls

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Toros have officially become the Birmingham Bulls with the approval of the World Hockey Association's board of governors.

The board of governors announced Tuesday on the first day of a two-day meeting that it had approved the transfer of the team to the Alabama city.

John F. Bassett, owner of the team, announced he would move the Toros from Toronto after a campaign to sell season's tickets for next year was unsuccessful.

The board of governors also announced the realignment of the league into two divisions next year—East and West.

The Birmingham team will play in the East Division with the Quebec Nordiques, New England Whalers, Cincinnati Stingers, Indianapolis Racers and Hollywood, Fla., the former Cleveland Crusaders' franchise.

The West Division will be composed of the Calgary Cowboys, Edmonton Oilers, Winnipeg Jets, Phoenix Roadrunners, Houston Aeros and an anticipated sixth club.

Sports briefs

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Graves, former star running back for the University of California at Berkeley, died in his Balboa Island home June 24 while the house was being fumigated, police said Tuesday. Graves was 54.

Workmen removing the tarp from Graves' house discovered his body on the front porch, said police. He had apparently inhaled toxic methyl bromide fumes used in the fumigation process.

Police reported that Graves apparently forced his way into the house by removing part of the tarp enclosing the hoase, said police spokesmen.

Graves was a star fullback under Pappy Waldorf for the Berkeley Bears in the post-war area.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Furphy resigned Tuesday as head coach of the New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League. Furphy was in his first season as Cosmos' coach.

Gordon Bradley, vice president of player personnel for the NASL team and coach of the Cosmos from 1971-75, will resume the coaching duties until the end of the season.

In resigning, Furphy said, "I have not been satisfied with the conditions under which I was working and I felt it time to make a change."

The Cosmos are second in the Eastern Division with an 8-6 record.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When John Mayberry and George Brett hit home runs for the Kansas City Royals Sunday they not only earned their baseball pay, they acquired a namesake.

John Brett Spoor was born to Mrs. Carol Spoor of Independence, Mo., in Jackson County Hospital Monday, just one day after she watched the team at Royals Stadium.

"I got hooked on baseball about a month ago and really got excited out there Sunday," Mrs. Spoor said Tuesday night. "When they hit those two home runs I figured I would name the baby after them."

Mrs. Spoor and her six-pound boy are fine, hospital officials said.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Wendy Knudson of Colorado State University has gained a berth on the 1976 U.S. OLYMPIC Track and Field team, officials reported Tuesday.

Mrs. Knudson, a junior from Estes Park, Colo., apparently missed a spot on the women's team when she finished fourth in the 800-meter run final last week during Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore.

But Cyndy Poor of San Jose, Calif., who finished second in the 800-meter event, decided to concentrate on the 1,500-meter run, which she won.

SEATTLE (AP) — Goalie Mike Ivanow of the San Jose Earthquakes has been traded to the Seattle Sounders in exchange for a first-round draft choice in 1978, says a spokesman for the local North American Soccer League team.

BROKEN BOW, Neb. — Fifteen quarter horses and one pony worth an estimated $50,000, perished when an early-morning fire gutted a barn at the Custer County Fairgrounds.

NEWPORT, R.I. — Eric Tabarly of France finished first for the second time in the trans-Atlantic singlehanded yacht race.

Rick Wise comes near perfection

AP Sports Writer

Rick Wise sat at his locker and listed the factors involved in pitching perfect baseball: "Good stuff...good control...good defense...good concentration," he said.

Pitch by pitch, it became clear to the 30-year-old righthander that the factors were dropping into place. Inning by inning, with Baltimore batters falling in order, it became clear to the Boston ace the plateau of perfection was within reach.

"I knew I had good stuff from the outset," he said after his one-hit, 2-0 triumph over the Orioles Tuesday night. "I was hitting spots and had them hacking at the ball. I was jamming guys, making them hit the ball up. I just felt I really had it."

Well, he almost did. Paul Blair marred the masterpiece with a sharp, clean single leading off the sixth inning. Only walks to Reggie Jackson and Al Bumbry in the seventh and ninth-innings, respectively, proved the faulty brush strokes in what still was a pitching work of art.

"He had it all tonight," said Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who picked up the list where Wise had left off: "Good fastball, breaking pitches, and—just as important—good location."

All except for a fastball that wasn't fast enough to beat Blair's bat. "I wanted him to try and hit the ball rather than walk him," said Wise after Blair has complied with his wish.

But the hit was no disappointment to Wise, who pitched a no-hitter for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1971, and hurled one-hitters in 1968 and 1972 and another two weeks ago.

"It was no disappointment losing the no-hitter tonight. If it happens in the eighth or ninth it is a different story. It's great to just throw a one-hit shutout. That's not easy, either."

Rick Wise just makes it seem that way.

In the other American League games Tuesday night, California clipped Chicago 4-1; Oakland blasted Texas 8-3; Kansas City defeated Minnesota 1-0; Detroit downed New York 7-5 and Cleveland beat Milwaukee 4-1.

Run-scoring hits by rookie Steve Dillard and Fred Lynn in the eighth inning supported Wise's third shutout of the campaign. The hurler faced just 28 batters, one over the minimum, and needed just 98 pitches to beat Baltimore.

He had a feeling something like that would happen.

"It's funny. Sometimes you have premonitions," said Wise, now 6-5. "The last time I pitched a one-hitter, the guys in the bullpen said I was going to pitch a no-hitter and I thought about that tonight."

So, with only one worry in his mind—"getting guys out"—he went out and nearly fulfilled the prophesy.

A's 8, Rangers 3

Third baseman Sal Bando had a two-run homer and two-run double to lead Oakland's victory over the Rangers. Texas tallies came in the second on run-scoring singles by Jim Sundberg, Gene Clines and Mike Hargrove.

Royals 1, Twins 0

Fred Patek's 10th-inning sacrifice fly scored Hal McRae from third base with an unearned run to give Kansas City pitcher Al Fitzmorris his ninth victory in 13 decisions. McRae had singled and taken second on a throwing error by Minnesota shortstop Roy Smalley. An infield out moved him to third.

The tally ruined a three-hitter by the Twins' Dave Goltz.

Tigers 7, Yankees 5

Home runs by rookie Jason Thompson and Rusty Staub helped bring Detroit to victory from a 4-0 first-inning deficit. The triumph, the Tigers' second in two nights over the AL East leaders, was their eighth in 10 games.

Thurman Munson and Fran Healy drove in two runs each to give New York its 4-0 lead. Chris Chambliss homered in the seventh for a 5-3 Yankee advantage until Detroit scored three in its half of the inning and got insurance on Staub's blast in the eighth.

Indians 4, Brewers 1

Two-run homers by Larvell Blanks and George Hendrick helped Cleveland hand Milwaukee its sixth consecutive loss.

Gems break out of slump, 9-5

Pomona Post 30 broke out of a mid-season slump Tuesday night at Ralph Welch Park by scoring a 9-5 District 18 American Legion victory over San Gabriel Post 442.

The win broke a three-game losing streak for the Gems and left them with a 1-1 record for the second half of District 18 play. Post 30 is now 16-8 on the season.

In other Legion activity Tuesday night, La Verne Post 330 scored an impressive 3-1 win over the visiting Anaheim Legion nine. Claremont Post 78 had its eight-game winning streak snapped, as Upland Post 73 upended the Cardinals 8-4. Both those games were non-league outings.

Post 30 used the mound services of Randy Babineau, Joe Madrigal, Dean Fritchle and Cregg Handy in beating San Gabriel. Madrigal, who pitched the fifth, sixth and seventh, picked up the win.

The Gems erupted for six runs in the fourth to erase a 3-1 San Gabriel advantage, Mike Keegan's triple was the lone extra-base hit for the locals.

La Verne used the outstanding pitching of seldom-used Ralph Ortega and Dennis Wetzel to best a good Anaheim club. Ortega and Wetzel combined to toss a five-hitter, Wetzel picking up the win with five frames of scoreless relief. Post 330 improved its season mark to 19-5 with the victory.

Triples by Steve Benoit and Ortega and a single by Robert Alexander gave Post 330 a 2-0 lead in the second, and the locals picked up their third tally in the fourth without benefit of a hit.

Alexander finished the game with two hits, the only player to have more than one in the well-played contest.

Claremont fell victim to a five-run uprising by Upland in the top of the second Tuesday at Pomona College's diamond. Post 73 jumped on Paul Sokolowski, making his first start of the season, for those five tallies.

Tim Dooling finished up on the hill for the Cardinals, allowing three more scores in the fourth.

Leonard Peacock continued his hot-hitting with two hits, while Dan Healey extended his hitting streak to nine games. Claremont is now 17-10 on the year.

Claremont and La Verne have District 18 contests on tap this evening. Post 78 will travel to Mark Keppel High to play San Gabriel in a 5 p.m. start, while La Verne Post 330 will visit the Azusa Pacific diamond to take on Covina Post 207 in a 5:30 p.m. encounter. Mil Pompa is expected to start for Claremont, and Bill Bumstead is the probable La Verne starter.

Baja racers to go again

Members of the Chaffey College Racing Association are eager to try their luck again next year in the annual Baja 500 off-road race.

The Association, consisting of former students of Chaffey College, had three cars in the race this year, the first time they've had more than one.

All three cars ran well but encountered obstacles that took them out of the race.

Mark Steele, in the Class I number 125 vehicle, was running third after passing Parnelli Jones and Mickey Thompson when disaster struck two thirds of the way through the race.

Rounding a sharp corner while following tracks which he thought indicated the course, Steele ran off a steep embankment.

Both driver and car were still okay, but in trying to drive out, the transmission blew. Steele soon had company as another car, following Steele's tracks, drove off the embankment and struck Steele's car a glancing blow.

Luckily neither driver was injured.

Not so lucky was Karl Hartmetz in the number 238 vehicle. Hartmetz, a co-driver with Dave Fager, was injured in an accident about halfway through the race.

Again, the car had been running fine. But Marquez hit a rock and the car rolled over. The right front wheel was driven back through the fire wall.

Hartmetz was flown to El Centro where his back injuries were diagnosed as 20 percent compression of a vertebra and disc.

Joe Marquez had the number 934 car zipping along through the first two checkpoints and had gone about 150 miles when the engine blew.

All of the members of the association were enthusiastic about the way the cars were running and plan on trying again next year.

"It didn't turn out as well as we would have liked," said spokesman Bob Keeran. "But we sure were competitive."

Keeran originally organized the project. But until this year only the number 238 car had been entered, its fourth time in the race.

The car had originally been donated to the association by Stroppe Engineering. Students rebuilt the car and installed a special racing engine.

"We'll put a Rambler engine into another old car next year and see how it goes," said Keeran.

Gremlin wins IMSA series

DETROIT — For the third consecutive year, the American Motors subcompact Gremlin has won the manufacturer's championship during the first half of the 1976 International Motor Sports Association racing series.

The Gremlin garnered 47 points to capture the top spot. Dodge Colt was second with 35 points, and the Datsun B210 was third with 22.

A Gremlin driven by Gene Felton spearheaded the win with three first place victories at Sebring, Florida, and Laguna Seca and Ontario, California. Felton's Gremlin also placed third at Lime Rock, Connecticut and Lexington, Ohio.

Buzz Marcus' Gremlin added championship points by posting two seconds, a third and a fifth place showing, and Andy Petery piloted his Gremlin to a second place in the series.

The IMSA will begin its second series of 1976 races Saturday with a 100-mile race at Daytona International Speedway.

Funny cars, dragsters vie at Irwindale

IRWINDALE — Saturday night Irwindale Raceway will be making drag racing history in the first-ever "Funny Car-Dragster Challenge Championship" with alcohol-burning Funny Cars meeting the high-powered Blown Alcohol Dragsters in every round of competition.

The special challenge championship will be the final event in the "Bicentennial Weekend" at Irwindale Raceway which will also feature a "Fox Hunt" on Thursday with the Speedway Motorcycles and exciting CMC Night Motocross on Friday night.

Each race on the Saturday night "Challenge" features a Funny Car against a Dragster, and this confrontation is one that many drag racing fans have waited to see for years. The alcohol-burning floppers and diggers also put on some of the best side-by-side racing in all of drag racing.

Heading the list of Funny Car entries will be Brad Anderson of Covina and Lou Gasparelli of Monrovia, considered by many to be two of the top five Alcohol Funny Car drivers in the nation today. Anderson and Gasparelli have met on the quarter-mile quite often already this season, and each pilot has around the same number of victories to their credit. Joining Anderson and Gasparelli will be Mike Dunn of La Mirada, the 19-year-old son of funny car star Jim Dunn, who will be making his first attempt in competition behind the wheel of a fiberglass ground-pounder. Other Funny Car drivers include Tom Lemon of Alhambra, Richard Day of El Toro, and Chris Christensen of Glendale.

Battling the Funny Cars this Saturday at Irwindale Raceway will be some of the top Blown Alcohol Dragsters in the United States led by current N.H.R.A. Division Seven point leader Jimmy Scott of Canoga Park. Joining Scott against the Funny Cars will be Winternationals runnerup Jerry Darien of Covina, Irwindale "Fox Hunt" winner Larry Sutton of Cypress, and Northern Nationals winner Doug Kerhulas of Bakersfield.

Gates will open at 1 p.m. with eliminations beginning at 7 p.m.

Ali blames Inoki for boredom

MANILA (AP) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali put all the blame Tuesday on his wide-jawed wrestling opponent Antonio Inoki for the dull draw in Tokyo which aroused Japanese fans to pelt the contenders with garbage and demand their money back.

"It was not a ripoff because nothing was illegal," Ali said at a news conference shortly after arriving for a 24-hour stay to visit President Ferdinand E. Marcos and open a shopping center Wednesday.

"If it was rehearsed I would have thrown more than two punches.

"It was dull. It was dull because he wouldn't rassle. He was supposed to do his headlock, his backbreaker, his arm twister, his leg twister.

"I was disappointed. The world was disappointed. The fight did not turn out the way it was supposed to.

"I fulfilled my contract. But he didn't care to rassle. He came to kick.

"But at any rate, they paid me anyway."

Ali got $6 million for the two-punch, 15-round tussle. Inoji got about $3 million.

Ali said he didn't care if the World Boxing Council withdrew its award to him as 1975 Boxer of the Year because of the Tokyo debacle.

"I'm bigger than the Council," he said. "I'm bigger than boxing.

"I'm the biggest draw in the history of the world.

"They can take my title but it can't keep me from making millions. I'm making 22 million this year."

Ali said he hoped to get back to boxing when he fights Ken Norton at Yankee Stadium Sept. 28. He said he would fight George Foreman after Norton and then consider retiring.

"I'll retire when there is no one around to beat," he said. "I'll get a good little farm outside Louisville with chickens and horses and play with the children.

"I'm ready to settle down now in the country."

Hellickson's coverage may expand

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — "Cross Face," a publication about wrestling in Wisconsin, probably will expand its coverage to Canada if Russ Hellickson wins an Olympic medal.

At least it will if one of the co-publishers has anything to say about it.

"I keep trying to bury those kind of things (stories about Russ Hellickson), and my wife puts them on the front page," said Hellickson who with his wife, Nancy, publishes and writes "Cross Face."

The Hellicksons have been honored for their writing by national wrestling publications in 1974 and again this year.

But honors in the sport itself came more slowly for the former University of Wisconsin football player, baseball player and wrestler who now is assistant wrestling coach at the school.

"I never placed in the nationals (NCAA Tournament) at all," said Hellickson at the Olympic wrestling team's training camp where he is preparing to represent the United States in the 220-pound freestyle class at Montreal.

"I never had a scholarship in anything," said the 28-year-old Hellickson, and it was his need to work at a restaurant-bar 40 hours a week that forced him to quit as football linebacker after his junior year. A year earlier wrestling ended his career as a baseball pitcher.

"I hyperextended my elbow and I lost my curve, screwball and my fastball all at the same time," he said.

But he didn't quit wrestling and after he graduated from Wisconsin in 1970 the honors started to come. And today they have grown to include eight national titles in freestyle and Greco-Roman; Pan American Games gold medals at 198 pounds in 1971 and 220 in 1975 and placings in several international competitions including a championship at the prestigious Tbilisi tournament in the Soviet Union in 1974.

In 1972, he finished second to Ben Peterson in a bid for the starting spot at 198 on the Olympic team. Peterson, whom Hellickson has since beaten, won the Olympic gold.

"After I missed out in 1972, I knew I had to stay around," said Hellickson. "Besides, it's a super way to stay in condition."

"I would think he is one of the best medal contenders," said Olympic Coach Wayne Baughman. "He has the strength, experience and maturity."

Trout in sky

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There are more than 3,300 high mountain lakes in California, mostly in the Sierra Nevada, Cascade Range, Salmon and Marble mountains. Trout angling is one of the many recreational pursuits enjoyed by back country travelers with fishing rods at the ready, according to Sports Afield.

Olympic trialists take home loads of shoes

EUGENE, ORE (AP) — At least half of the 600 athletes who competed at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials could have have come to Eugene barefoot and would have gone home with at least two pairs of shoes if not a car load.

The Great Shoe Scandle which rocked the track world at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, and which heated up again four years ago, continues to brew, although at a lower temperature.

It was estimated that the top under-the-table payment to an Olympic Athlete in 1968 was $25,000 but estimates are that more than four times that amount is being offered to a small group of select competitors this year.

The main combatants for the last decade have been two large companies from West Germany. Recently, two Japanese firms and even one from Scandinavia have made inroads.

The aim of each is the same: to get world record holders to wear their products and thus make them attractive to today's youngsters who idolize the stars.

One athlete recently signed a contract which called for him to compete in only one company's equipment and he wound up earning not only a salary but also was guaranteed bonus money based on his performances.

"I guess we brought about 3000 pairs of shoes here," said the representative of one of the West German firms as he packed up to leave. He had about 500 pairs of shoes left.

One company claims it is not making direct payments to athletes, saying it is simply "Sponsoring the best track clubs in the U.S., like the Pacific Coast Club, The Maccabi Club, the Philadelphia Pioneers and the DC Striders.

"We subsidize them with a small donation, for them to operate, and what they do with the money I do not know. Some of the subsidies are as low as $1,000."

Still, both firms' representatives are irate over what they call "The raiding of our athletes." Apparently whether or not contracts are written or verbal, some athletes have been long committed to one company only to show up suddenly in another's equipment.

"A partial purpose of our job is to get athletes to realize they will run better in our products," said one representative.

"But we have heard of some pretty unbelieveable offers from our competitors and it's pretty disturbing when one of our guys shows up wearing their stuff."

Neither of the major two companies makes a great deal of money from the sale of its track equipment. Both estimate that track and field related sales represent only five per cent of thier total revenue.

But the world wide recognition that a particular track star competes in a particular brand is undeniably beneficial in the sale of such other equipment as tennis shoes and racquets, jogging shoes and even sports wear and luggage.

If the payments are continuing, however, they are being handled much more carefully than in 1968, when the two major firms admitted openly paying athletes to compete with cash and checks. "It makes me bitter to see what they are doing."

It's a Racquet

CLAREMONT'S JANICE METCALF and Glendora's Lea Antonoplis lost out in last week's early rounds at Wimbledon but, as the old expression goes, at least they made the show. That's more than can be said of any other resident, past or present, of the area commonly considered to be the Pomona Valley.

Tennis veterans here noted that Janice and Lea are the first area players ever to compete in the world's premiere tennis event on the fabled grass courts outside London. You don't just walk into the joint with your racquet and sign up. Wimbledon carefully selects its entrants on the basis of major tournament performance for the previous year.

The finals of the big event are coming up on TV Saturday. Viewers who want to be held in suspense are going to have problems. The women finalists will have played their match Friday, so what you'll get from NBC-TV on Channel 4 at 9:30 a.m. is a 90-minute tape of that one. It's all right, suspense-wise, if you lock yourself in a closet for 24 hours up to TV time.

As for the men, they're playing Saturday, sure enough, but the telecast at 2 p.m. also will be tape delayed, also in a 90-minute package, and probably edited down for the time slot. Thus, as was the case last year when viewers could look at the clock and know early in the fourth set that Arthur Ashe had beaten Jimmy Connors . . . well, you figure it out.

MORE BUDDING WIMBLEDON prospects may be under development in the area and if so, events like the Pomona Valley Closed Championships ought to boost them in the right direction. Besides the open competition, the program last week included action in eight junior categories, all the way down to a 10-and-under division.

In a match between two youngsters who fared well in the open singles, Olarn Issara of Thailand (by way of Claremont) defeated Chino's Bob Conners for the 18-and-under title, 6-4, 6-2. Issara, who just graduated from Claremont High, is headed for a summer tennis tournament tour to Malaysia, Indonesia and possibly Japan and Australia. He enters Pepperdine in the fall.

Pam Papa won the 16-and-under girls title with a 6-0, 6-1 finals triumph over Shawnie Piper and Mark Alba was the 16-and-under boys champ over Ken Lindberg, 6-2, 6-3. Alba also shared the doubles title with Steve Norin as they defeated finals opponents Tom Li and Craig Van Wyck, 6-1, 6-3.

In 14-and-under action, Wendy Wade earned the girls crown over Heidi Skvarna, 6-2, 6-1, while Gerry Gollin downed Jeff Krieger in the boys final, 6-1, 6-0.

Julie Samrick was the girls 12-and-under champ, 6-2, 6-4 over Kim Jones and in the tiniest tots' division, 10-and-under, Robert Hawkesby beat Nick Skvarna.

MONTCLAIR'S FIRST tournament has turned out champions in six events. The city Recreation Department's debut as a tournament sponsor drew 50 participants to the week-long competition which ended Sunday at the Montclair High courts.

Paul Kustel won the open men's singles title and Janice Mason was the winner of the only women's event. Runners-up were Rito Armenta and Dorthea Schellenberger.

The C men's winner was Wade Mayo (over finalist Rudy Schultz) and the novice victor was Mike Telada (beating John Collins). Larry Marvin and John Chastine teamed for the open doubles title (over Joe Van Dreisen and Jack Neuman) and Mayo copped a second title as Don McBryant's C doubles partner against John Nolte and Paul Wright.

"GUYS AND DOLLS Super Stars" is the name of the mixed doubles round robin coming up July 10 for members of the San Jose Hills Racquet Club. It'll be a long day — 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. — at the Mt. San Antonio College courts, but the players get a lunch for their $3 entry fee. Helen Wang will be lunch hostess and Yvonne Condo is social chairman. Entry deadline is Thursday.

DON'T TRY TO TELL anyone in Ontario that the tennis boom is leveling off. Almost as soon as it got word out to the community, the city's Recreation Department filled five free youth classes, four adult sessions requiring fees and a two-night-a-week men's and women's doubles league. Only one adult class — at 11 a.m. Mondays and Wednesdays — still had openings as the program began last week . . . Tennis Trivia:

The contestants in a tournament today and Thursday at the Let Set-Lax Racquet Club in Los Angeles might be more inclined to think about fastening seat belts than hitting serves, lobs and volleys. They're 25 Continental Airlines stewardesses from across the country, participating in eliminations to determine who will go to the first annual Springmaid International Stewardess Tournament in Texas in August . . . All four women's semifinalists at Wimbledon are World Team Tennis players this year, but the league wasn't so well represented on the men's side. Only one of the final four men, Ilie Nastase, has seen WTT action this year, and he doesn't count anymore, having quit the Hawaii Leis. In the quarterfinals Vitas Gerulaitis of the Pittsburgh Triangles gave WTT its only other representation.

TOURNAMENTS BEARING the "Pomona Valley" moniker have existed before, as far back as the 1930s, but they've always been open to players from outside the local area. The just-concluded Pomona Valley Closed Championships tournament was the first competition restricted to players from this geographical pocket from Walnut and Glendora to Alta Loma and Cucamonga.

Thus some historical significance accompanies the championships won by Geoff Clark in men's singles; Christy Stafford in women's singles; Dave Waterhouse and Bill Geary in men's doubles; Doris Clark and Donna Dickenson in women's doubles; and Geoff Clark and Cathie Headley in mixed doubles.

However, veteran player Chuck Anderson stood alone in one particular distinction. He played in some of those Pomona Valley tournaments of the late 30s, then here he was again in the latest competition, a finalist in both men's and mixed doubles.

Aaron denies Atlanta return

NEW YORK (AP) — All-time home run king Henry Aaron said Sunday he doesn't "know what the deal is" concerning reports he will leave the Milwaukee Brewers and return to the Atlanta Braves next season as vice president for player development and public relations.

"I haven't talked to my attorney yet," Aaron said Sunday after the Brewers had lost a doubleheader to the New York Yankees. "I don't know what the deal is. At this time, I will make no comment as to my leaving the Brewers for the Braves."

John Alevizos, executive vice president and general manager of the Braves, had said Saturday in Atlanta that Aaron would assume a front office position in player development with the Braves in 1977.

The report said formal announcement was not expected until Aaron's contractual obligations to the Brewers are fulfilled in order for the Braves to avoid possible tampering charges.

"He (Aaron) will definitely be involved with the Braves next year in player development," Alevizos had said.

Aaron, who broke Babe Ruth's career home run record of 714 during the 1974 season, spent his entire career with the Braves in Milwaukee and Atlanta until his trade to the Brewers for Dave May in November, 1974.

Peterson tries for more gold

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Ben Peterson surprised a lot of people when he won an Olympic gold medal in freestyle wrestling in 1972. And he will surprise a lot of the sport's insiders if he does it again in Montreal.

"Nobody else knew what I could do," said Peterson, who was a newcomer at international competition four years ago.

But Peterson and his scrambling style now are well known on the international scene.

"It's different than it was four years ago," said the former two-time NCAA champion from Iowa State. "It's a lot different ball game.

"It's definitely tougher this time. There are three guys in the weight class that have been place winners in the world championships—a Russian, East German and Pole."

The 25-year-old Peterson, whose 27-year-old brother, John, will try and repeat or better his 1972 silver medal showing at 180.5 pounds, said at the Olympic wrestling camp here, "I think this is the last time around. I'll decide that next year."

Peterson, of Comstock, Wis., concentrated on wrestling because he wasn't good enough to play college football.

"Football was always my favorite sport in high school," he recalled. "I wanted to play football (in college) but I couldn't get a scholarship. I wasn't big enough or good enough. I got a part time scholarship in wrestling which became full time."

Peterson won NCAA titles in 1971-72, then won an Olympic gold. Since then he has placed in various international competitions and won a gold at the Pan American Games last year.

Bowa closing on Concepcion

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati and Larry Bowa of Philadelphia are locked in a title battle for the National League All-Star shortstop position with only one week left in the balloting, the league's figures show.

In fact, theirs is one of the few close voting races left. Already, three Cincinnati Reds— catcher Johnny Bench, third baseman Pete Rose and second baseman Joe Morgan— appear to have their starting spots clinched. And Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey and Philadelphia left fielder Greg Luzinski also appear to be shoo-ins, according to figures released Monday.

Concepcion, the starting shortstop for last year's NL All-Stars, has received 1,050,838 votes, with Bowa closely behind with 975,400 votes for the starting spot in the July 13th classic against the American League at Philadelphia.

Also up for grabs were the two other outfield positions. Luzinski leads with 818,615 votes. Cincinnati's George Foster was next with 735,156 votes, followed by the New York Mets' Dave Kingman, 691,269; Lou Brock, St. Louis, 674,968; Bake McBride, St. Louis, 636,224; Rick Monday, Chicago, 633,611, and Ken Griffey, Cincinnati, 633,608.

The biggest runaway is in balloting for the starting catcher's position. Bench has polled 1,613,165 votes to a mere 576,545 for runner-up Bob Boone of Philadelphia.

At third base, Rose has 1,405,580 votes to 883,016 for Philadelphia slugger Mike Schmidt, and Morgan has received 1,620,538 votes to 990,851 for Philadelphia's Dave Cash.

The American League leaders are Rod Carew, Minnesota, first base; Bobby Grich, Baltimore, second base; Fred Patek, Kansas City, shortstop; George Brett, Kansas City, third base; Carlton Fisk, Boston, catcher, and Boston's Fred Lynn, California's Bobby Bonds and Detroit's Ron LeFlore in the outfield.

Whitey Herzog fits Royals' bill

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's beginning to look more and more like Whitey Herzog is exactly what the Kansas City Royals needed. And he is a classic study of a man being in the right place at the right time.

Herzog was 43 years old and the third base coach for the California Angels last July when owner Ewing Kauffman made the decision to fire Jack McKeon and find another pilot for his strife-ridden Royals, who had lagged in their pursuit of Oakland in the American League West. Herzog, a veteran baseball man who had made his home since 1959 in Independence, Mo., a few minutes from Royals Stadium, was his choice.

Herzog made no personnel changes, but the team nevertheless played better than it had all season, racing to an impressive 41-25 clip and finishing with 91 victories, the highest total in 20 years of major league ball in this town.

This season the Royals are again rolling and lead the American League West.

A manager's role is difficult to assess, but there is no question that Whitey Herzog—he gets the name from his sun-colored hair—has won the hearts of his players.

The Royals were an unhappy, divided lot before Herzog arrived, and club spokesmen now asked to help explain the change suddenly find an excuse to leave the room.

The players are almost as reticent.

"It's just a much more relaxed atmosphere," said one, after carefully weighing his words. "He's willing to admit a mistake."

"He's honest with you," said another. "He can communicate with the players, and what's more, the players can communicate with him."

"There doesn't seem to be any pressure on the players," said one veteran Royal.

"Remember when you were a kid and you'd hop out of bed at eight o'clock and play all day just for the fun of it? Well, that's sort of the atmosphere Whitey's created here again. It's fun. But don't misunderstand. If you're not doing the job he won't put up with you and he lets you know it. He's the boss."

Herzog's destiny wove a circuitous path from his birth in New Athens, Ill., to the leadership of the Royals. His experience includes seven years in the New York Mets organization, scouting for the Kansas City Athletics, eight years as an outfielder-first baseman with several teams, and, most recently, a brief stint as manager of the Texas Rangers. He was fired by the Rangers in 1973 when Billy Martin, who later would also be fired, became available.

Herzog accepts modestly any credit for the Royals new-found success.

"I don't think it's any secret that when I got here there were several pretty tight cliques on this team," he says. "The first thing I did was call in every player and talk to him as an individual. I told them what I expected of them and what they could expect of me, and that's about all there was to it. The players all responded very positively. I think we got all our problems resolved."

Herzog did not stand pat this year. Some of his major decisions have been to move young Al Cowens to a starting role in right field, to reinstall lefthander Paul Splittorff in the starting rotation, shift Marty Pattin to the bullpen and make a starter out of bullpen ace Doug Bird.

Herzog breaks down his philosophy on managing into three separate parts:

"The most important," he says, "is handling people...gaining their respect and motivating them. Second, I believe, is dealing with the media. Third, is on-field strategy.

Pitcher Steve Busby, the ace of the Royals staff, has been hampered with arm trouble all year and inching through a strict conditioning program Herzog designed to ease him back to full strength. Monday night, after allowing the Detroit Tigers just two hits through six innings, he was asked to evaluate his progress.

"I'm very pleased," he said. "I'd like to hurry up and start going full strength, but Whitey doesn't think that would be wise.

Charity game slated

The California Razorbacks and Los Angeles Mustangs of the Western Football League will kick off the 1976 minor league professional football season Friday night at 8 p.m. on Bonita High's field.

The game will be a charity affair played for the benefit of Danbury School for Handicapped Children in Claremont.

According to game director Tom Weiss, "we are in need of some playground equipment for our school and we hope that we can raise enough money to supply our kids with some equipment this summer."

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1 for students. Children under 12 will be admitted free. Tickets may be obtained by calling (714) 596-1349 or (714) 626-2292 and are on sale at Danbury School. Tickets will also be available at Bonita High Friday night beginning at 6 p.m.

NOT A BRUISER — Linda Jefferson, 5-foot-4, 125-pound halfback for the Toledo Troopers of the National Women's Football League, has been dubbed the "O.J. Simpson of women's pro football."

Halfback Jefferson doesn't look the part

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Jefferson, a diminutive and attractive 21-year-old, has impressive statistics — like four 1,000-yard seasons and 72 career touchdowns.

A halfback for the Toledo, Ohio, Troopers of the National Women's Football League, Miss Jefferson hardly looks the part of a swift and bruising runner. But she is.

Dubbed the "O.J. Simpson of women's pro football," the 5-foot-4, 125 pounder was in 1975 named Female Athlete of the Year by WomenSports magazine. She was also a finalist in the televised Women's Superstar competition.

She's considered the top athlete in the fledgling National Women's Football League, which has four teams in the East and five on the West Coast.

Linda is a four-year veteran with the Troopers, who've not lost a game while she's played for them.

A track star who also played softball and basketball in high school in Toledo, Linda decided in her teens she wanted to be a football player.

"I used to play touch football with the boys in the streets when I was a kid," she said, adding with a grin, "but I had to give that up because they wanted to hold and squeeze too much."

Her mother, she recalled, wasn't exactly thrilled with the idea of her daughter becoming a football player.

"My mom said, 'Sure you do.' But then I showed up in a football uniform one day and she believed me.

"She wouldn't come to see me the first five games I played," Linda recounted. "But now she's my No. 1 fan."

Miss Jefferson was in California as part of the "Drop-In" program that enourages young people to stay in school and get involved in sports and community activities. She speaks to thousands of youngsters through the program set up by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp and which includes male football veterans Dick Butkus, Pete Gogolak, Ben Davidson and John Hadl.

"I tell them that competition can give them joy and self respect, and keep them in good condition," Linda said. "Someday I hope to coach children's teams in a whole variety of sports."

She could apparently also tell them how to run with the football.

"I try to stay out of people's way," she remarked. "I don't like to run over them unless I have to.

"People hear about me and think before they see me that I'm a mixture of Franco Harris, Joe Greene and Godzilla. I'm not."

The comely young lady undoubtably gets no argument on that score.

Lopez, Hafey want title shots

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Danny Lopez and Art Hafey agree on just one thing.

One of them ought to be the featherweight boxing champion of the world and the guys who hold the titles are ducking them.

"I've fought all the rated fighters except Danny and beaten 'em," declared Canadian Hafey who hails from Nova Scotia.

"I think I've proved I should have a title shot," said the Little Red Lopez whose brother Indian Red lost out in bids for the welterweight crown.

They met at a news conference at the Forum on Monday, the site where they'll meet in a 12-round fight on Aug. 6 and where Promoter Don Fraser said the winner will get a title shot against World Boxing Council champion David Kotey of Ghana.

"I'll win by round seven," the stubby slugger Hafey declared. But he added, "I still have doubts I'll get a title shot after what has happened."

He referred to lesser rated fighters getting title shots while he hasn't had one. "I'll win by a knockout," predicted Lopez. "I don't say any particular round...just when I get the shot in."

In the boxing ratings, Kotey is the champion in the WBC and Alex Arguello of Nicaragua is the World Boxing Association champion.

So with those two ranked 1-2 in the ranking of the two associations, it is Hafey and Lopez in the 3-4 spots.

Each will collect $25,000 or 30 per cent of the gate for their fight at the Forum. For Hafey it will be the biggest purse of his career and Lopez' manager, Howeie Steindler said that with ancillary revenues, his fighter will collect $40,000.

Both Hafey and Lopez wanted to fight for the title, win it and then box the other in a championship affair.

"I know Danny would be a big money fight for me," said Hafey. "But I did not think I should have had a title shot before this."

Neither will have trouble making the 126-pound weight, although Lopez admits he's getting bigger.

Hafey at 5-foot-4 if he stands on his toes, declared, "Everybody I fight is longer and taller than me."

But the longer and taller don't stay long and they fall short. Hafey has a 57-7-4 record and has won 19 in a row.

Lopez has a 30-3 record. He knocked out former champion Ruben Olivares (who split with Hafey in two fights) and then had KO's over Sean O'Grady and Famoso Gomez. The latter was the No.1 rated contender on April 28 when Little Red stopped him.

Each of the little battlers has the same contract agreement —a guarantee of $25,000 or 30 per cent of the gate.

Lopez said, "This will be my toughest fight. I'll just keep in there and keep punching."

Hafey believes this could even be better for him than a title shot at this time, "because Lopez is where the money is in Los Angeles. It will be a good pay day for me and lead to a championship fight."

Former owner doesn't want to get involved

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jay Moore, a $1.5 million lesson imprinted clearly on his mind, wants no more financial part of professional sports.

Moore, who owns a plastic pipe manufacturing firm, lost $100,000 a month after he bought majority interest in the Cleveland Crusaders' World Hockey Association franchise from Nick Mileti 15 months ago.

"I will not become financially involved again," said Moore, even if it means a National Hockey League team for the Coliseum at nearby Richfield.

Moore did recover much of his losses when Bill Putnam bought the Crusaders for $1.4 million. Putnam is transferring the franchise to Hollywood, Fla.

"If the circumstances were the same," said Moore, "but I knew what I know now, I would not get involved. It would be difficult to have more things go wrong."

He then ticked off such woes as the poor early season play of the Crusaders, the problems among front office officials, the resignation of General Manager Jack Vivian, the Gerry Cheevers squabble and the payroll embarrassment.

"They were all negative things that certainly didn't help generate a positive attitude toward the team and the league," said Moore.

Even with none of those problems, he conceded the Crusaders might not have had a chance. The WHA has yet to succeed in a major market, having been chased out of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston and Toronto.

"We have had a problem trying to sell the WHA as big league," said Moore. "I would have to admit the WHA is not big league over-all. The NHL seal means an awful lot to the fans. You can't fool them by calling something big league if it's not."

"I'm still convinced that hockey can be successful here," he said. "I want to help bring an NHL team to Cleveland and I think there will be a team here ultimately.

"I am convinced the (NHL) Seals are not going to stay in Oakland, but I don't know if there is enough time to affect a move here. But I will not become financially involved again."

Guyette would have liked tryout

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Bob Guyette, a former University of Kentucky basketball standout, and two Kentucky coaches are puzzled because Guyette wasn't invited too try out for the U.S. Olympic basketball team.

"I had written a letter to (North Carolina and Olympic Coach) Dean Smith, and I corresponded with them a couple of times . . . but when it came down to it, I just never did hear from them," Buyette said Monday.

Guyette's college coach, Joe Hall, and former Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp both recommended Guyette to Smith.

"He (Smith) said he was interested, and I thought he was," said Hall.

"There were 50 boys asked to the original tryouts and I know, positively, that he (Guyette) should have been among that bunch," Rupp added.

After playing for Kentucky's national runners-up in 1975, Guyette spent the past year playing amateur basketball in Spain. During that year, he became familiar with international rules as played in the Olympics.

Smith said that he "passed Guyette's letter on to the chairman of the selection committee, like all the other letters I got. I received literally hundreds of them."

"I had nothing to do with inviting any of the players from Europe," Smith added. "Dan Peterson, who coached the Italian championship team, submitted the best players who were eligible from Europe."

Smith eventually built an Olympic team that includes just one big man — his center at North Carolina, 6-foot-10 Mitch Kupchak. Guyette is 6-9 and a ferocious rebounder and inside scorer.

That, his knowledge of international rules and familiarity with several of the players the U.S. team will face in Montreal, would seem to make Guyette a prime candidate for the American team.

Playing in Europe 'definitely would have made me more ready" for the Olympics, said Guyette.

"First of all, because I've played against a lot of players who represent other teams in the Olympics. For example, on my team were two players who will represent Spain in the Olympics. And we played in Italy and Israel, both of which have good teams," Guyette said.

"Out of the 50 players — or however many they selected — I think I had the experience of playing over there and I had a good enough career at Kentucky to warrant me for the tryouts," he added.

Cavazos heads Sunday cartel

TIJUANA — Mexico's most popular bullfighter, Eloy Cavazos, heads the cartel for Sunday in the downtown bullring, El Toreo de Tijuana.

Cavazos, a diminutive and heroic matador from Monterrey, will team with Manolo Arruza and a newcomer, Gabriel Soto (El Momo), to fight six brave bulls from Las Huertas beginning at 4 p.m.

Because this is the Fourth of July weekend — and because Cavazos has not fought in Tijuana since Sept. 15, 1974 — a large crowd is expected in the 14,000-seat arena.

Beginning with this corrida, a bullfight will be staged each Sunday in Tijuana at 4 p.m. through late September.

Cavazos, 25, stands only five feet, two inches, so he must jump almost over the horns at the moment of truth. This he does, and his sword work is generally considered the best.

Business briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States petroleum refineries set new records in gasoline production and in the amount of crude oil processed during the week ending June 18, the American Petroleum Institute says.

It was the third consecutive week in which new records were established in those two categories, API said.

Motor gasoline production averaged 7.367 million barrels a day during the week ending June 18. Refineries processed a dily average of 13.789 million barrels of crude oil that week.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)— A West German firm has filed a $30 million lawsuit charging General Tire and Rubber Co. with false advertising that did extensive damage to the German company's economic and moral standing.

The firm, Trans Oceanica G.m.b.H., a purchasing agent for General Tire's Chilean subsidiary Industria Nacional de Neumaticos SA INSA, has charged in U.S. District Court that General Tire has maliciously destroyed their reputation in the business world.

Charles F. Clarke, Trans Oceanica Attorney, said the suit stems from an advertisement that General Tire ran in April and July of 1975 in Chile's largest daily Newspaper, El mercurio.

The advertisement listed prices of certain raw materials used for tires, and said the worldwide prices were half what Trans Oceanica charged the INSA.

"That was false," Clarke said. "Prices were substantially the same."

Tress E. Pittenger, General Tire vice president and general counsel, said the company is generally familiar with the nature of the complaint and believes the allegations are unfounded.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel has been promised immunity from future pollution suits involving the Clairton Coke Works if the company agrees to install the best available control technology now.

The offer was made public Thursday by Allegheny County commissioner Robert Peirce and is considered a major breakthrough in the lengthy negotiations over the Clairton Works, the largest such facility in the world.

The talks stem from a $3 million suit the state and county filed against the company for 241 alleged violations of a 1972 consent decree in which U.S. Steel agreed to limit emissions at the plant.

Coke is a necessary ingredient in producing steel, but making it is a dirty process.

The company has maintained that the technology does not exist to meet the county's current air quality standards. The firm has also expressed fears that spending millions on equipment today would not necessarily mean the plant would meet future air regulations. the immunity offer eliminates that possibility.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The FMC Corp. has agreed to sell its Philadelphia-based fiber division to a newly formed company headed by a current FMC officer.

Avtex Fibers Inc., the buyer, will assume control of the fiber division Aug. 2. Vice chairman of FMC John N. Gregg will become chairman and president of Avtex. No sale price was disclosed.

The fiber division of FMC is the largest domestic producer of rayon, with 50 per cent of the U.S. capacity. The division also produces acetate and polyester products.

FMC Corp. is based in Chicago.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — F. Lee Jacquette, treasurer of the Carnegie Corp. of New York and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, has been named senior vice president and chief financial officer of The Arizona Bank, officials said Sunday.

Jacquette will join the bank staff Aug. 1, said G. Clarke Bean, chairman and chief executive officer.

Previously Jacquette was assistant controller of Chemical Bank in New York, a director of Home Trust Co. of New Jersey, Investor Responsibility Research Center Inc., Washington, D.C., and of Alliance Bond Fund Inc.

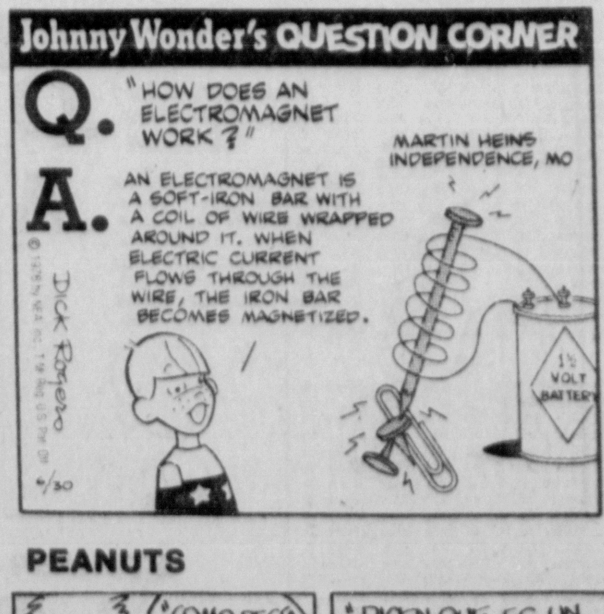
JOHNNY WONDER



Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "HOW DOES AN ELECTROMAGNET WORK?"
MARTIN HEINS INDEPENDENCE, MO
A. AN ELECTROMAGNET IS A SOFT-IRON BAR WITH A COIL OF WIRE WRAPPED AROUND IT. WHEN ELECTRIC CURRENT FLOWS THROUGH THE WIRE, THE IRON BAR BECOMES MAGNETIZED.
1½ VOLT BATTERY
DICK ROJERO
6/30

An electromagnet is a magnet that works with electricity.

An electromagnet consists of a soft-iron bar with a coil of wire wound around it. When electric current flows through a wire, a magnetic field develops around the wire. The current can create such a field because each electron in the current has a tiny magnetic field around it.

This weak magnetic field is strengthened by coiling the wire around the iron bar (the more turns in the wire there are and the stronger the current, the larger the magnetic effect). The bar then becomes a magnet and will attract other iron objects, just as a bar magnet does.

An electromagnet loses its magnetism when the current stops.

Powerful industrial electromagnets are used to lift heavy pieces of iron and steel. Around home you'll find electromagnets in doorbells, telephones, radios, TV sets, vacuum cleaners and other things run by electric motors.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
